FIRST SIX MONTHS

Nation's Crime Rate On Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced Thursday that serious crime in the nation climbed 11 per cent in the first half of 1970 over the first six months of last year.

"None of us in law enforcement can take any comfort from these figures until we can report a reduction in the total number of crimes," he said in a brief announcement in the six-month FBI Uniform Crime Reports.

The Justice Department previously had reported an encouraging drop in the rate of increase in crime since President Nixon took office. The latest report showed the crime rate was 2 per cent higher than the first half of 1969.

Earlier the department said the rate of increase in 1969 over 1968 had jumped only 12 per cent compared with 17 per cent during the last year of the Johnson administration.

Crime rose 13 per cent during the first quarter of 1970 over the same period in 1969, but the department took comfort in the fact the rate of increase of violent crime had slowed by 7 per cent in the major cities and by 3 per cent in the country as a whole.

This time about all Mitchell could find encouraging was that "the number of murders and rapes in the District of Columbia during the first half of 1970 is actually less than in the same period in 1969.

"This is in sharp contrast to a year ago, when murders in the district had increased by 42 per cent and rapes had increased by 50 per cent over the year before," he said, commenting on what President Nixon called the "crime capital of the world" in his presidential campaign.

The six-month figures released by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Thursday showed that violent crime was up 10 per cent and property crime up 12 per cent nationwide for an over-all boost of 11 per cent.

The six-month increase was 9 per cent in 1969 over 1968 after reaching a high of 21 per cent in the first half of 1968 over 1967.

The latest report showed the crime rate increased 5 per cent in the South, 14 per cent in the North-Central states, 12 per cent in the West and 6 per cent in the Northeast.

Explosion Rips Hole In Jet; Safe Landing

LONDON (UPI)—An explosion today blew a hole in the front section of an Aer Lingus Boeing 707 jetliner minutes before it landed safely at London's Heathrow Airport. Airport officials said 10 passengers were treated for shock and one was taken to a hospital.

Ten crew members and 112 passengers were aboard the New York to London flight.

Aer Lingus, Ireland's major airline, announced in New York that the "explosion" appeared to be decompression due to failure in the outer skin of the fuselage at the forward cargo door. The airline said it was not a bomb-type explosion.

Aer Lingus said one stewardess was slightly injured when scalded by hot water.

Airport officials said at first there were "some injuries" to passengers, but later advised those were treated mainly for shock. One, a woman, was taken away on a stretcher and put in an ambulance, they said.

As the plane taxied to a stop, a hole measuring three feet by two feet could be seen clearly above the ninth and 10th windows of the first class compartment.

The airplane and the area around it were quickly cordoned off and Scotland Yard's special branch called in to investigate.

The unidentified copilot said the jetliner from New York, which had landed at Shannon, Ireland, en route, was about 15 minutes from landing at London when "all we heard was a loud bang. Then suddenly we had a loss of pressure."

One passenger said the pilot announced over the intercom that a window had broken, but there were no signs of a broken window when the plane landed.

Auto Insurance Firm Sets Bay Operations In Marin

Automobile Mutual Insurance Co. of American will move its entire San Francisco office operations to Marin County in January.

The company, headquartered in Providence, R.I. and specializing in automobile and home owners insurance, has leased the entire fifth floor of the Holiday Plaza Office Building (approximately 4,000 square feet) in Terra Linda for a district headquarters.

The building, still under construction, is located near Holiday Inn on the promontory overlooking the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway and the 101 Highway and is owned by GIF Properties, Inc., an eastern organization.

The lease transaction was handled by Robert Strom of the San Francisco office of Grubb and Ellis Co. the exclusive leasing agent.

Automobile Mutual maintains 35 branch offices throughout the United States. Two of its San Francisco officials are residents of Marin County. Rodger Broomhead, resident vice president and manger of all western offices, lives in Ross. Earl Koehler, also a vice president and district claims manager, lives in San Rafael.

The San Francisco office has been located in the Russ Building since 1949.

Seashore Pleas: Quiet, Scenic Retreat From Maddening Crowds

Point Reyes National Seashore should be preserved in its natural state, providing a quiet, scenic retreat from the cars, the noise and the rush of today's living.

That was the answer the people gave last night to a National Park Service team set to draw up a master plan for the seashore.

Speaker after speaker from an audience of about 170 persons at Marin Civic Center pleaded for leaving the land much as it is and no one spoke for major development.

Pierre W. Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director, urged that the park service protect the serenity of the area . . . "save it for the reconstruction of the human soul and the declaration of the pace of life."

There were calls to protect the natural habitat of wildlife, keep the automobiles out, keep motorcycles off the hills, have a low level of development and preserve dairy ranches.

John F. West, Marin County planning commissioner, urged "preservation of the natural character of the area . . . the whole reason for establishing of the seashore."

Thomas T. Storer, attorney and former Marin County Supervisor, said automobiles could ruin the seashore "and any development should de-emphasize automobiles."

Storer proposed that there be "an old-fashioned train" from Central Marin to the seashore and a "taxi-ferry" service from San Francisco to avoid a crush of auto traffic to the seashore.

Storer suggested the planner consider having a youth hostel and a harbor of refuge at the seashore, banning beach buggies and restricting jet flights over the area.

"Preserve the beauty and have the use oriented toward people relaxing," he said.

Park Supt. James Roof of the East Bay Regional Park District, advocated putting up an entrance booth "and letting the rest of it alone. "Leave places where people can go and get away from cars. Places where people can walk are shrinking."

Harold E. Gregg, executive director of the Marin Conservation League, spoke of preserving the seashore in its natural beauty, which would offer a "complete change from urban and suburban life."

Gregg urged immediate acquisition of all the lands slated for the seashore, and said access to the area should be over several routes and primarily by public transportation.

Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, Republican candidate for the state Senate, described the seashore area as "very fragile, precious, original part of the world we want to enjoy as is."

Behr said it could become "one of the largest and most delightful outdoor zoos" in the state under a policy of restoring indigenous game. He said he'd like to see coyotes, badgers, and sea otters.

One speaker, William Ramsey, criticized park service policy, which he said had "confused access with automobiles" until it was finally realized this was wrong at Yosemite.

Taxpayers have put out money "to buy a piece of land that hasn't been loused up," Ramsey said. "We hope you don't justify the money expended by turning around and lousing it up."

George Jenkins of the Urban Arts Foundation proposed that the foundation be permitted to establish and operate a center for environmental studies, which would serve minority high school students from San Jose, San Francisco and Oakland.

The protection and the use of the seashore extends beyond Marin County, and Marin isn't safe if others misuse the seashore, he commented.

Raymond Gambonini, representing Consolidated Milk Producers, asserted that dairy ranches are part of the rural atmosphere and should bel eased back to existing dairy ranchers. The character of the area includes the cattle, the weather-beaten fences and buildings, he said.

Attorney Bryan F. McCarthy, representing dairy ranchers, said the ranchers want to help preserve the beauty of the area, and "ranching is compatible with seashore use . . . dairy ranching won't hurt it one bit.

Toby Giacomini, Point Reyes Station businessman, said a major share of the town's business comes from ranchers on Point Reyes, and if they were moved out, it would have a serious impact on the community.

There was a plea to preserve the Drake and Limantour esteros, a stopover for migrating black brants, a vanishing breed.

Clerin W. Zumwalt, chief naturalist at Audubon Canyon Ranch, said any plan should

First Americans Arrive In Beirut

Amman Airlifts Begin

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The United States and Britain today began evacuating their nationals from Amman, torn by eight days of civil war but quieter now than any time since the war began. Sporadic fighting was reported in the city but not enough to halt the airlift.

The first planeload of Americans arrived in Beirut aboard a Coronado (Convair 990) chartered from the Lebanese Middle East Airlines. An airline spokesman in London said 100 Americans were believed to be aboard, mostly women and children who were given first preference.

FIRST PLANE

The plane landed in Beirut at 5:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m. EDT). A spokesman said the 112-passenger plane also carried some Indians, Malaysians and "possibly other nationalities" caught up in the fighting. A Red Cross plane bringing wounded evacuees to Beirut also was arriving tonight.

Two planeloads of British nationals landed in Nicosia, Cyprus, today from Amman. The American nationals were flying aboard a plane chartered from the Lebanese Middle East Airline to avoid any semblance of U.S. intervention. They were flying the Americans to Beirut.

OFFER TO OTHERS

The United States in a broadcast by the Voice of America offered to evacuate citizens of Italy, the Netherlands, West Germany and Nationalist China. It chartered a total of three Coronados (Convair 990s) from the Lebanese concern.

There was still no word on the fate of 54 hostages, 37 or 38 of them Americans who were taken from hijacked airliners. UPI Correspondent David Zenian reported from Amman that U.S. ambassador L. Dean Brown drove in an armored car to King Hussein's palace to inquire about their fate. They were thought to be in northern Jordan or even Syria.

NO CONFIRMATION

The State Department said the first Coronado left Beirut at 8:45 a.m. EDT for Amman but there had been no cable confirmation of its arrival or departure. Communications were in a hopeless jumble and there were no telephone lines from the airport to the city.

Zenian, in one of the few direct reports from Amman in days, said occasional sniper fire in the capital still drew army artillery bombardment but that the fighting had ebbed and the shooting was only sporadic.

Fires still burned in the city and from time to time he could hear the cry of wounded begging for help. But he said anyone seen moving during the

'A CRUEL DEATH'

Jordan's Capital: City Of Corpses

BEIRUT — Amman is dying — a long, slow, cruel death. The dead cannot be counted. The wounded cannot be comforted. The dispossessed cannot be compensated.

Two-thirds of a once proud royal capital of 600,000 has been utterly destroyed.

For the past six days I watched every minute from my hotel in Amman — itself a fortress under heavy and almost constant artillery and machine-gun fire.

Yesterday, under armed escort, together with other correspondents, I was taken to the airport and flown here to safety.

The army of King Hussein with its tanks and artillery has got a grip on most of the city.

But the cost was terrible.

Thousands of dead and dying and wounded lie in the streets under the wreckage of houses and buildings. A sad victory — if victory it is — for Hussein.

Indisputable facts are hard to come by.

The Red Cross estimates that between 5,000 and 10,000 were killed or wounded in the past six days.

The commandos say that at least 8,000 of them have died and their casualties number tens of thousands.

They say that in one refugee camp alone 7,000 are dead.

I walked half a mile along the main road outside to what had been the front line of the army attack on the old town.

I passed huddles of troops, their faces bearing the strain and the dust from six sleepless days and nights.

The streets were strew with uprooted trees and telegraph poles and all the garbage of war, heaps of spent cartridge and shell cases, the wreckage of armored cars, the chunks of blasted concrete, the still-burning timbers from wrecked houses.

The lines of limestone houses all bore the black scars of shrapnel and bullets. And scattered across the square mile of side street I saw many blackened heaps of what had once been handsome villas.

One Jordanian woman in a torn and bloodstained Arab dress came running to me weeping over her small baby girl: "Why don't they stop? Where will this end? We don't know what to do. There's nowhere to go. I know we're lucky still to be alive but if this goes on we'll all be killed."

Above her little stone house which had been ripped by bullets, hung a torn sheet on a stick from a window — a makeshift white flag. And these pathetic symbols now hang from thousands of homes around the city.

One man limping along the street — he had been slightly wounded by a bullet in the foot — told me: "I live lower down in the town and in my street there must be four or five dead in many of the houses."

The man, dressed only in a dusty shirt and trousers and

Victory For Gretel II In America's Cup Race

BULLITIN

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—Gretel II of Australia, benefiting from a wind shift on the final leg, upset defending Intrepid of the United States by one minute, three seconds today to cut the U.S. lead to 3-1 in the America's Cup Yacht series.

Gretel, trailing by 1:02 at the end of the fifth leg, caught the wind shift first and zoomed in front of Intrepid with about 200 yards to go and successfully tacked across to gain their first official victory in the series.

Last Sunday Gretel finished first but was disqualified by the New York Yacht Club race committee for a starting line infraction.

Today's race was almost a duplication as Gretel rallied in the face of a 4-0 deficit to give Sir Frank Packer's syndicate its first victory since the 1962 series against Weatherly, which lost 4-1.

Intrepid was seeking to complete a sweep of the series and led from the start until overtaken by Gretel.

The American yacht built a 54 second lead after the end of the fourth leg even though it had spinnaker trouble.

At the end of the first mark the American craft led by 29 seconds and its advantage at completion of the second mark was 24 seconds.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Saw Friends Die

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Blonde actress Sharon Tate was the last to die in the bloody foray at her home because her killers wanted her to witness the other victims slain first, a witness at the Charles Manson murder trial testified Wednesday.

Barbara Hoyt, 18, a buxom brunette with thick horn-rimmed glasses, introduced one of the most damaging statements of the trial against the defendants by repeating a conversation she said she overheard about a month after the slayings.

It was the first testimony in the 14-week-old trial concerning admissions about the killings except for the story of key state witness Linda Kasabian, who said she was at the Tate home the night of the murders.

Pornography Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without a dissenting vote, the Senate has approved doing what a presidential commission says should not be done—make it tougher for smut peddlers to do business.

At the same time, a Senate subcommittee heard three witnesses attack the forthcoming report on the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography as a shoddy scientific study that amounts to a "magna carta for pornographers" to ply their trade.

The commission report — to be made public Sept. 30 — is known to conclude pornography largely is harmless and to recommend all laws restricting it for adults be abolished.

But the Senate, without mentioning the controversial document, approved on a 79 to 0 roll call vote a bill to sharply curtail the amount of sexy advertising that pours unsolicited into American homes.

Okinawa Accord

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force has agreed to remove all its B52 bombers from Okinawa, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said today.

The foreign ministry said, however, the bombers may be returned to Okinawa if future operations require it.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman would neither deny or confirm the report, but said, "An embassy official discussed the matter with foreign ministry officials this morning."

Japanese government sources said the notice from the U.S. Embassy did not say when the bombers would be removed, but they understood the removal of the planes would be in the "very near future."

Lunar Space Feat

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's Luna 16, loaded with rocks from the moon, landed today in Soviet Central Asia, completing the first round trip between Earth and the surface of a space body by an unmanned craft, the news agency Tass said.

"The return apparatus of the station Luna 16 landed in the preset area of Kazakhstan (the Soviet Central Asian Republic) at 8:20 a.m. Moscow time (1:20 a.m. EDT)," Tass said.

Nixon Trip Doubts

LONDON (UPI)—President Nixon may postpone or cancel his European tour next week if the Middle East crisis gets worse, according to Herbert G. Klein, White House director of communications.

But he said that, as of now, the President has no intention of doing so.

Klein told a news conference Wednesday the Nixon Administration does not rule out possible military intervention in Jordan to save American lives, including those of hijack hostages held by Palestine commandos.

Anti-Nixon Rallies

ROME (UPI)—Communists demonstrated in three Italian cities Wednesday against the impending visit of President Nixon and threatened a week of nationwide protests. Nixon arrives Sunday.

The demonstrations in Rome, Naples and Milan were relatively small but police said they might prelude riots such as those that marred Nixon's February, 1969, visit when 119 persons were injured and one leftwing student fell to his death from a rooftop.

Four separate Communist rallies in Rome Wednesday were peaceful. In Naples two policemen were injured in a battle with about 100 demonstrators.

Developer Cited For Saving Clues To Indian Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An anthropologist is praising a land developer for preserving clues near Half Moon Bay to the culture of Indians who may have lived there 5,000 years ago.

Robert Schenk, San Francisco State College's Treganza Anthropology Museum curator, gave his compliment Wednesday to Deane and Deane, Inc., a firm which owns 8,000 acres in the area and plans a resort hotel and golf course.

Called in before bulldozing, Schenk and a party of anthropologist gound the sites of 18 prehistoric villages on the land and preliminary diggings have produced mortars and pestles used to grind grain.

Bruce Asks Further Clarification Of Reds, Vietnam Peace Proposal

PARIS (UPI)—The United States today asked the Vietnamese Communists for "further clarification" of their latest peace proposals. But it said the package did not appear to offer anything new.

At the same time, Ambassador David K. E. Bruce accused the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong of using American prisoners and their families as "pawns to achieve your political objectives."

Earlier, Saigon's chief delegate at the Vietnam peace talks rejected the week-old Communist "peace initiative" and said it showed no change in the Communist aim of seizing power in South Vietnam.

Bruce, in the first formal U. S. response to an eight-point proposal from the Viet Cong on Sept. 17 offering a cease-fire if American and Allied troops were pulled out of Vietnam by next June, said:

"While you have rearranged some of the elements of your earlier proposals and added certain detail to them, it would appear that your fundamental demands remained unchanged. However, if you intended in your latest statements to convey new positions, we would welcome further clarification from you."

Bruce said American goals continue to be the withdrawal of all "outside forces" from South Vietnam, although he did not mention North Vietnamese troops specifically. He also said the Communist demand for the overthrow of the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu and their refusal to negotiate with that government "is unrealistic . . ."

South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, Thieu's official representative at the talks, arrived in Paris two hours before today's session but refused to talk to newsmen and did not sit in on the session. Aides said they did not know how long he would stay or any details of his program.

Bruce devoted almost half of his 550-word statement to demands, the Communists begin immediate talks on better treatment for American war prisoners.

In their latest package, the Communists had offered to hold talks on the release of the American prisoners in return for a troop withdrawal within a nine-month deadline.

"You cannot avoid your responsibility by using these helpless men and their anguished families as pawns to achieve your political objectives," Bruce said.

Chief Saigon negotiator Pham Dang Lam told the 85th session of the deadlocked conference the eight-point Communist proposal was unacceptable because it demanded unilateral Allied troop withdrawal and the overthrow of the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu as preconditions for a negotiated peace.

The proposals, he said, "further underline the intransigent aspects of your position and reveal even more clearly your objective which continues to be the seizing of power in South Vietnam."

The proposals, submitted last week by the Viet Cong, offered the United States a cease-fire and immediate discussions on the release of U.S. prisoners in return for a U.S. and Allied troop withdrawal by June 30, 1971.

Rail Dispute Settlement May Be Near

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Railroad and union negotiators, apparently near a settlement, agreed early today to postpone for two weeks a strike deadline over the issue of whether firemen should be used on diesel freight locomotives.

No one, including Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, appeared fully satisfied with the progress made in a 13-hour negotiating session that lasted until 1:30 a.m. EDT today, but the clear indication was a settlement could be reached on the 11-year dispute within the two-week period.

WORKERS STAY ON JOB

Unlike past rail strike deadlines, no local union members staged wildcat strikes when the 12:01 a.m. deadline passed today, and rail lines reported operations normal.

The new strike deadline is 12:01 a.m. Oct. 8.

"I am disappointed that no settlement was reached," Hodgson said at an early morning news conference. "But I am appreciative of the fact that further opportunity for negotiations now exists without an immediate threat of a strike."

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

United Transportation Union negotiator H. Edward Gilbert, gripping a briefcase and looking for a taxi, said Wednesday's talks were "not satisfactory," but that he held hope for settlement in the new round beginning today.

At issue is the need for firemen on diesel locomotives. The union insists they are necessary to maintain safety standards. The railroads contend an engineer and a brakeman can handle all work in the cab and that the fireman issue boils down to little more than "old-fashioned featherbedding."

After a series of strikes and strike threats beginning in 1959, Congress passed legislation in 1963 to permit the railroads to phase out the 38,000 jobs held by firemen on diesels.

But the legislation had a two-year limit. The union renewed its battle in 1965 to keep firemen.

Soviets Say Cholera Epidemic Is Over

Health Minister Boris Petrosky lifted the quarantine from the Volga estuary city of Astrakhan and its surrounding region, where the disease had been at its most virulent, the official Tass news agency said.

Carter Captures Georgia Primary

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, a wealthy peanut farmer who called himself one of Georgia's "little people," won a smashing victory over former Gov. Carl E. Sanders Wednesday night in a Democratic primary runoff for governor.

"The voters' decision probably will go down as one of the greatest victories that has ever been seen in this state," said the 45-year-old former state senator.

Carter had led Sanders, also 45, in the first primary two weeks ago, but a nine-man field kept him from getting a majority. He kept his momentum in Wednesday's runoff. Three hours after the polls closed his lead was so large that Sanders conceded.

Also in the voting, Andrew J. Young, a former aide to the late Martin Luther King Jr., won a first step toward becoming Georgia's first black congressman in 100 years. Young, 38, beat white attorney Wyman C. Lowe for the Democratic nomination in the 5th District and will meet Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson in November.

In another runoff, Dawson Mathis, 29, a former television newsman at Albany, beat attorney Harry Wingate for the 2nd Congressional District nomination. He has no Republican opposition and will succeed retiring Democrat Rep. Maston O'Neal.

With 1,993 of 2,045 precincts reported, Carter claimed more than 59 per cent of the vote, 495,209 to 340,082 for Sanders, and was losing in only eight of Georgia's 159 counties.

Organized Labor Gives Top Priority To Health Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized labor gave unequivocal endorsement today to legislation to set up comprehensive health insurance protection for all Americans to reverse what was described as a "shocking decline" in standards.

One day after the Nixon administration attacked national health insurance as unworkable, too costly and a risky break with the past, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, gave it top priority among domestic issues before Congress.

In prepared testimony for the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, Meany said labor did not realistically expect final action this year but that the need for a national health plan was so urgent that delay beyond 1971 should not be tolerated.

He said several pending bills in Congress would serve to "control the runaway cost inflation of medical care," with each containing particularly worthwhile features that might be combined.

NOT A SEA MONSTER

Heat Forces Power Cut For Third Day

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Utility companies along the east coast began reducing power again today while an unseasonable heat wave pushed temperatures into the 90° bracket for the third straight day.

The Potomac Electric Power Co., which services the capital, reduced power by 5 per cent today. Temperatures in Washington Wednesday reached the 96 mark, making it the hottest day of the year.

In New York City, Consolidated Edison first dropped voltage by 3 per cent and later cut back another 2 per cent for a total power cut of 5 per cent. Wednesday, Con Ed cut its output by 8 per cent.

The Virginia Electric Power Co. which serves two thirds of Virginia and parts of West Virginia and North Carolina, also cut voltage 5 per cent for the third consecutive day.

The voltage drops were deemed necessary despite pleas from officials and the utilities for consumers to conserve electricity. In New York City thousands of apartment dwellers did their part by turning off unneeded lights and air conditioners. Some, however, ignored the pleas.

In the suburbs on Long Island, the barbecue was back in style Wednesday night as housewives shunned the electric range for chaircoal briquets and outdoor dining.

A Con Ed spokesman said, "We have received wonderful cooperation, but again today we beg the public to use electricity sparingly. A critical situation still exists."

U.S. Mortar Crews Bomb Own Troops; Two GIs Die

SAIGON (UPI) — American mortar crews mistakenly bombarded their own troops Wednesday night in Central South Vietnam, killing two GIs and wounding four others, the U. S. Command said today.

The incident involved a unit of the 2nd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division. The outfit was shelled while operating 16 miles south of Bong Son and 289 miles northeast of Saigon. Another Army unit mistakenly fired 38 rounds of 4.2 inch and 81mm mortar at the infantrymen.

The Army said the incident was under investigation.

The U. S. Command also reported 52 Americans killed in the war last week and 333 GIs wounded. The death toll matched that of Aug. 22, the lowest of the year. It brought to 43,674 toe total Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

Communiques in Phnom Penh said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese defenders of Tang Kauk are so well dug in that air strikes have been powerless to dislodge them. Cambodian troops failed again Wednesday to capture the town.

Cambodian military officers at the operational base of Skoun said the Communists have again cut off supply routes to a major government force north of Phnom Penh. They said the Communists blew up three bridges along Highway 6 at the rear of the task force.

Troops of the force, largest assembled by the Cambodians, continued fighting Communist units that stalled its advance 11 days ago. Ten Cambodian troops were killed and 60 wounded in fighting Wednesday, the officers said.

U.S. C119 Shadow gunships poured thousands of rounds of gunfire into the Communist positions in the town Wednesday, observers at the front said. But the observers said no American strikes were flown in support of Cambodian forces.

Tang Kauk is 52 miles north of Phnom Penh and the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have chosen the town to stand and fight, stalling the largest Cambodian operation of the war for 11 days. The Cambodians have 16 battalions or nearly 10,000 men in the campaign, double the number of troops that set out from Skoun, 27 miles north of Phnom Penh, more than two weeks ago in an effort to break the Communist siege of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of the capital.

The Cambodian assault on Tang Kauk intensified Wednesday after two days of maneuvering troops into position. But the spokesman said the Cambodians so far have been unable to encircle the Communists, who could still escape to the north if they wanted to.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese inside Tang Kauk fired back with 57mm recoilless rifles, 82mm mortars and six-foot-long 122mm rockets, military officers at Tang Kauk said.

The use of the 122mm rockets, one of the largest indirect fire weapons the North Vietnamese have in their arsenal, emphasized further that the Communists plan to stand and fight at Tang Kauk, Cambodian military officers said.

The spokesman said the Cambodians had suffered "quite a number of casualties" but later called the casualties "moderate." He declined to provide specific numbers for security reasons.

Cambodian spokesmen said the Communists were defending the town largely from bunkers constructed in a school complex. Some bunkers can hold as many as a dozen troops.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported the loss of an Air Force F105 Thunderchief jet fighter-bomber Wednesday over Laos. The pilot of the $2.1 million plane parachuted to safety over the South China Sea and was rescued unhurt.

Saboteur Sentenced For Bombing

OAKLAND (UPI) — A one-time University of California research assistant, who admitted a sabotage bombing, was sentenced Wednesday to from one to five years in prison.

Judge Harold E. Hove, standing on the opinion of a psychiatric board, disallowed arguments that Anthony R. Tankersley, 29, had done an "about face" since a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. pole was bombed in the Berkeley hills Sept. 1, 1968.

"Unfortunately he saw the wrong way to go and ended up this way," the judge commented.

Tankersley and his wife, Susan, 27, fled to Canada after the pole was damaged and police later found a large quantity of exposives, booby traps, literature and a list of San Francisco Bay Area targets during a raid on their home in Richmond.

In arguing for probation, defense attorney Coleman Fanning declared Tankersley no longer believed in violence as a means of gaining revolutionary objectives.

First Step Taken To Adopt Downtown Plan

The Novato Planning Commission last night took the first step officially to adopt the long-awaited downtown plan.

Following a two-hour presentation by consultant Thomas Cooke of San Francisco before an audience of 60 persons, the commission voted 6-0 to recommend that the city council adopt two sections of the voluminous plan — the "overall goals and policies for downtown development" and the "proposed structure of the downtown."

The commission and the council later will set hearings on the Seway and Cooke report's proposals for specific sub-areas, including a major regional shopping center on the Pinheiro property.

No opposition was voiced at last night's discussion, commission member Benjamin F. Edwards reported. Individual landowners, including shopping center owner Richard Nave, had questions about the uses proposed for their specific properties, but the discussion centered more on such problems as financing the downtown proposals and possible development of the Sutter Hills area as a park-apartment neighborhood.

The commission and staff explained that last night's actions carefully avoided "locking in specific areas to specific uses."

The commission, adopted the goals as the probably highest use of the areas involved, Edwards explained today.

Cooke warned the audience that financing would be one of the most important hurdles to overcome. The report extensively outlines various financing proposals, ranging from urban renewal through combined development by city and private holding companies, to individual landowners' efforts.

In another action at last night's special meeting, the commission unanimously asked the county planning commission to postpone action on proposals for an industrial park and mobile home park off the end of the main runway at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Unresolved worries about development in the air safety zone were the main reasons for the delay request, the city planners said. The development, sought by Marvin Soiland of Novato and associates, is on the agenda for Monday's meeting of the Marin County Planning Commission.

SEASHORE

take "a careful look at the wildlife heritage of the Point Reyes Peninsula."

Howard Waite, president of the Inverness Improvement Association, said access to the seashore "should be other than Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through Inverness."

Dennis Teagarden, an associate professor of forestry at the University of California at Berkeley, said "the scale of development must be minimal."

Teagarden said he once had his students create six different plans for the seashore, and they reached the judgment that the public would best be served by a low level of development.

About 30 persons spoke at the hearing called by the park service to get public comment before the master planning began.

John L. Sansing, seashore superintendent, asked that written comments about planning for the seashore be sent in the next two weeks to the seashore headquarters, Drakes Beach Road, Inverness.

When a draft of a plan is completed, there will be another public hearing, Sansing said.

Trans World Airways Vice President Richard Wilson, in Amman to try to free the hijack hostages, returned today to the Inter-Continental Hotel after spending two nights under fire at the American Embassy, which was hit four times by mortars during the fighting.

He said the ambassador had been trying for days to see Hussein but only today an armored personnel picked up the Ambassador and took him to the palace. Hussein said earlier house to house searches in Amman and searches of refugee camps had failed to turn up prisoners.

As the military situation eased, the United States said it was lowering somewhat the level of alert of some U. S. military units which had been told to prepare for possible duty in evacuation of Americans from Jordan.

Meanwhile, at the United Nations, Britain called on the Arab governments today to end the fighting in Jordan and insure humanitarian treatment for all wounded or left homeless in the conflict.

"We are relying on the Arab governments to achieve these minimum objectives," British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home said in a policy speech to the General Assembly.

Also it was reported, President Nixon was clearly more relaxed today than he had been the past few days during the fighting in Jordan, with U.S. forces on alert for possible duty.

The President breakfasted with 63 freshman Republican congressmen and chatted good-naturedly with them and with tourists afterward outside the White House.

He displayed a similar attitude when newsmen were allowed into his office briefly for photographs of a meeting with Yugoslavia's ambassador to Washington, Bogdan Crnobrina.

Military observers in Tel Aviv said the Syrian pullout, although as yet incomplete, decreased prospects for any immediate Israeli intervention in the Jordanian fighting.

However, a call by King Hussein for the Palestinian guerrillas to join his in figthing their common enemy, Israel, drew a sharp reply from Premier Golda Meir.

Speaking to visiting American newspaper editors, Mrs. Meir said "this offers wonderful prospects for Israel, doesn't it?"

In reference to the Middle East peace initiative, Mrs. Meir said Israel "will never go back to the pre-1967 borders" before the Arab-Israeli war.

Mill Valley Youth Group To Provide Bike Repair Shop

The Mill Valley Youth Commission last night directed two if its members to prepare plans for a bicycle repair center.

Commission secretary David Abrahams said he and Robert O'Reilly will develop the plans for the center which will provide space and some equipment for young people to work on their bicycles.

There will be no cost for use of the center facilities, Abrahams said. He and O'Reilly will present their plans to the commission at its next meeting, Oct. 7.

The youth commission also scheduled its second annual John F. Kennedy Memorial Hike for Nov. 1 and tentatively scheduled a Halloween dance for Oct. 31 at the Mill Valley Golf Clubhouse.

Driver Injured When Hit By Bus

A Richmond woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for acute back strain suffered when her car was struck from behind by a school bus yesterday in Highway 101 near the San Rafael viaduct.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Lucy Reed, 46, was stopped in traffic at 9 a.m. when it was struck by a Three R schools bus driven by Laurence G. Clark, 21, of 401 Vendola Drive, San Rafael.

Neither Clark nor 30 school children on the bus were injured.

Two Victims Report Indecent Exposure

Two girls, 13 and 13 years old were victims of indecent exposure about 8 a.m. yesterday at Woodland Avenue and Mariposa Street, San Rafael, police reported today.

The man was described as about 20 to 22 years of age with brown hair, a small moustache, purple and pink shirt with yellow stripes, blue pants and a grey-green coat. After exposing himself, he rode eastward on a bicycle on Woodland Avenue, according to police.

Trustees To Set Uses For Tax Money

Eugene E. Jacks of the San Anselmo School District board told the city park and recreation commission last night that school trustees would set priorities for use of the district's community service tax money.

Jacks told the commission the funds are currently being used for playground and lunch-time supervision at the district's schools, secretary Marge Carroll reported today.

Priorities for their future disbursement would have to be set by the school board, Jacks said.

The city has been attempting to woo the district into parting with more of its funds for joint city-school recreation programs.

The trustees have said they are not against the city's proposal, but wish to develop a comprehensive recreation program with the city before parting with the money.

In July, city councilmen donated part of their salaries for the development of a tot lot at Brookside School. The school district in return agreed to pay half the $1,500 cost of the lot out of the service tax.

A joint meeting among the commission, city council and school board has been set for Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. at Red Hill School to discuss the comprehensive recreation program and the use of the school district's funds.

The plane was flying at 19,000 feet when the incident occurred. The pilot said he immediately made a steep dive to 9,000 feet before making his approach to the Heathrow runway.

Passengers said the lights in the aircraft flickered and tea, coffee and other drinks crashed to the floor.

An airport police officer said later that the hole in the aircraft had been blown in the cargo compartment, a sectioned off area in the first class cabin. He did not know what the cargo consisted of.

He said the hole had not blown right through the skin of the jet, but had splintered the outer panels revealing center struts.

An Aer Lingus spokesman said later that the airliner s captain, J. J. Gallagher, reported a cracked window forward of the aircraft's cargo door.

Assessment Panel To Begin Review Of 844 Appeals

Marin's Assessment Appeal Board will begin weekly meetings tomorrow to review the 844 applications from property owners who want their 1970-71 assessments reduced.

Asst. assessor Herschel Johnson said no taxpayer is scheduled to make a personal appearance at tomorrow's session because the board will concentrate on the 168 cases in which reductions have been stipulated to by the assessor.

The Assessment Appeals Board, headed by Julius H. Selinger, will meet each Friday at 9 a.m. in the Board of Supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

District Votes Four Alarm Boxes

Novato Fire Protection District commissioners voted unanimously last night against undergrounding alarm box wiring on Grant Avenue between First and Seventh streets.

Instead, Fire Chief James W. Kidder said today, the commission approved installing four new radio-control alarm boxes between the Grant Avenue fire station and First Street. High cost of undergrounding wires or changing to radio-type boxes for the rest of Grant Avenue dictated the commission's decision, Kidder said.

The commission also changed its next regular meeting's date from Oct. 14 to Oct. 7, so the commission can attend a meeting on proposed organization of a county-wide fire district, Oct. 14.

AMMAN

barefooted, was still shuddering with nerves. In his state of shock he might have been exaggerating. But it gave a picture of the kind of hell the people in their tiny, crowded houses have lived through.

I glimpsed the bodies of two commandos — both youngsters in blue sweaters and camouflage battledress — lying sprawled against a garden wall.

Nearby, I was told there were 30 or 40 bodies lying in the street. They have been there for days.

Returning to the hotel, I went over to the two armored personnel carriers standing in pools of molten metal. Commando rockets had pierced the armor-plated back door and exploded inside. In the metal wreck were the remains of what had once been men.

Down a side street was a group of weeping men, women and children, still fearful as the sound of gunfire came closer. Along that street they had run out screaming into the night as the bullets made hells of their homes, risking the gunfire rather than be trapped inside.

I crawled back to the hotel.

This was just a small part of the bloody anarchy which took over Amman — the anarchy of the gun. At the hotel, I heard what had happened down the hills towards the old town.

Fifteen commandos were holding out in an alley and in gardens a few hundred yards from the hotel. From a nearby three-story building, children hung from the windows on the second night of the fighting, calling to the commandos to stop firing.

They yelled: "Please do not shoot us — we are only children!" the building was a children's school. The commandos sent a burst of .50-caliber machine gun fire through the children's college — and there was silence.

The army has still not reached those children.

A young Palestinian engineer told me: "I was hiding with my brother on the sixth floor of an insurance building when the army came in and took all our money and jewelry. They stood us up against a wall and threatened to shoot us to stop us telling anyone. The sergeant stood in front of us and begged them to leave us alone because he said we were good men."

The Palestinian said the army trapped eight commandos in another room. When he escaped two days later the commandos were still in the building — all dead.

That, in fact, was my only "outing."

The rest I saw lying flat on my bedroom balcony on the fifth floor of the Intercontinental Hotel as machine guns sprayed walls and windows of the hotel.

Tax Bills In Mail Oct. 19 In Marin

About 75,000 tax bills will be mailed out to Marin property owners and lending institutions during the week of Oct. 19 to 25, tax collector-treasurer Stanley J. Fontez announced today.

First installment taxes for 1970-71 fiscal year are due payable from Oct. 20 and will become delinquent on Dec. 10.

"If any property owner does not get his bill by Nov. 1, he should contact us because he is not relieved of the penalty for late payment," said Fontez. "There's always the chance of a mixup in mailing bills, especially if the property changed hands recently."

Fontez estimated that this year's total property tax collection will exceed last year's $58 million.

Strike Labor Losses Rise Eight Per Cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department estimates working time lost because of strikes across the country so far this year is 8 per cent above what it was last year.

The department said idleness caused by work stoppages was estimated to amount to just over one quarter of 1 per cent of the total time worked in the first eight months of this year. This annual rate the department said, is running at the second highest annual rate in 11 years.

OBITUARIES

Matts Perry Of Sausalito Dies At 67

Mathew J. (Matts) Perry, longtime Sausalito resident and fire chief for 20 years, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital following a long illness. He was 67.

Perry was born and reared in Sausalito and attended the local schools.

His parents, Fred and Alfay Perry were early day Sausalito residents.

Fred Perry was 3 years old when he moved to Sausalito in 1884 with his parents.

The elder Perry, who dealt in real estate, was for many years owner of Perry's Market (now the Caledonia Market) at the corner of Caledonia and Pine streets.

He worked for the Sausalito Fire Department 40 years, 38 years as a paid fireman and two years as a volunteer, and retired as chief in Feburary of 1965. In April of 1966, Perry was an unsuccessful candidate for the Sausalito City Council.

He was a longtime advocate of public access to the bay and also campaigned for the council on a platform which included construction of a new city hall and library. A $560,000 bond issue, passed by voters in June, will provide for both the access and new public buildings.

Perry was a member of the Elks Lodge, Native Sons of the Golden West, Sausalito Lions Club, IDESST, the California State Fireman's Association and a life member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a brother, Frederick J. Perry, also of Sausalito; a stepson, Leonard Jukich of Sonoma and one grandchild.

A Requiem Mass will be offered Saturday at 10 a.m. in Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Sausalito, where Perry was a parishioner for many years. Recitation of the rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Coffees Slated For Smallman

Because of a composing room error, a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal omitted one campaign coffee scheduled in behalf of Robert A. Smallman, candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, and incorrectly listed another.

The story should have read that coffees will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Robert Armington at 39 Wolfe Avenue, San Rafael, and at 8 p.m. Sunday at the home of Jack Nixon, 301 Locust Avenue, San Rafael.

Also, the story said a coffee would be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Marinwood home of Mrs. Robert Banfield at 266 Glagstone Terrace. The street is Flagstone Terrace.

BRUCE WEBER

Bruce Arthur Weber, 49, of Petaluma, a federal poultry inspector, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Born and reared in San Francisco, Weber served in the Merchant Marines during World War II and later owned and operated the Petaluma Egg Ranch in San Francisco for seven years.

He had been employed by American Poultry of San Francisco until 1955 when he became a poultry processing inspector working at Fulton Processing Inc., Fulton, Sonoma County.

Weber, who lived at 3637 Middle Two Rock Road, was a member of Petaluma Elks Lodge No. 901.

He is survived by his wife, Stella; two sons, Bruce A. Weber Jr. of Petaluma and Wayne B. Weber of Whittier; his mother, Hazel D. Sagarini of San Francisco; a sister, Grace N. Weber of San Francisco; a brother, Joseph E. Sagarini of San Jose; and a grandson.

Requiem mass will be offered at 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Petaluma. Entombment will be at Calvary Cemetery. Recitation of the rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma.

MARY UPHAM

Service for Mary F. Upham of San Francisco, mother of Alice Hein of San Anselmo and a former long-time Marin resident, will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow at Daphne's in San Francisco.

Mrs. Upham, 72, died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

She was a long-time employee of the Navy Department, joining as a yeomanette during World War I and later serving in various civilian supervisorial positions until her retirement four years ago. At that time, she worked in San Francisco.

Mrs. Upham lived in San Anselmo from 1933 to 1952, when she moved to San Francisco.

Survivors are another daughter, Marjorie Upham of San Francisco, and four grandchildren.

CARL HEPP

The wife of Carl Hepp, Mill Valley Republican leader who died Tuesday, is Nan Hepp, not Anne, as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal obituary.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON, ROBERT CLARK — In loving memoriam of Bob Wilson, who passed away September 23, 1969. You are loved and missed.

P.A.H.

The Opel Wagon is a small German economy car. But it doesn't perform like one. It performs like a big expensive American car. On the highway. In traffic. Up hills. Steep hills.

Now you can get that kind of performance from a small economy car at a small economical price. $2,356.87*.

A 1900 cc., 102 horsepower, 4-cylinder engine that gets up to 26 miles to a gallon of gas.

A 4-speed, floor-mounted transmission, synchronized in all forward gears (3-speed fully automatic transmission is available).

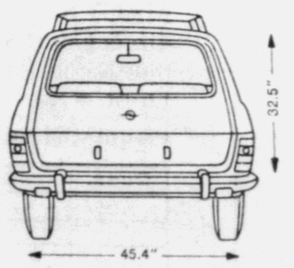
The only thing not small about the Opel Wagon is its load space. 55.6 cubic feet that's easy to get to from the swing-up tail-gate. Plus, a fold down rear seat for extra room.



Where do you find Opels?

They're sold at over 1500 Buick dealerships nationwide. Which also means you have more places to get them serviced than any other imported car. Any other.

Why not see your local Bay Area Buick-Opel dealer today. He has more Opels than ever before.

Burns Ends Last Session, Unruh Exits With Battle

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Hugh M. Burns, affable leader of the state Senate longer than any other man, traded bits of nostalgia with colleagues and then gaveled the Senate to adjournment.

Jess Unruh, former powerful speaker of the Assembly longer than any other man, led a last Assembly floor fight, lost and then drove to a campaign fund raiser.

Both men formally closed their legislative careers Wednesday in fashions highly characteristic of their distinctly different political styles.

Neither will return when the 1971 session of the Legislature convenes in January. Unruh is the Democratic nominee for governor and has surrendered his Assembly seat while Burns will retire after 34 years in the Legislature.

Burns, for 13 years Senate president pro tem before being ousted in 1969 by Republican Howard Way, was invited to preside over a brief adjournment ceremony in which retiring Senators were saluted.

Burns, a husky 68-year-old Democrat, leaned over the podium and said he was "deeply grateful for this honor to come up here and close out the last session I will participate in."

Wearing a bright blue and white checked sport coat, the gray-haired "Senator," joshed that for him the 1970 "session hasn't been so successful."

"The governor shot down 50 per cent of my legislative program," Burns said. "I had two bills and he vetoed one."

Reagan vetoed a Burns bill allowing legislative employes to join the lawmakers' own generous pension system and signed a bill giving race tracks and horse owners another $8.3 million in gambling tax revnue. Unruh failed to win enactment of a single bill during the Burns banged down the gavel on the 1970 veto override session as his final legislative act.

But he quipped to a newsman, "I'm not out of a job yet. I'm going to collect that damn salary right up until January."

As a predule, the tape recorded voice of the late longtime Senate Secretary Joseph Beek was broadcast in the chamber by the Senate's public address system. The tape recording also included Burns' voice as he presided over a session in 1968.

But while the Senate spent an extra 20 minutes saluting the retirees, there was little nostalgia in the Assembly.

Unruh, once known as the "big d addy" of the Assembly because of his political power and physical size, led a second unsuccessful assault on the partial veto by Gov. Ronald Reagan of a Highway Patrol pay raise bill.

"You know this is an outrageous veto that never should have been exercised," Unruh insisted. "You know it's a slap in the face of every law enforcement officer in this state."

Republicans refused to give the former speaker the 54 votes needed to reverse the governor and the override move failed 37-9.

It was the second consecutive day that Unruh, speaker for seven years, lost the override attempt. He unceremoniously strode out of the chamber, presumably for the last time as an Assemblyman.

Unruh headed for a campaign fund raising luncheon and Burns headed for a nearby hotel for the weekly "moose milk" luncheon sponsored by lobbyists.

CHP Association Votes To Sue In Row With Reagan Over Pay

The Assembly Wednesday refused 37-9 to reconsider its earlier 45-5 rejection of Jess Unruh's attempt to override the veto, and Vern Alexander, president of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen, said his group would file suit.

Unruh, Reagan's Democratic campaign opponent in the Nov. 3 election, denounced the veto as "a slap in the face for every law enforcement officer in the state."

Alexander said salaries paid to other police agencies are "way above ours and we should be paid commensurate with these outside agencies."

He said the association's directors have voted to file suit "as soon as possible" based on a government code provision that state workers receive "wages comparable to those prevailing wages outside state service."

The bill by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, would have given the CHP a 5 per cent pay hike in addition to the 5 per cent granted earlier to them and other state employes. Reagan cut the additional amount to 3 per cent before signing the measure.

It called or a $4.1 million raise for 5,600 uniformed patrolmen. Reagan chopped $1.6 million from the total, leaving $2.5 million. CHP salaries come from the Highway Construction Fund.

"All he did was save a half a mile of freeway," Alexander said.

"We can't live on praise any longer," he said in reference to Reagan's frequent tributes to law officers. "We've gotta have money. The time has come now to stop telling us how good we are. We can't eat on praise."

He said the 3 per cent raise still leaves the CHP below 46 other police agencies in the state.

He originally said the state's "tight fiscal situation" forced him to trim the pay raise, but later told his weekly news conference the extra 5 per cent "didn't seem fair" to other state workers.

Study Shows Bald Tire On One-Third Of Cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tire Industry Safety Council says almost one-third of the cars on the highway today have at least one bald tire and probably two.

The council, which is supported by the major tire manufacturers, said it based its claim on a study made by the National Bureau of Standards. The government study defined "bald" to mean a tire with one-sixteenth inch of tread or less and added that bald tires "are 18 times more likely to have flats than other tires."

OFF AGAIN — Peter R. Georges and his traveling companion, Ted, try to hitch a ride out of San Rafael. The pair has been roaming North America together for almost three years. Georges said he has been impressed with the kindness of the many people who have fed, sheltered and transported him and Ted during their journey.

WITH ST. BERNARD

He Gave Away All Belongings To Hitchhike, Follow Christ

By LARRY MOWELL

"Travels with Charley," John Steinbeck's novel about his wanderings with his French Poodle, immediately comes to mind when Peter R. Georges tells of his travels with Ted, a St. Bernard.

But attempting to fit Georges with any kind of label is a tough job. He is a hobo in a business suit, a hippie with short hair, a free spirit who tries to live within the system, a young man who doesn't see a generation gap.

One tag that sticks is wanderer. Georges, 24, was a third-year student at City College of San Francisco in 1967. Living in a penthouse and studying English, he said he was a fairly typical young man.

But "all the smoke and the noise and the tension and all the cutthroat competition finally got to me. I just had to leave," he said.

"I was reading in the Bible about giving up everything you have and following Christ. I gave away everything I had," he said. Between his giveaway and visit to the Independent-Journal this week, he has wandered North America — for the past two and a half years with the dog — meeting people, seeink things and trying to be a follower of Christ.

Hitching rides in Volkswagens, cargo jets, freight trains and even a canoe, he has, he said, traversed most of the United States and Canada —from the Grand Canyon to Harlem and from Hell's Angels hangous to fancy hotels.

He received his early education in parochial schools in Boyes Hot Springs and tries to follow the teachings of Christ, he said.

"My idea is a free thing is when everybody can love; can love God and fellow men. Laws should ideally only keep man from degenerating or going the wrong direction. Most of Christ's laws were very positive," he said.

He said a typical rule of Christ was: if you see a hungry man, feed him.

He said he couldn't live in the mainstream of society now partially because it is not Christian. "If you take the Sermon on the Mount and compare that to our society, it's kind of hard to say they are (Christian). If a hotel says welcome neighbor and you don't have the money, they don't want you there at all. I don't think that's Christianity at all. If people would help each other there would be no need to struggle eight hours a day to survive," he said.

"I'm trying to make me a Christian. Maybe sometimes Christ can be seen in me. I'm not saying I'm a Christian, but I'm trying," he concluded.

While not content to be in the main stream of American life, there is room, he feels, for him to live within the society. "What I'm saying is that people can be free and live in the system despite the hang-ups, the hypocrisy," he said.

He hopes to become a married Catholic priest in spite of the difficulties it would entail. He said he wants to have an open-ended family that might ideally encompass everyone, not just blood relatives.

"I could go out and continue tripping around forever, but unless everybody would come with me, it's no good," he said. Helping others find faith and peace enough to live happily is his goal.

What attracts him to wandering, he said, is that he can bring out the best in people and enjoy nature.

He told of an Alaskan fisherman who gave him Ted, a Chicago policeman who gave him a ride, a drunk who purchased a New York cut of steak for the dog, and a railroad guard who found them in a freight train and invited them to dinner so his children could see the dog.

He said he had stayed in hippie communes and suburban homes and often has slept in the wild. Some of the best moments have been provided by nature, he said.

"There is no reason everybody can't go up and see Yellowstone and the Grand Canyon and the thunder at night," he said.

His junket hasn't been without unpleasantness though. The apathy of people bothers him as do racial tensions and teen-agers beating Bowery bums. He said he has also suffered through chilly winter nights in Alaska and many hungry days.

"Right now I'm the poorest man in America — I don't even take welfare or anything — but I'm richer than 80 per cent of the world," he said.

Petaluma Will Offer Classes In Ballet, Judo

Classes in ballet and judo will be offered starting next month by the Petaluma Recreation and Parks Department.

Judo classes for children ages 6 to 14 will be held from Oct. 1 to Nov. 5 with two one-hour sessions on Thursdays at 5 and 6 p.m.

Another class may be scheduled at 7 p.m. if there is enough interest.

The classes at the Kenilworth Recreation Center will be taught by the Marin School of Self-Defense.

Ballet classes for girls between the ages of 5 and 13 are scheduled from Oct. 5 through Dec. 11 in the multi-purpose room of La Tercera School. Classes will be held at 4:15 and 5:15 p.m. Registration for both classes may be made at the park and recreation department office at Walnut Park.

New Issue In Drydocks Removal

A new legal issue loomed yesterday in the longtime battle by Marin officials to get rid of the four huge wooden drydocks bogged down in Richardson Bay.

Earlier this month, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered the drydocks demolished or removed and the county's public works department is working on specifications so that the job may be let out to a contractor.

Since then, the Board of Supervisors has also toyed with the idea of getting the Army Corps of Engineers to do the job.

However, yesterday, the owner of the drydocks, J. Christopher Roberts, filed an appeal in the District Court of Appeals in San Francisco, claiming that the courts never had jurisdiction over him.

He said that his name was improperly substituted for that of the former owner, the late Delmar D. Wise, at one stage of the proceedings.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest said that the names substitution came after Judge Gardiner's original decision that the drydocks must go was being appealed in the district court.

An attorney for Wise, Frank Peterson, suggested the substitution of Roberts's name as the new owner, saying that he had Roberts's permission. Forest said the county agreed after being assured that Peterson would represent Roberts.

Through his present attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, Roberts now claims the move was made without his consent.

If the district court rules that the name substitution was illegal, Forest said that this would nullify all proceedings by the appelate court, which upheld Judge Gardiner.

The county has been trying for three years to get the drydocks, variously described as an eyesore, a navigational hazard and a potential cultural center, removed.

District Of Columbia To Have Delegate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After 100 years without a delegate in Congress, the District of Columbia will have a nonvoting delegate. President Nixon signed a bill authorizing the step on Tuesday.

Congress abolished all elective offices in Washington in 1874 after there were various forms of self-government for 74 years. The new bill also authorizes a commission to study the efficiency of the city government and report to Congress in a year.

Crusade Leader Urges Better Job Or Face A Pullout Of Charities

"We in the Bay Area have done a lousy job, not as good as other cities in the country," Lawrence E. Hoyt of San Rafael said yesterday at a luncheon kick-off rally for Marin County volunteers for the Bay Area United Crusade.

Hoyt, vice chairman of the 1970 United crusade campaign, gave the warning to approximately 250 volunteers yesterday at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

Unless the volunteers get out to the small businesses and their employees, and homes, the lack of funds will cause individual charities to pull out of the crusade, said Hoyt, vice president of Southern Pacific Co.

"A United campaign is the most effective way to get the most mileage out of our dollars for charity," he said, warning that if other charities pull out, there would be a duplication in cost of collection and distribution of funds.

Hoyt then went on to say that it was hard to spend money well. For example, he said, the Ford Foundation hires experts to study methods of giving away its money to do the most good.

UBAC this year is starting a new program. It will ask agencies to which it gives funds, to make a yearly accounting of these funds. He said he could not see funds going to the Young Men's Christian Association for middle-age buinessmen's reducing program.

Last year the crusade gave almost $500,000 to 31 different agencies, mostly minority groups, such as an Oakland Negro group, he said.

"The true test of our society is to do something for ourselves in addition to and working with government," he said.

The Bay Area crusade goal this year is $16.8 million. This is not divided into countywide goals because large firms collect for the entire Bay Area. The telephone company employees have topped the $1 million mark so far in this campaign, Hoyt said.

Francis T. Fogerty, area director for Marin County, presented guidelines on which agencies will be judged for funding.

These are to phase out agencies that are not now relevant to the present conditions; terminate funding where it does not affect the continuation of a program; reevaluate programs for which the government has assumed responsibility; require agencies to charge full cost of services purchased from them by governmental agencies; charge private clients according to their ability to pay, and require merger of agencies of like programs.

Rotary Honors Mill Valley Man For Degree Work

A Mill Valley man, confined to a wheel chair since a gymnasium accident eight years ago, was honored Tuesday by the Mill Valley Rotary Club on his completion of work toward an accounting degree at Golden Gate College in San Francisco.

Despite paralysis from the waist down, Locati graduated from Tamalpais with his class in 1964. He took a parttime job with Mill Valley public accountant John Finn and enrolled at Golden Gate.

Dr. Russell T. Sharpe, president emeritus of the college, was present yesterday to present Locati with a certificate of completion. He will receive his bachelor of science degree in graduation ceremonies next June, and is now preparing to take the certified public accountant's examination in November.

Petaluma Opens First United Crusade Drive; Goal Set

Campaign chairman Rollan Rea said the funds will be divided among 17 agencies with the full amount to remain in Petaluma, in the case of national and countywide organizations. Heading the Golden Torch division of the campaign is George Tomasini who will be calling on individual residents for contributions.

A donation of $250 or more entitles the donor to membership in the Golden Torch Club.

Chairmen of the Pacesetters division, which includes 40 business firms, are James Ordway and Benjamin Hunt. Assisting as captains are Jack Loomis, Harold Lenhard, James Thompson, Samuel Christensen, Harold Cella and James Bengson.

Member agencies of the crusade are Petaluma Boys Club, Camp Fire Girls, Catholic Youth Organization, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Children's Home Society, Visiting Nurse Service, County Council on Aging, Catholic Community Service, Retarded Children's Council, Drug Abuse Council, Family Service Agency, Big Brothers', Legal Aid Foundation and U.S.O.

Kortum Slates Canoe Trips

Two canoe trips on the Russian River have been scheduled to benefit the political campaign of Dr. William K. Kortum of Petaluma, Democratic candidate in the First Congressional District.

River trips will be held Sunday and Oct. 4 from 8 a.m. to noon at the Bob Trowbridge canoe concession at Asti. Participants may relinquish their canoes at either the Geyserville Bridge or the Alexander Valley Bridge.

Each canoe holds three adults or two adults and two children under the age of 10.

Rights Panel To Try Quorum Again

Marin County Human Rights Commission, which failed to muster a quorum two weeks ago, will try again tonight.

The meeting is set for 8 o'clock in the supervisors' chambers at Civic Center.

Commissioners will discuss hiring a new director and a new youth worker for the human rights department. Former director Austin J. Thompson, resigned last June, and youth worker Horace White resigned last month because he was drafted into the Army.

Teen-Age Dance Set In Petaluma

A teen-age dance sponsored by the Petaluma Roost Club for teenagers will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Kenilworth Recreation Center, Petaluma.

Music will be provided by the jazz-rock group, Twenty Two from Millbrae. The dance area of the recreation hall includes a remodeled stage and additional lighting.

The event will be the first of a series sponsored by the Petaluma Recreation and Parks Department.

Coffee House Reopening Due Study

Possibilities for reopening the San Anselmo Coffee House, which closed its doors in June to its youthful patrons because of financial woes, will be discussed Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church.

Verna M. Fairchild, a member of the committee charged with overseeing operation of the coffee house, said yesterday the meeting has been called to talk with teen-agers and determine if they still have interest in the program.

If so, she continued, means of financing its operation will be discussed.

Mrs. Fairchild said if the program were to start again, it would probably stress arts and crafts activities.

"This generation of high school kids is more creative. They are more interested in using their hands than sitting around listening to music," she explained.

The coffee house, which was formerly the controversial Third Rail, closed because the church could no longer afford to budget the director's salary.

"We have received $1,000 from the county for programs," she said, "but the church is having to cut back on all its programs" because of lack of money.

The coffee house, which is located in the basement of the church at the corner of Ross Avenue and Kensington Road, was closed once before in October, Mrs. Fairhcild explained.

"We reopened it about Christmas under a new format," she continued, "but we just weren't able to find the leadership for the programs it offered."

She added that the format was based on art, music and outdoor activities, but that it eventually slipped back to the music and talk atmosphere of the Third Rail.

"The kids were able to cover the cost of the food they ate," she said, "but they couldn't cover the cost of two adults to chaperon the program or the policeman we hired to watch the outside."

She suggested that if the program starts again, membership fees may be collected to offset operation expenses.

Henry Hall Break-In

A burglar entered the Henry Hall School at 29 Lakeside Drive, Corte Madera, sometime between its closing Friday and opening Monday and stole a $25 camera and $5 in cash from the desk of kindergarten teacher Beverly Cooper, Larkspur police have reported.

Parent-Teacher Boycott Ends

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The parent-teacher boycott at Sir Francis Drake elementary school ended Wednesday after school officials said the hiring of a black principal would be given high priority.

The parents and teachers at the Hunters Point area school demanded that dilapidated buildings be repaired, a black male principal be hired and that the school be given more campus aides.

Teachers and parents met separately Wednesday and agreed that all teachers and pupils return to class Thursday morning.

Rift Nearly Destroys Proposed Sewer Study

By JEFF GREER

Marin Municipal Water District directors yesterday nearly shelved proposals to form a special assessment district for a $190,000 study on the district's proposed takeover of sewage services for Southern Marin.

But they heeded a plea to wait until Oct. 14. William Hargreaves, chairman of the Southern Marin Sewer District Advisory Committee, said this might give time to bridge the deep rifts in the committee that were revealed at yesterday's two-hour hearing on the assessment district.

During the debate, the city of Belvedere and the Tiburon Sanitary District formally demanded exclusion from the special district. Richardson Bay Sanitary District demanded answers to questions about the proposed study. A Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District spokesman said his district did not want to give up its present system for a single district idea because "Sausalito would have to pump everything uphill."

"My first inclination (over the dispute) is to say, 'forget it,'" and let the districts "live in their own filth and sludge.

"This district was asked to set up the assessment district, and I want that real clearly understood. This is not a power grabbing agency . . . either this group works together . . . or you're going to go down the tubes together."

"I resent your attitude," said Douglas De La Fontaine, advisory committee member and director of the Richardson Bay district. "Before this committee was formed, Richardson Bay (district) was a leader; all of a sudden you are calling Richardson Bay a stinker.

"We do not want out (of the assessment district) — we want in," De La Fontaine said. But he criticized lack of a voice in how the study would be done.

"I'm not going to throw my taxpayers on the mercy of you or the MMWD," het old Seeger. "The MMWD is you."

He complained that Seeger had shunned advisory committee meetings when the Richardson Bay district sought to question the study plan. When Seeger explained that Hargreaves and committee member Jerome Hauke of Mill Valley had suggested he not appear at the sessions, De La Fontaine branded the committee members' action "Presumptuous."

James Murry of the Tiburon district argued that his and all of the other Southern Marin districts should be dissolved, and an areawide district created. He said he opposed forming the assessment proposal as "a taxing district on top of the existing taxes" of his own district, and said the assessment procedure is "an evasion of the democratic process."

County Supervisor Michael Wornum agreed that "we have a plethora of special districts," but pointed out that the county had asked MMWD to make the one-district study. He argued against exclusion of any areas from the assessment district.

John F. Barrows, executive secretary of the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission, said his agency "has been barraging" the water district for five years to serve as a focal point for areawide sanitary service. He said its acceptance of the role would save at least 17 months over any method of setting up a single Southern Marin agency. He opposed any exclusions from the assessment district.

Roger Jones, engineer for the Bay Region Water Quality Control Board, also urged the assessment district action, stressing state deadlines for Southern Marin to be included in a regional planning system. If a state bond issue passes in November, he predicted, the one-district study may get up to 80 per cent financing.

Water district chairman R.G. Anderson said, "I don't know . . . I hoped we could come up with an answer today, but maybe we should dump the whole thing." Board member Jordan L. Martinelli first proposed to table the assessment district, then agreed to a three-week postponement to allow Hargreaves to seek unity among the advisory committee.

Innocent Pleas To Deer Stalking

Four men, one of them district director of the U.S. Immigration Service, pleaded innocent yesterday to citations issued for stalking white deer on Point Reyes National Seashore lands Aug. 16.

The plea came in West Marin Justice Court, where Judge David R. Baty continued the case until Oct. 7 for a decision on whether a jury trial will be held.

Cited under a state Fish and Game Code statute that prohibits carrying weapons on lands closed to hunting are Cecil W. Fullilove, 51, of Greenbrae, director of the San Francisco immigration office; Dr. Millard R. Ottinger, 77, of San Rafael, a retired physician and former Point Reyes landholder; Douglas G. Adams, 26, of San Rafael, realty broker, and James R. Aman, 31, of Point Reyes Station, truck driver.

Lines Transposed In Payroll Listings

In yesterday's Marin District Attorney's payroll listings, two lines were transposed, listing incorrect titles for two employees.

Propane-Driven Trucks Work Well For Water District

Marin Municipal Water District's latest contribution to the ecology scene — conversion of two district trucks to run on propane fuel to cut smog —is working well, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger told district directors yesterday.

The trucks were converted in the district shops three weeks ago at a cost of $245 plus eight man-hours each. They are performing on a par with similar gasoline-powered trucks, Seeger said.

As a result, the board voted to contract with Buck's Gas Service of San Jose to lease a 1,150-gallon propane storage tank at $50 for a six-to-nine-month trial period, and to buy the gas from Buck's at 14 cents a gallon.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

PIPE PURCHASE — Ordered a stockpile of water line of various sizes from American Pipe and Construction Co. for $77,646.95. Two bids were received.

TRESTLE GLEN — Postponed decision to Oct. 14 on contract to install 700-plus feet of 16-inch main in the Alto-Tiburon line, when both of two bids submitted were in excess of the $10,000 allowable on short-form, non-advertised contract work.

BIDS — Called for bids to be opened on Oct. 14 for relocation of a 12-inch main near San Quentin and for construction of a bridge and water main, estimated to cost $47,000, across a slide area on Pine Mountain tunnel access road.

CORROSION — After Seeger reported that three years use of magnesium anodes on pipeline had cut corrosion leaks by half, ordered $5,910 worth of anodes from Standard Magnesium, branch of Kaiser Chemical Co., low among six bidders.

MEADOW CLUB — Asked an invitation be sent to Meadow Club directors to attend the district board's Oct. 14 meeting, to discuss lease conditions for district land used by the club.

BOND ISSUE — Approved a policy statement and brochure in connection with district's Proposition H, an $11.5 million-bond issue sought for new construction, replacement of aging lines, and other needs. The election will be Nov. 3.

LITIGATION — Received a check for $3,404 from the American Pipe and Construction Co. as the district's latest share of court-ordered payments on a pipe overcharge. Also approved negotiation with a San Francisco attorney to represent the district in suing over possibly overpriced concrete meter boxes.

AGREEMENTS — Approved pipeline extensions for Kappas Yacht Harbor, Northgate Shopping Center Unit Two, and Roundtree Unit Two, Marinwood.

California Added To Indian Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Pitt River Indians amended their $5 billion broken treaty damage suit Wednesday to add the State of California to the list of defendants.

Indians, who contend large stretches of land were taken from them illegally, had named the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and three Shasta County officials as defendants previously.

When gold was discovered on the land "white miners and settlers proceeded to remove Indians from their land, making them homeless vagrants," the suit contends.

"The state helped this process along by refusing to enforce its laws to protect Indians and also denying them access to the courts," the suit adds.

Skyjack Plan Gets Committee's Nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's plan to put 2,500 air marshals in the sky to thwart hijackers appears headed for certain congressional approval before Congress adjourns. Equally sure of enactment is the tax on airline passengers to pay for it.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved the measure Tuesday. The House could pass it next week and the Senate soon after.

Balloonists' Spokesman Holds Hope

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for three balloonists missing in the North Atlantic says he thinks they're safe and that searchers "haven't looked in the right place yet."

Peter Dean, flight manager for the "Free Life" balloon project designed to cross the Atlantic, said Wednesday, "That balloon is too big to get lost."

Rodney Anderson, 32, a commodities broker; his television actress wife, Pamela Brown, 28, and British balloon pilot, Malcolm Brighton, 32, have been missing since Monday about 500 miles off Newfoundland when they reported they were going down in a rainstorm. They left East Hampton, N.Y., Sunday and traveled 800 miles before radioing at 7:05 p.m. Monday they were in trouble.

The search effort continued through the night Wednesday with more than a dozen planes and three ships criss-crossing more than 100,000 square miles of the North Atlantic.

"The gondola could be swamped but it couldn't sink," Dean said. "I think they're floating somewhere. The searchers just haven't looked in the right place yet."

Improved weather and visibility Wednesday buoyed the hopes of the air-sea searchers looking for the adventurers who had hoped to float from the United States to Paris and set a world distance record.

"I'm tired and the search is long," Capt. Rod Dodd, commander of one of the Canadian Argus aircraft participating in the search, said Wednesday night. "We have just finished a 17-hour flight . . . but it's not as rough as it is for the people down there."

To Eye Finances

The Marin County Housing Authority will discuss its financial status at a special meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in the authority office, 429 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Three Firms Are Accused Of False Detergent Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has accused three leading manufacturers of falsely advertising that their enzyme detergents remove all stains and dirt from clothing.

The complaint was issued against the Procter and Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, makers of Gain, Biz, and Tide XK enzyme detergents; Colgate-Palmolive Co., New York, which makes Punch, Axion and Ajax; and Lever Brothers Co. Inc., New York, makers of Drive, Ensolve and Amaze.

Gerald J. Thain, the FTC's acting assistant director for food and drug advertising, said the nine brands accounted for 99 percent of the enzyme deteregent market.

The FTC's proposed consent order stipulated that for one year after the order becomes final, if it does, the firms should disclose clearly and conspicuously in advertising and packaging "the particular types of stains likely to be found in fabrics subject to home laundry cleaning which the product cannot reasonably be expected to remove."

The proposed consent order is the first step in FTC proceedings against allegedly false ads. Without acknowledging guilt, the companies can sign the order, agreeing to stop the ads and follow the FTC's proposed rules for future advertising and labelling.

Tanker Truck Spills Gasoline At Station

About 200 gallons of gasoline were spilled at a San Anselmo gas station Tuesday when a customer's car ruptured a filler spout connecting a tanker truck to an underground tank.

Firemen used 1,800 gallons of water to wash down the gasoline that escaped at 2:32 p.m. at the 1535 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard station operated by John Young.

ASHES, HOPE AND DETERMINATION — Only ashes remain where the $60,000 home of John H. Tarman stood before this week's brushfire disaster in the Oakland-Berkeley hills .T a r m a n and three of his children inspect the ruins, vowing to rebuild on the site. Tarman hopes his $80,000 loss will be at least half-covered by insurance. (UPI Telephoto)

Hippies Win Respect By Helping Fight East Bay Fire Disaster

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Because of volunteer help in a disastrous fire, "straights" in the Oakland-Berkeley area are looking with newfound respect on previously unloved, long-haired hippies and street peope.

The "kids were working themselves to death," policeman Arthur Roth declared when the 250-acre fire was stopped after destroying 39 homes and damaging six others. "They did a damn good job."

"I arrest these kids all the time, but no more," he added.

"We had 250 to 300 so-called longhaired people," said Lt. J. B. Foster of the Oakland Fire Department. "They really put out."

"I've taken a dim view of them, but they were sure here . . . when we were in a bind."

Youngsters — armed with shovels, hoes and wet burlap sacks—swarmed out of nearby Berkeley and the University of California Tuesday to battle in brush and tinder-dry grass to put out the blaze which the American Insurance Association estimated will cost up to $3 million.

"These young people deserve to be complimented. They come in for a lot of criticism . . . but they often deserve much better, especially when they have helped save lives and property."

Frank Finney, Oakland Tribune news editor whose house was in the hilly area overlooking San Francisco Bay, wrote:

"Swarms of teen-agers and college kids—beards, shaggy locks and all—were in the area, helping immeasurably. They grabbed heavy hoses and helped firemen lug them up and down steep slopes. They carried dogs, cats and canaries to waiting cars. Many had brought shovels and they spread out below and above the houses, digging fire breaks and slashing away at burning brush."

One hippie, he recalled, "Huddled in poison oak with a fireman below the house of artist Felix Ruvolo. It was a hot, dangerous spot, but they staved off the flames until a borate bomber splashed a load of chemicals along the hillside and finished the job."

Among the longhaired was a man who identified himself as Patrick Yippie, 22, a photographer for the Berkeley Tribe, an underground newspaper. Asked why so many hippies volunteered, he said: "Most street people don't work, so we can easily volunteer."

Stan Gibbons, 25, a graduate law student at the university, led a group of 25 volunteers to the rescue of a home.

"If it gets into those trees, there's no hope," he shouted as flames approached. The volunteers beat back the blaze.

Another volunteer was Bruce Wong, 20, an undergraduate. "I woke up about 10 a.m. and saw all this brown smoke in the sky," he said. "So I picked up my girl friend, Vicki Chow, and we came with shovels as quickly as we could." Many hitchhiked to the blaze in the hills.

Oakland Fire Chief James J. Sweeney, who also praised the help from youngsters, said the fire was "man made" and been "either carelessly or deliberately set." There has been no arrest.

Hayward Strikers Maintain Plant

HAYWARD (UPI) — Striking city employes said today they would maintain a skeleton crew at the Hayward sewage treatment plant, but would extend their picekting to municipal building projects.

The United Public Employes Union, Local 390, started its strike Wednesday, demanding a bigger say in the city's personnel policies, including a grievance procedure and representation on a safety board.

Wages are not the issue, said Dean McKinley, the union's field representative.

Firebugs Worry Highland Residents

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

This week's disastrous fire in the Oakland-Berkeley hills intensified fears of residents of the Fairhills-Rafael Highlands-Sun Valley area of San Rafael, who have been in constant worry over fires since early June.

On June 3 at 7:07 p.m., the San Rafael Fire Department was summoned by alarm boxes being pulled almost simultaneously at Fifth Avenue and K Street, Fifth Avenue and Happy Lane, and California and Humboldt a v e n u e s. They found flames and smoke rising from grass and weeds on the Sun Valley slope of San Rafael Hill.

That was the first of a series of fire alarms in that area that now total 28. All of them, believe police and firemen, have been set.

In s e v e r a l cases, firemen have found two or more unconnected spot fires blazing — clear evidence, they contend, of incendiarism.

Most of the blazes have been s t o p p e d before they burned more than small spots — because of prompt response by f i r e m e n and the increasing watchfulness by residents as the fire series continued. A few have spread to two or three acres. All have menaced homes in the area.

The series, as shown on the fire department log, runs like this (the streets listed being those from which the alarms came, with the fires being always in open lots or fields):

June 3 — California and Humboldt avenues, Fifth Avenue and K Street, Fifth Avenue and Happy Lane (all for the same fire).

June 4 — Chestnut Avenue and Fair Drive (two fires in same area).

June 14 — California Street and Windsor Avenue.

June 16 — 44 Windsor Avenue, second fire off Valley View Avenue.

June 26 — Fifth Avenue near California Street.

June 30 — 2100 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 1 — Valley View Avenue and Fairhills Drive.

July 4 — 2200 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 10 — 2200 block of Fith Avenue.

July 17 — 2200 block of Fith Avenue.

July 19 — 2100 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 31 — 2400 block of Fifth Avenue.

Aug. 13 — Ridgewood Drive.

Aug. 19 — Los Altos Drive.

Aug. 21 — Fifth Avenue and California Street.

Aug. 22 — California and Humboldt Street; second fire, Forbes and Chestnut avenues.

Aug. 24 — Windsor Circle; second fire, Maywood Way.

Aug. 25 — 2200 block of Fifth Avenue.

Aug. 29 — Chestnut Avenue.

Aug. 30 — 44 Windsor Avenue.

Aug. 31 — 400 block Forbes Avenue.

Sept. 1 — 400 block Forbes Avenue.

Sept. 9 — Humboldt and California streets.

Sept. 16 — 33 Windsor Avenue.

Fire investigators think seven fires on the opposite side of Fifth Avenue, from the Racquet Club Estates to East Crescent Avenue, may have been part of the same series. The first of these was on June 6; the latest, on Aug. 27.

Three fires set simultaneously near the end of Quarry Road on July 24 may also have been the work of the same firebug, in the belief of Battalion Chief Robert H. Rogers.

The fires follow a pattern. Times of the alarms run from dusk to after 11 p.m. In most cases, boys have been seen in the area shortly before the fire is sighted, but are gone by the time it breaks out.

San Rafael police, believing the blazes to be the work of juveniles, have questioned several suspects, but there has been no arrest.

Meanwhile, Sun Valley, Fairhills and Rafael Highlands residents have become habituated to sitting near windows, looking out frequently for the tell-tale flick of flame or billow of smoke which may mean another menacing fire.

Woman Injured In Bridge Wreck

A Berkeley woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with neck and back strain suffered in a two-car accident on t h e San Rafael-Richmond Bridge Tuesday morning.

The patient, Bertha Mack, 53, was a passenger in a car driven by Alfred Armstrong Jr., 46, of Berkeley, which was stopped in traffic when it was hit by a vehicle driven by Angelina M. Coronado, 40, of San Jose.

The California Highway Patrol said Armstrong and two other passengers in his car, Gloria Armstrong, 37, and Mary Alexander, 40, both of Berkeley, said they would see their own doctors for neck pains.

Hot Winds Fan Fires; More Feared

GARBERVILLE (UPI) — Hot, dry and windy weather plagued firemen today as they fought an uncontrolled blaze that has blackened more than 3,000 acres in Northern California's redwood covered mountains.

Fires "are going to give us a lot of trouble in the next day or two," a State Division of Forestry spokesman declared as 400 men battled the blaze with 70 trucks and two aerial tankers.

The biggest fire is in the Clark Buttes orea, 12 miles northwest of Garberville and 210 miles north of San Francisco, near the Pacific Ocean.

But also causing trouble were smaller timber and grass fires in the area.

A grass fire south of Zenia in southern Humboldt County caused the evacuation of five families. A five-acre brush fire at Whale Gulch in the same area destroyed a hippie colony's quarters.

No cause has been determined for the Clark Buttes fire which broke out Tuesday.

South of San Francisco, seven trucks, two bulldozers, and 83 men were used to put out a 13-acre brush fire west of Woodside.

There was no injury and no structure was threatened in that coastal range blaze.

Kenton's Third Marriage Ends

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The three year marriage of bandleader Stan Kenton, 58, and his wife, Jo Ann, 39, was dissolved Tuesday in Superior Court.

The decree was granted after Mrs. Kenton testified to irreconcilable differences between the couple.

Kenton was ordered to pay his wife $34,000 alimony over a 30-month period and 50 per cent profit from two movies he has made. It was the bandleader's third marriage.

Bench Warrant Set

A bench warrant with bail set at $3,500 was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Warren Harden Allen, 26, of Oakland, when he failed to appear to enter a plea to a charge of credit card forgery.

Allen is accused of attempting to purchase clothing with a stolen credit card Sept. 7 in a Sausalito shop.

House Votes To Cite Arnold In Contempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to cite Arnold S. Johnson, public relations director of the U.S. Communist Party, for contempt of Congress because he refused to answer a committee's questions about an antiwar group.

The case was sent to the Justice Department to be taken to a grand jury, which will decide if Johnson should be brought to trial. Johnson refused June 11 to testify about the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

The U.S. census of 1820 showed a population of 9,638,453.

Volunteers are encouraged to work in their home communities and receive academic credit for work approved by the program's faculty adviser.

Board Voices Protest To 102-Unit Plan

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board last night registered its protest to development plans for a 102-unit apartment off Seminary Drive in the Strawberry Cove area.

Board president Douglas De La Fountaine said the board directed a letter be written to the Marin County Planning Commission opposing the plans of developer Paul J. Broman.

The planning Commission will consider Broman's application for approval of the master plan and precise development plans Monday, De La Fontaine said.

He said the board based its protest on past poor experience with facilities constructed on bay mud as well as on its stated intention to limit the flow of sewage into the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District System.

The board last night also agreed to hold a special meeting, date to be determined, to review its position concerning the Marin Municipal Water District's plans for a Southern Marin sewage system.

The female sapsucker bird has a scarlet crown and white throat.

Greenbrae Veto On Special District Idea

The Greenbrae Property Owners Association last night agreed not to establish a special services district for architectural review powers and maintenance of Greenbrae's public areas.

Instead, the association will continue — when it takes over Nov. 1 — to operate under the same procedure as the current custodian, Schultz Building Co., Beth M. Reilly, association secretary, reported today.

Schultz's legal obligation to maintain the public areas ended the first of the year. The firm had set a deadline of Nov. 1 and asked the association to take over maintenance. The areas to be maintained include street divider strips and the landscaped entries to Greenbrae.

The association, at its July meeting, accepted the offer and discussed establishing a special services district, Mrs. Reilly said.

But last night the association's board decided to continue with the setup established by Schultz. Schultz has been collecting between $10 and $15 per year from each of Greenbrae's 1,200 families. The amount totaled about $14,000 a year, Mrs. Reilly said.

She said the board rejected the idea of a service district because it would have only two months to forward paperwork to the county for formation of the district. Also revenues would not become available for maintenance until after July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Last night's decision was partly the result of an offer from Merle Collins of Greenbrae to handle the maintenance bookkeeping Mrs. Reilly said.

The board accepted the offer and voted to offer Mrs. Collins a seat on the association's board of directors. A seat has been vacant since the resignation of Director Robert A. Geurts who moved from Greenbrae, the secretary said.

In other action, the board also appointed Kermit Steeg of 44 La Cumbre to head a committee to study billing.

Mrs. Reilly said the board estimates billing by mail may cost as much as 50 cents per family for administrative costs of the program. This amount, she said, would come from the maintenance charge, and so the committee will study more economical means.

Supplies Stolen

Automobile supplies valued at $280 were taken from the back of his station wagon between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. yesterday while it was parked in his carport at 550 Canal Street, Apt. 17, San Rafael, Jerold Tomaszak reported to police.

Treehouse Project Causes Five Arrests

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing stolen property was James Warren Black, 19, of 876 Greenberry Lane. He was held in lieu of $2,500 bail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Four 16-year-olds, Mark Alan Wheeler of 860 Flaxberry Lane, Christopher Lea Morton of 854 Greenberry Lane, Matt Wallace Fenn of 823 Greenberry Lane and William Lindley Swenning of 600 Blackberry Lane, were booked into Juvenile Hall.

Sheriff's deputies said that the youths had taken two by fours and plywood from a construction project at 275 Miller Creek Road and they also had three metal signs taken from Miller School parking lot.

Copter Service Announces Marin Flights To Continue

Helicopter service to Marin County will continue "on what we hope will be a permanent basis," Sam Kagel, court-appointed trustee for San Francisco-Oakland Helicopter Airlines, announced today.

Earlier this month, Richard C. Lovern, general manager for the airline, had said service to Marin and Berkeley, continued when SFO halted service to San Jose and Palo Alto Aug. 14, was in jeopardy because of a lack of passengers.

At that time the routes, which need a daily average of approxifately 175 passengers to break even financially, were averaging 100 per day.

"The response to our efforts to keep this run and these heliports alive has been most encouraging," Kagel said, "and a very substantial growth in passenger traffic justified continuation of this service."

He said the passenger count had risen "in an encouraging fashion," with as many as 220 passengers carried by the company on one September day. An average of over 165 persons has been established," he added.

"This type of growth pattern —and its maintenance — insures the Berkeley-Marin route will continue to operate," according to Kagel.

The nine year old airline — said to be the only one of its kind to operate in the U.S. without federal subsidy — filed for bankruptcy in late July. At that time the U.S. District Court appointed Kagel trustee to administer the economically-troubled airline.

Concurrently, the company asked the civil aeronautics board to approve a temporary halt in service to Marin and other Bay area cities. But a week later, in response to community pressures to retain the service in Berkeley and Marin, SFO decided to drop only its routes south of the San Francisco International Airport.

The company, which uses the Richardson Bay heliport north of Sausalito, flies 20 flights daily from the airport to Berkeley and Marin.

Hearing Set For Terra Linda Youth

A preliminary hearing has been set for Oct. 6 in Marin Municipal Court for David Mathew Sliney, 18, of Terra Linda, who is accused of burglarizing an office in the Del Prado building in Northgate Aug. 3.

He is also to appear in court Oct. 2 to see if his case is acceptable to juvenile court.

Sliney was arrested after he reportedly tried to pawn a typewriter in San Francisco.

Marin Shows Hike In U.S. Bond Sales

The sale of $141,384 in savings bonds was reported in Marin County in August, up from $132,465 the previous month, according to the Treasury Department.

Total sales in August 1969 reached $138,880. The sale of $1,052,802 in bonds was reported thus far this year, down from $1,182,713 for the same period in 1969.

Japanese Using More U.S. Wheat

ASTORIA, Ore. (UPI) — Because Japanese have found new uses for fish, the wheat growers of Washington and Oregon have been helped.

Dave Crawford, who directs Oregon State University's Seafoods Laboratory here, said the Japanese have processed fish ham and fish sausage, which are hot-selling items in that country.

As a result the Japanese are using more wheat flour in bread to go with the sausage and ham. Most of the wheat Japan uses comes from the Pacific Northwest.

Two Quentin Inmates Due Freedom Back In Custody

Two San Quentin Prison inmates who vanished while out on three-day passes — although they were soon to be paroled — have been caught hundreds of miles away from the prison, Associate Warden James W. L. Park said today.

Duane M. Rogers, 37, who failed to return Aug. 17 was arrested Friday in Los Angeles on an auto theft charge, Park said.

Vance Burns, 22, also missing since Aug. 17, was caught yesterday by authorities in El Paso, Tex.

Rogers, who already was on work-furlough to a Sonoma County ranchjob, was due to have been paroled next Monday. He was winding up a term for second-degree burglary in 1965 in Orange County with exra time for escaping from a state prison facility at San Bernardino in 1968.

Burns would have been paroled last Monday after being sentenced for six months to five years for attempted grand theft in Sacramento County in 1968. He had been given a pass to visit family in San Francisco and seek work, Park said.

Both are to be returned to San Quentin.

Group Again Complains On Traffic Issue

The Alto-Sutton Manor District Association will again file a complaint with the California Highway Patrol regarding vehicles stopping for hitchhikers at the East Blithedale Avenue interchange of Highway 101.

The association's board had previously asked for a no-stopping sign in the area.

Sara S. Ruffner, association publicity chairman, said the highway patrol had been checking the area for stopping vehicles, but had ceased its extra patrol.

The association board agreed again last night that vehicles stopping for hitchhikers are a serious safety hazard.

The Alto-Sutton Manor District Association board also:

SPEAKER — Agreed to invite a representative of the Marin Municipal Water District to the board's next meeting, Oct. 21, to explain the water district's November bond issue.

TRAFFIC — Voted to ask the city of Mill Valley to install a stop sign at the intersection of Lomita Drive and Shell Court near Edna McGuire school.

REFUSE — Leanred that the Mill Valley Refuse Co. will conduct two free refuse pickups in the area, the first on Oct. 22-23 and the second some time next spring.

Rec Panel Proposes A Pre School Program

The Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission last night drafted another proposal on the town's winter recreation program.

It recommended the town council establish a one-day-a-waeek program for preschool children in addition for programs already approved for students aged 10 to 14, secretary Marilyn Wilson reported today.

The town council on Monday approved allocating $5,000 for programs for the 10-to-14 age group, which was the recommendation of its recreation director, Jacqueline Branch.

However, at that meeting, park and recreation Commissioner Shirley A. Walker protested that the recreation director's program had not been discussed by the commission.

The council responded time was short and funds were not available for a program the commission had recommended earlier. Therefore they were going along with Mrs. Branch's proposal.

Last night, however, Mrs. Branch proposed yet another program to the commission, Mrs. Wilson said.

It would reduce the 36-week program approved by the council to 30 weeks and would include a program for preschool children. The total cost of the revised program is estimated to be below the $5000 approved by the council, Mrs. Wilson said.

The commission said, in making its recommendation, that the preschool program should include volunteer help from mothers so it does not turn into a free baby-sitting service.

The commission also received a report from Mrs. Branch that 27 fee supported adult recreation programs for this winter have already been filled.

Sun Studied For Space Power

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A system that will harness the power of the sun to keep a large space station running for years is being studied by engineers.

A contract worth about $2 million to design and test the largest "solar array" in the world has been awarded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to Lockheed Missiles & Space Co.

A solar array is a sheet of photovoltaic cells which convert solar energy into electricity. Lockheed must build and test one 30 feet wide and 90 feet long to evaluate how well it can perform in space.

Alquist On Stump In Area Wednesday

State Sen. Alfred E. Alquist of San Jose, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, will meet with voters at two Marin County Shopping areas next Wednesday afternoon.

His first appearance will be at 4 p.m. near Hayden's Store in Marin City, followed by one at 5 p.m. at the Corte Madera Shopping Center. It is his only scheduled campaign appearance in Marin, his Marin supporters reported.

Republicans Claim Registration Boost

The Marin County Republican Central Committee's "registration round-up" netted 2,023 new registered party members for the November general election, chairman Rodgers C. Broomhead has reported.

The special drive was conducted in the last week of August and the first 10 days this month.

The party had 45,287 registered for the June primary election, compared to the Democratic total of 41,989.

The committee, in its regular monthly meeting Tuesday in the Civic Center, elecier John Schmitz of San Rafael to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Charles Schwab, who moved out of the county.

FTC Trained Team Working On Rate Facts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Federal Trade ommission said yesterday it has eight trained investigators working in the Bay Area to enforce compliance with federal interest-rate disclosure laws.

Ray Lloyd, senior FTC attorney in charge of the San Francisco area, said the operation has been in progress for the past three months.

The law provides that actual interest rates be printed on contract business forms.

CURRENT PROBE

Sodergren said the current investigation is two-fold: It covers a number of specific complaints and also is giving broader coverage in selective areas, even when no complaints have been filed.

"The major thrust has been against stores," Sodergren said. "But we now have gone into the field of automobile dealers, both new and used, and into finance companies."

Sodergren said that nearly 70 department stores in the area already had been subject to investigation, including women's and men's specialty companies.

A WIDE FIELD

"But, at the same time," Sodergren said, "our investigators also are covering such fields as home improvement loans, pawn brokers, correspondence schools, collection agencies, employment agencies and appliance dealers."

Results of the survey never are immediate, Sodergren explained.

"There are times when we find violations and the specific concern agrees to correct the situation," he said. "Then, there are cases in which the firm disagrees with our finding and wants to make a contest. But all cases are submitted to Washington where eventual disposition of specific cases are assigned back to the field."

Kaye will play as solos the Sonata in A. by Domenico Cimarosa and Gavotta by Allesandro Scarlatti.

Grape Festival At The Civic Center

The 71st annual Sunny Hills Grape Festival will be held Oct. 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Marin County Civic Center grounds.

Although the earliest records of the Grape Festival are missing, the Sunny Hills administration knows that it began in 1899. In 1903 the tradition of holding it the first Saturday in October began, along with the establishment of a site on the grounds of the Kent estate in Kentfield.

Mrs. A. E. Kent donated a portion of the family vineyard for the benefit of Sunny Hills. Profits from the grapes sold were given to Sunny Hills, which in those days was an orphanage and farm. The festival continued at the Kents for 43 years. In later years, as guilds were established and the number of volunteers grew to more than 900 the site of the festival changed to include the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and the Northgate Shopping Center, where it was held until this year.

The Sunny Hills Home also changed. Today it is a residential treatment center for adolescents with severe social adjustment problems.

Also involved in preparations for this year's Grape Festival is a group of 20 San Rafael High School students, the Interact Group. The group's purpose is involvement in community projects, and after attending meetings with the festival committee, members built and painted frame supports and awnings for the festival, which will benefit boys and girls their own age.

Items for sale at the country-fair style festival include clothing, food, toys, rummage and gift items. There is also an amusement area for children, staffed by the members of the Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary.

Not As Many 'Naked' Women Next Summer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Not as many women are going to take off their clothes in public next summer.

Although Catalina was showing more girl and less suit in its designs for Spring 1970, most of the beach-wear manufacturers were keeping the customer covered up.

Cole of California told fashion editors attending the California Fashion Creators annual press week here that nakedness was no longer news, and its was returning to a more down to earth, realistic approach to swim wear.

Although every designer had a selection of bikinis, there was a general trend back to the one-piece suit, with some even adding short or long sleeves. There were lots of suits with flouncy skirts for women with less than perfect figures.

And most of the suits came with very covered up accessories to wrap the swimmer from head to toe when she climbs out of the surf.

After all, if women really drop their hems to mid-calf this winter they may feel somewhat shy about baring their bodies on the beach next summer.

Suits came with coordinated caftans, ankle length beach coats, tunics, fringed ponchos which doubled as skirts, and ankle length sarongs.

Many of the wraps were fancy enough to use as hostess costumes.

There were some new fabrics for swim gear—panne velvet, an acetate combination which looks like suede, and clothbacked vinyl for a leather affect.

Sea Fashion of California had a three-piece suede vest set with a bikini worn under the cowboy style vest.

Catalina had a sleek cotton backed vinyl wet-look bikini with a short slicker to wear over it.

Bill Blass Swimwear, for those with better than average figures, featured a long sleeved maillot suit buttoned up the front with silver buttons, topped with a long wrap skirt in polyester jersey.

Tricia Is Romancing As Her Mother Plans Refurbishing

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tricia Nixon is expected to be enlisted by the Republican National Committee to do some campaigning this fall, but a schedule has not yet been worked out.

Tricia, 24, is a firm exponent and defender of President Nixon's programs and views.

But blonde, blue-eyed Tricia has been concentrating on the romantic department lately, spending just about every weekend with Edward Finch Cox, who will be 24 next month.

Tall, blond Cox, a New York socialite, is going back to Harvard Law School where he has a couple more years before he gets his degree. He often stresses that his brother, Howard Ellis Cox Jr., 26, is also single, indicating that his elder should march down the aisle first. And he will.

Howard Cox and Julie Bolton Dempsey of Cleveland, who graduated from Wellesley College and made her debut in 1964, will be married in the fall. Tricia and "Eddie" flew to Cleveland Sept. 5 to attend his brother's fashionable engagement party.

The Cox brothers' social leader mother and their blonde sister Mazie, a Tricia lookalike, are featured in a "mother daughter" role in the magazine, Town and Country.

TRICIA AND Edward Cox have spent several weekends together at the White House this summer as well as at Westhampton Beach, L.I., his summer place. He is an excellent sportsman, but looks elsewhere for a tennis partner. Fragile Tricia does not go in for rugged sports.

Last month, Cox, his brother and Howard's fiancee were Tricia's guests at San Clemente.

First lady Pat Nixon says above all she wants to see the White House "spic and span." Lately, the White House formal rooms, viewed by hundreds of thousands of tourists, have been looking a bit dowdy.

The wall coverings in the red, green and blue rooms are beginning to fade. The upholstery fabric in the parlors looks worn and threadbare.

With the expected approval of her Committee for the Preservation of the White House, Mrs. Nixon is expected to forge ahead with the long needed refurbishing of the mansion.

There has been a hesitancy on the part of first lady successors to make any changes since Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis's White House redecoration project.

But Mrs. Nixon has decided to make the red room and the blue room more authentic and true to their original shades on the theory that each first lady is mistress of her own domain and can improve on the past.

The first lady has gone out of her way to make visitors feel welcome at the White House. Whereas tourists were previously sidetracked to a side door, they now come through an elegant reception room at the east entrance.

She also has transformed part of the theater into a reception room for visitors on the east side of the house, which includes the military office and the first lady's official bailiwick.

Mrs. Nixon also is in the habit of giving a surprise treat to groups of early morning tourists. An early riser herself, she often will come down to personally greet a special group following their tour of the White House.

Many such groups are teachers and women with whom she can relate. She tries to make them feel at home in the White House, a place she admittedly still holds in awe.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

High School Kids Ecology Is Too Much Of A Hassle For Parents

DEAR HELEN:

Last spring our school started a group called S.A.F.E. (Save Air For Everybody). A few weeks later we formed two more groups: H20 — Help to Overcome (water), and S.O.S. — Save Our Soil.

The object is to open people's eyes to pollution and start them working to eliminate it. Our projects include awarding plaques to companies who do something to cleanup the air or water; and selling buttons with the above initials on them. The money we make will go toward obtaining movies on pollution to show publicly; and for clean-up projects.

At first people kind of laughed at us, but now they're buying our buttons. We try to explain as we sell, and it gets easier selling all the time.

I was very proud of the way so many kids volunteered to help. Then it happened. I brought home a few of the anti-pollution pamphlets we had printed and my mother flipped. Though she is usually understanding, she said she was tired of this pollution bit, and if we had to watch every little thing, stop burning leaves and agriculture lands, buy glass bottles and go to the trouble of returning them, etc. well, it was just too much of a hassle. I had answers for her, but couldn't explain without getting mad and making her madder so I decided to write to you, Helen. Here goes:

I read about a woman celebrating her 100th birthday. At the rate we're going, no one will live half that long in the future because of lung troubles, cancer, bronchitis and other bad air and water-caused diseases. If people lived to see their grandchildren, they'd have to explain to them what the sun is, because they'd never have seen it for smoke.

Who wants to wear gas masks all their lives? Isn't it worth it to go to a little more trouble — like plowing under weeds instead of burning them, and turning leaves into compost, and re-using bottles — if we can live longer and happier lives?

DEAR W:

People are getting less close-minded every day, and it is organizations such as your which help shine the light into dark places. Keep promoting, but don't expect an easy victory. Your mother's attitude is like that of many individuals and industries who think anti-pollution is just great — until it makes them work harder, or spend more money. — H.

P.S. Congratulations on your education-action program. I'll bet by this time, your parents are on your side, too. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I opened a box of crackers today. First there was the cardboard box, then a big heavy plastic bag, and inside of that were four individually wrapped packages of crackers. It happens with cereals too — all those separate wrappings inside wrapping. They're a big nuisance, they don't keep food you use up fast that much fresher, and think of all the extra waste to burn, plus making the product a little more expensive. Maybe people think that little bit of extra paper makes no difference, but when you multiply it by a million packages — wow! Pollution time.

Why doesn't industry come off the fancy packaging kick. Burned paper causes enough smog, but burning plastic gives off poison gases, too. — AWARE

DEAR AWARE:

Why don't you (and others) write to those excess wrapping companies and complain direct? You'd be surprised how fast public opinion changes policies. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottle in care of the Independent-Journal.

Smaller Variety Of Vegetables In Stores

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USDA's consumer and marketing service reports that food shoppers this weekend will find a smaller variety of vegetables and fruits as most harvests are ending their seasons. But most meats are in generally good supply.

Meat counters will offer ground beef, rib, round and chuck roasts and a choice of beef steaks. In pork, there are good supplies of bacon, Boston butts, hams, roasts and spareribs. Broiler-fryers will also be in good supply, and some markets will offer turkeys.

In the vegetable line, potatoes, cabbage, carrots and onions will be abundant, and in fruits, apples, grapes, canned fruit cocktail and dried prunes will be excellent choices.

Foods listed on USDA's plentiful foods list for September shoppers are canned peaches, canned applesauce, split peas and peanuts and peanut products.

There are few wholesale food price changes this week in West Coast markets.

Beef ribs and loins are lower.

Pork loins are higher, whole Boston butts and spareribs are lower.

Among the fruits and vegetables in best supply are apples, bananas, grapes, melons, watermelons, artichokes, green cabbage, onions and potatoes.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Tosca' Successful In Second Round

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Puccini's "Tosca," which opened the San Francisco Opera's 48th season, suffered through illness the loss of the French dramatic soprano Regine Crespin in the title role. But in its second performance last night it was evident a strong cast of principals is carrying it through successfully.

Dorothy Kirsten may not be a great Tosca in this role created as a vehicle for the immortal Sarah Bernhardt in the play on which the opera libretto is based, but she gives a much better performance than I had expected. And it is appropriate that she should have the honor of opening the season this year since it is the 25th anniversary of her debut with the San Francisco Opera.

Her voice, her appearance and her grace of movement are remarkable after so many years.

As Tosca's artist lover Cavaradossi the Rumanian tenor Ludovic Spiess unleashed a ringing, powerful voice to match his giant frame; yet it was capable of lyrical subtleties in the aria "Recondita Armonia" in Act 1 and the moving aria "E Lucevan Le Stelle" in Act III.

The really polished performance of the evening was that of the American baritone Cornell MacNeil as the elegant but evil chief of police, Baron Scarpia. He not only had a powerful voice in a wide spectrum of vocal color but was a master of the art of character creation through facial expression and gesture.

The second act in which he is murdered by Tosca, was from every standpoint a consummate theatrical achievement, and Miss Kirsten sang beautifully the opera's most famous aria, "Vissi d'Arte."

Most impressive vocally of those appearing in minor roles was the Belgian Jose Van Dam, leading bass-baritone of the Berlin Deutsche Oper, making his San Francisco debut in the roel of the political prisoner Angelotti. One looks forward to hearing him sing Escamillo in "Carmen" next week. Baritone Renato Capecchi put his flair for comedy to good use as the Sacristan, adding the only humor in the grim tale.

In his San Francisco debut, conductor Carlo Felice Cillario directed skillfully, but in his efforts to enhance the most dramatic moments musically sometimes allowed the orchestra to cover even the big voice of Spiess.

Stage direction by Lofti Mansouri was logical and heightened the drama for the most part, and sets and costumes in Acts I and II were oppulent. There was some odd unmotivated lighting in the first part of the stark third act prison scene, and Tosca's death leap from the parapet was anticlimatic without the shock it should have.

There is a possibility that Crespin will be able to sing in the performances Saturday and on Oct. 4 and 9. Kirsten and a different cast will sing in performances on Nov. 22 and 28.

Spock Urges Use Of System To Gain Aims

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Dr. Benjamin Spock, famed baby doctor and outspoken critic of the Vietnam War, says students should avoid violence and achieve their aims by "working through the system."

Discussing "Dissent and Social Change," Dr. Spock told a gathering of about 2,500 University of Hartford students Wednesday that, "When the system fails to respond to all normal means and channels, then you must become more dramatic in your tactics.

"You know that the majority of the American people do not give a damn about granting equal rights to blacks, poor people, and other minority groups," Spock said, but added, "I will work within the system for change."

The author of one of America's most noted books on child rearing, whose 1968 conviction on charges of counseling men in draft evasion was overturned by a federal appeals court last year, said he didn't believe a violent revolution is possible in the United States.

"I am opposed to all forms of violence," he said. "Throwing rocks through bank windows and calling police pigs only gives the government the excuse to become more oppressive," he said.

Spock encouraged the students to work dramatically through the system and predicted that a third party he is helping to organize will boost a candidate for national office by 1972 as "a dramatic lesson to the American political system."

Doctors Will Split Heart Study Prize

NEW YORK (UPI) — An American and a British physician who were among the first to recognize high blood pressure as a disease leading to heart attacks and strokes will split the 1970 $50,000 Stouffer Prize for leadership in heart research, it was announced Wednesday.

Dr. Irwin H. Page, 69, of Cleveland and Sir George Pickering, 66, of Oxford University and former president of the British Medical Association both were cited for their leadership in cardiovascular research and their fundamental discoveries in physiology.

Page told a news conference called to announce the winners that he did not believe heart transplants were the present answer to heart disease. He said the use of artificial hearts was an even more distant prospect.

He said he would choose arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteris) as the disease most in need of attention because it leads to attacks and strokes and "because there are many encouraging leads that need to be followed."

Yet basic research was not being done, Page said.

"We are being lulled to sleep by the curious bit of logic that heart disease will be abolished by 'blue ribbon committees,' 'task forces' and legislative 'assaulting' and 'attacking, . . . the heart attacks an strdokes that are the lot of 53 per cent of the people," he said.

WHERE THE TALL CORN GROWS

Maria Zitelli of San Rafael gazes skyward to the top of her corn patch wondering when it will stop growing. Some stalks have reached 20 feet, she said yesterday admiring the plants at her home at 58 Marina Court Drive. This isn't sweet corn she explained, but rather hominy corn which grows higher. But never has she seen it grow this much higher, she added.

Though Snatched, Posh Bus Ruled Too Heavy For Roads

That Mercedes-Benz bus snatched away from Marin Transit Systems on Monday was too heavy to have operated legally in California, it has been learned.

The Independent-Journal reported yesterday that the bus had been repossessed by Mercedes-Benz, a point later disputed by both the Marin City-based company and by Mercedes-Benz.

Theophus Barron Jr., president of the transit company, said that he had asked the German manufacturer to take back the bus because he discovered belatedly that it was too heavy to conform to California weight limits.

A spokesman for Mercedes-Benz readily conceded the bus was overweight by California standards, but said that his company had assumed that a waiver had been secured by Marin Transit Systems. "That is the carrier's responsibility," said Hans Von Wasmer, manager of Mercedes-Benz's San Francisco zone.

He stressed that the bus conformed to engineering standards that assured its safety. The state limits the weight on each axle to 18,000 pounds, plus an allowance of 2,500 pounds for standing passengers. The weight of the rear axle on the disputed bus was 22,040 pounds, he said.

Von Wasmer, a resident of Tiburon, objected to the word "repossession." He insisted that "in no way was it a 'repossession,'" but rather was "an expiration of lease."

He then added that "we chose not to renew because of arrears in payments." He said that Marin Transit Systems was "substantially" behind in its payments on the first six-month lease, which expired last Friday.

The lease payment was $4,500 for six months, Von Wasmer said, but he declined to say how much still was owed.

(Webster's Third International New Dictionary defines repossession as "the act of resuming possession of property when the purchaser fails to keep up payments on it.")

Barron also mentioned last Friday, but said that was the day on which his company asked Mercedes-Benz to take back the bus because of the overweight axle.

Barron did not say when he learned about the overweight axle, but told the I-J that he had decided to return the bus "before the highway patrol found out. We figured it just was a matter of time before they came to that fact, and we didn't want any more trouble from the highway patrol."

Barron also disputed the report from the sheriff's office that the Mercedes-Benz representative could not find the bus at fisrt. Barron said it had been parked at the sheriff's substation in Marin City.

Still unanswered was how state officials police restrictions on weight limits. A spokesman for the highway patrol said the patrol generally assumes that manfacturers conform to the state's weight limits, and checks buses for weight only when there is suspicion of a violation.

The $53,300 pride of Marin Transit Systems' four-bus fleet was used on its Mill Valley run to feed the Tiburon ferry. The company also leases other buses.

The disputed bus left on Tuesday for Mercedes-Benz's North American headquarters in Fort Lee, N.J. The 48-passenger luxury coach had air-conditioning, AM-FM radio, reclining seats and individual reading lights.

The company has received $34,000 in county subsidies through Oct. 15, and has been promised an additional $51,000 in county subsidy for a six-month extension of its service to Novato.

Special Meeting

The Strawberry Recreation District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. today at Strawberry Point School. Chairman Arthur R. Senter said the open meeting was called to discuss possible litigation, but declined to specify what the litigation concerned.

Sonoma State President Gets Hearing

The State College Board of Trustees took no action yesterday on the appointment of Earl W. Jones as president of Sonoma State College, leaving the faculty and students wondering at least until next week.

While the trustees did not discuss the Sonoma State presidency in open session, the board did meet with Jones privately.

Jones said today he would make a full report on the statu of his presidency in a letter to the faculty on Monday and would not comment further before then.

Prior to the meeting in Los Angeles, faculty and students said they feared that Jones's appointment would be made permanent, thereby bypassing the deliberations of the campus presidential selection committee.

A faculty petition to the trustees requested that no president be permanently appointed until the campus committee could make a recommendation.

Marin City CSD Executive Is Fired; Audit Of Books Ordered

Harold Brooks — executive director of the Marin City Community Services District who last week submitted a resignation effective Sept. 30 — was fired last night and an immediate audit of the district's financial records was ordered.

The firing of Brooks was expected after he verbally lashed out at the district board in his resignation Friday, but the audit was not.

The audit was ordered after it was disclosed to the board that Brooks had spent $120 even though expressly forbidden to do so by the district board.

"If he can play those kinds of games with $120, then there's no telling what he might have done with other district funds," said board member Doreatha Mitchell in calling for the audit.

The board learned last night that Brooks had refunded the $120 to a Richard Cook, who had posted the money as deposit for rental of the Manzanita Center for a dance in July which never took place.

Brooks, the district's meeting minutes show, requested in August that the $120 be refunded but the board voted not to refund the deposit. Last night's financial statement of the district showed that Brooks had done so anyway.

The board also last night voted to withhold, if legally possible, Brooks's final paycheck until he repays the $120 to the district.

The board was scheduled to authorize the advertising for a successor for Brooks at last night's special meeting, but held off after setting another special meeting for Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Manzanita Center to discuss the job description.

In his resignation, Brooks charged that the district board had not given him any support and that it had not hired any of the people he had recommended for positions.

Mrs. Mitchell said last night that the charge was "factually untrue."

"He (Brooks) never even brought any people before us," she said.

Brooks, who was not at last night's meeting, was scheduled to remain on the payroll until Sept. 30 and board members and persons in the audience noted that he hadn't even been in his office in the past week.

Brooks, in his resignation, said that the board had failed to support him on many matters.

"In the last two months, the board has not acted on a single recommendation of mine," he said. "This has made my job impossible. Without support for my programs and plans, I cannot accomplish anything."

His chief job was to seek and implement economic development for Marin City.

Charge Of Gun Threat Is Dropped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A charge of threatening a store clerk with a shotgun has been dismissed in municipal ecurt against a Sausalito man because the district attorney's office was unable to locate the victim to prosecute the case.

Freed was Gerald Harris, 27, who had been accused of threatening an employee of a North Beach radio repair shop on July 5. Police said Harris and a companion had intended to steal a stereo amplifier to replace one he said had been stolen from him.

Failing to find the equipment he wanted, police said, Harris allegedly fired a shot into the ceiling.

Sportsmanship Needed By Athletes—And Parents

We don't hear much about sportsmanship these days. Maybe we should hear more.

Sportsmanship is cheering the opposing team for a brilliant play — or a victory. It is playing fair. It is "taking your lumps" in good grace. It is modesty in victory and good humor in defeat.

Sportsmanship seemed lacking this week at a meeting of the Tamalpais High School District board, when Gordon W. Pusser, father of two Redwood High School cross-country runners who were dropped from the team last year for long hair, again raised the issue of rules on length of athletes' tresses.

The cross-country and soccer squads, Pusser told the board, are not willing to comply with the haircut rules. Therefore, he contended, the rules should be changed.

THAT GAME has been played, and Pusser and the long-haired athletes came out losers.

The issue was first raised by Pusser at a Tam High District board meeting on Oct. 16, 1967. His sons at that time had haircuts which conformed to the coach's regulations. But Pusser said the hair length rule was discriminatory. The board, and Principal Donald Kreps, upheld it.

Pusser subsided for awhile. But on March 3, 1969, he again appeared before the board to protest grooming rules for athletes. He said 55 of the 56 members of the Redwood High track squad had signed a petition against the hair rules. He threatened to bring suit to prevent enforcing the regulations.

(How much Pusser had to do with obtaining those 55 signatures, we do not know. Athletic Director Robert J. Troppmann said Pusser had urged the athletes to stand fast against the rule.)

The protest just simmered that spring, while Pusser collected support. Soon after school opened in the fall of 1969, he was back before the board — this time with other parents to support him — to again challenge the rule and set off what became known as "the great hair controversy."

FINALLY, HE MADE good his threat to sue. His two sons and several other youths involved in the dispute were entered as plaintiffs in a suit against the high school district in U.S. District Court in San Francisco in February of this year.

Judge George B. Harris heard testimony, and on March 10 upheld the school grooming rules for athletes.

"The record is barren of any evidence . . . that this was an arbitrary and capricious decision," wrote Judge Harris. Requiring a haircut for participation in athletics did not infringe a youth's constitutional rights, he held.

At this point, sportsmanship would seem to call for Pusser to yield gracefully.

But no — he was back this week, with the same old complaint.

WE SUGGEST that Gordon Pusser be a good sport and allow the high school district to devote its attention to matters that are, after all, much more important to education than the length of an athlete's hair.

We don't hear much about sportsmanship these days. Maybe we should hear more.

Passage, Signing Of Mulford Bill Affront Public's Right To Know

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — How a seemingly intelligent governor, concerned over the right of the people to know, could have signed AB 981, by Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Oakland, is puzzling.

Not only did Gov. Ronald Reagan sign the Mulford bill, but in doing so, issued a press release which was deceptive if not wholly incorrect concerning the content of the measure.

THE GOVERNOR said "There have been numerous attempts in California by revolutionary groups to completely disrupt the activities of city councils and other public bodies. This law provides a reasonable method of insuring the orderly conduct of the public's business.

"I believe that this bill provides local authorities with the means they must have to continue to conduct the business of public agencies despite the efforts of revolutionaries to disrupt them in extreme situations, while at the same time protecting the public's right to know by insuring the presence of the news media at these sessions."

All of which is something of a stupid conclusion, as there appears to be plenty of law on the books to enable authorities to arrest individuals for disturbing the peace in disrupting public meetings. Or felony charges of inciting to riot.

While the Mulford law says the legislature believes it's in the public interest to allow duly accredited news media representatives to attend sessions from which the public has been excluded because of a wilful disturbance, there still remains in the law a provision that the press can be excluded if the public body wants it that way. The governor failed to call this to public attention when signing the bill.

The chairman of a meeeting is responsible for maintaining order, and he can call the proper authorities if it happens to get out of hand. And he could do this despite the Mulford law.

The Mulford bill appears to be a deliberate attempt to control the sources of information to the public, a measure which could be used to the detriment of democratic and open government.

However, Mulford swings one Republican vote, which is sorely needed by the Reagan administration to maintain a precarious majority in the assembly.

Whether the governor thinks that by signing AB 981 he will swing the trend to Mulford is questionable, but at least, he shows his heart is in the right place by making a puny effort to try.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Propaganda Trick Of Association

It is an old propaganda trick to associate those you don't like with an unpopular group, regardless of how silly it is. For instance, Spiral T. Corkscrew has coined the term "radical-liberal" for people he disapproves of.

The nonsense of this term becomes clear once one gets by the confusion caused by the way people sometimes sound. To a conservative, a radical and a liberal can sound much alike in the concerns they find important in the world, but the difference is that a radical usually tries to use these issues to justify drastic social change (a fancy way of saying "revolution") while a liberal attempts to correct these ills to ensure the stability of society.

Thus a liberal is a radical's worst enemy as he is constantly cutting the ground out from beneath him. On the other hand, the neanderthal right with their purple prose (a la Agnew), their rigidity, and their skull cracking are the radical's best friends for they create an endless supply of issues, causes, and martyrs. Perhaps our illustrious V P is an overaged agent in the pay of the Weathermen.

Here Is What's Happened To Parents

Most sincere congratulations for the editorial of Sept. 18 — "Question for Americans: What's Happened to the U.S.A.?" — a reprint from John S. Knight of Knight Newspapers Inc.

To quote and comment: . . . "Where indeed are our leaders — the Parents of our youth, the educators and the great body of law-abiding responsible citizens?"

This last question is indeed pertinent. And the answer comes immediately to mind as follows. . .

The parents happened to be the very first generation of child-bearing citizens to become victimized by the (at that time) new fraudulent fad of child-raising according to the great Freudian theory of permissiveness and nondiscipline. They were admonished by the head-shrinkers advocating this theory that to restrain the child, or to discipline him in any manner or for any action, regardless of how perverse, — would cause him to become "inhibited. . ."

The younger group of present-day teachers being the product of the same unfortunate era (up to possibly 50 per cent) are prone to submit and go along with the "modern" anarchy. . .

We now have the school psychiatrist to whom Johnny is sent when he creates an outrageous infraction of schoolroom discipline, and the poor lad comes away back to class in a state of doubt and wonderment, — whereaz 30 years ago he would come back from the principal's office with his behind just a little sore from a caning and settle down in his class with a much improved respect for discipline in the class-room.

So this is the way it is. This is what has happened to the U.S. It is not good.

More Publicity Would Aid Ecology

It seems to me that the Marin County ecology-conservation efforts would be greatly assisted if the collection stations for recyclable materials were publicized. I suggest that you make this information a regular feature of the I-J.

Hardly The Way To Effect Economy

Your editorial on two-man sheriff patrols on Sept. 16 has a lot of food for thought. However, I don't know how the people of Marin through the board of supervisors can deny two-man patrols to the sheriff's department when most other law enforcement agencies have recognized the necessity of this and have implemented such programs. Volunteer citizen patrol is an interesting concept and I think should be pursued also. In the final analysis, though, there are so many ways to effect economy in our local governments, exposing our police force to potential great bodily harm or death is hardly the way or the place to effect economy.

Youngster Upset About Long War

The war is very exacksperating to me. I am very young and I am a little worryed about Camboedia and the war. Because by the time I get marryed Mr. Nixon will draft my husband and all the women will be sad and upset, while Mr. Nixon will be drafting our husbands from their home or shop. Some people will agree and some will not, but I still think that Mr. Nixon is not doing his best. The war is very exacksperating.

Israeli Self-Defense Strike Could Explode Whole Mid-East

WASHINGTON — The headline of tomorrow or day after may well be: "Israel Planes Hit Egyptian Missiles in Canal Zone." A pre-emptive strike on the SAM-2s and SAM-3s, moved so close to the canal, is what top policymakers in the Nixon administration fear most, since they believe it would trigger an explosion throughout the entire Middle East.

Israeli intelligence knows exactly where these missiles, which were pushed forward during the standstill agreement, are. A powerful faction in the Israeli government is said to be convinced that only by striking quickly can Israel's long-term security be assured.

With the Middle East crisis at the peril point, the oversimplified wiew is that the only participants involved are on one side Israel and the United States and on the other side Egypt and the Soviet Union. The truth is that nations far and wide — certainly those in western Europe, Japan, the oil-producing states of the Middle East — have a large stake in the outcome.

UP TO 80 per cent of western Europe's oil comes from Arab countries. More than 90 per cent of Japan's petroleum comes from the Middle East.

Top Nixon policymakers are irritated by the reluctance of nations with such a direct stake in the Middle East to take any part in helping to resolve the crisis. While they lie doggo as the crisis deepens, in private they complain of the imbalance of America's approach. Privately, too, they play footsie with the Arab states, trying to make it clear they are detached from the American position.

DURING THE Arab-Israeli six-day war in 1967 about 55 per cent of the normal oil flow was shut off with the closing of the canal and the pipelines across the transit country. M.A. Wright, chairman of Humble Oil and Refining, testified before Sen. Philip Hart's anti-trust subcommittee about how the world's tanker force was mobilized to send Western Hemisphere oil to Europe to make up the difference. And even though the long haul around Africa meant a loss of 50 per cent effectiveness, there was no rationing anywhere.

This could happen again, although whether for a long pull is questionable. But, if credence can be put in the warnings coming from throughout the Middle East, oil is not the first concern. The lives of all American citizens, even in such normally conservative countries as Saudi Arabia, would be in jeopardy, and American property virtually assured of destruction. When the United States was about to announce a decision on whether to send more Phantom jets to Israel, Aramco, the American company in Saudi Arabia, is reported to have asked both the White House and the State Department for one week's advance notice if the decision would be for immediate compliance with Israel's request. This would give the company time to evacuate all American personnel.

NOT ALL Arabs are as fanatical — as mad — as the Syrians. A repeated assurance has been that the Arab states would never shut off oil to the West, or not for very long, since they would have no other place to sell it and, therefore, no other source of hard currency. This overlooks, however, the mass fanaticism stirred by incessant hate propaganda even in such conservative states as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

This is a major reason for the restraint with which the Nixon administration is proceeding. The situation in Jordan bears some resemblance to that in North Korea when the Communists seized the Pueblo and its crew. The outcry was for rescue by American intervention. But no one knew even where the Pueblo crew was held and intervention would almost certainly have meant their death, as American action in Jordan would doom the hijacking hostages and the lives of most Americans caught in that civil war. These are the terrible choices the administration faces as passions intensify.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By ROBERT CRABBE

When the Bamboo Curtain fell along the 38th parallel in Korea at the end of World War II, it parted husbands from wives, brothers from sisters, parents from children.

They can't visit each other, or even exchange letters, and there is no end in sight to these personal tragedies.

THE CONCRETE is frozen hard around divided Korea, because the leaders of the free enterprise South Korea and Communist North Korea have no possible grounds for compromise.

Beyond that, the great powers have accepted the partition of Korea, no matter what they say in public. The United States and the Soviet Union are determined not to risk a nuclear showdown over Korea.

The Russians know the United States will fight to keep South Korea out of Communist hands. Washington knows Russia would not tolerate a takeover of the north by the American-oriented government of South Korea.

Communist China wants such a war only if the United States and Russia fight it. Peking doesn't wish to get involved again.

THE DETERMINATION of Washington to live with the status quo has become even more apparent in the last three years.

The United States withheld military action when North Korea grabbed the USS Pueblo in January, 1968. It sat tight again when the North Koreans gunned down a U.S. Navy intelligence plane in neutral air space in early 1970 with the loss of 31 American lives.

American forces in South Korea are to be cut back from an authorized strength of 64,000 men to 44,000 by the middle of next year.

U.S. officials in Seoul are confident the South Korean Army now can defend the country, with American air support.

While preparing to furnish about $1.5 billion in new equipment to South Korea's Army, the United States keeps the keys to South Korea's air defense in its own hands. One reason is to discourage the South Koreans from striking at the North on their own.

THE INSISTENCE of South Korean President Park Chung Hee that the north is girding for another invasion of South Korea gets little credence in the U.S. establishment in Seoul. U.S. officials say the Russians and Chinese are too preoccupied with each other to stir up the North Koreans. And they reason that North Korea cannot conquer the South alone.

North Korea has been run for 25 years by the chairman of its Communist party, Kim Il Sung. Its foreign aid and its trade are mostly with Red China and the Soviet Union.

The south is led by an exsoldier, Park Chung Hee, who has turned to the United States and lately to Japan for aid and investment.

Communist Kim has no future in a capitalist Korea. President Park, who has worked closely with the United States, has no future under Communism.

The prospect is for empty seats at Korea's family reunions for a long time to come.

Suppose They Rated Marin Boards The Way They Rate The Movies

A week or so ago there was a story about some Stanford University students who had the gall to rate Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board members on performance and attitude.

It would be interesting if governmental bodies in Marin were subjected to the same sort of review, but that takes a lot of time and effort.

So, for an impromptu experiment, let's see how it might go if they were reviewed in the manner of the I-J's motion picture guide.

FAMILY

Ross Town Council — A sterling struggle by four men and a woman to keep their community as it is, with Mayor Frederick S. Allen as the central character; staunch defense of single-family zoning; limited commercial appeal.

Novato City Council — Five men in search of a shopping center, flanked by the city planning commission.

ADULTS AND TEENS

Marin Community College District Board — Caught between students who want things their way and taxpayers who don't want to pay any more; hoping for another campus while trying to keep the Kentfield campus operating; reaches dramatic peaks when students storm meetings, otherwise routine.

Larkspur — Story of a city up the creek faced with becoming a wildlife refuge while its arch-rival, Corte Madera, seeks to capture the lucrative ferry terminal.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say adults only)

Sausalito City Council — Modern tale of tourists versus residents, complicated by battle between council and merchants over downtown parking; features colorful audience participation led by Sally Stanford, full-length meetings, but never past closing time at Paterson's bar.

ADULTS ONLY

Fairfax City Council — Sequel to the "Friday Night Fights," known as the "Monday Night Fights;" strong on audience participation; suspense centers around city administrator job; strong dialogue by Robert R. Souza and Francis J. O'Connell.

Marin City Council — Uphill struggle by blacks to get ahead in a white world without money or power; dialogue based on theme of "tell it like it is;" lively comments by Thelma McKinney and Mary Brooks.

San Rafael City Council — An underground saga featuring the reconstruction of sewer lines with the Regional Water Quality Control Board as the villain; mystery surrounds fate of courthouse square.

What Silly Ideas People Have About Role Of Insurance Firms

WASHINGTON — There has been a rash of automobile insurance cancellations lately by the major companies, and everyone is very nervous about it. The other day my wife was notified that her auto insurance policy was being canceled. The notification gave no reason for the cancellation, and since my wife had not been in an accident or had ever made a claim, she was perplexed.

She asked me to get to the root of it and I took the next plane to visit our insurance company. The company is housed in a 56-story aluminum and tinted glass skyscraper on a 30-acre shopping plaza overlooking most of the state of Connecticut.

I arrived on the 35th floor where one made inquiries concerning canceled insurance policies. After browsing through the company literature, which told how insurance was making America great, I was ushered into the office of Clyde Featherstone.

I GAVE Mr. Featherstone the cancellation notice and he clucked once or twice and then disappeared. He returned in a few moments with the folder.

"What did my wife do wrong?" I demanded.

"Then why did you cancel her insurance?"

"Because of Trembling and Trembling, her insurance agents."

"Trembling and Trembling?" I said.

"YES," SAID Featherstone, going through the folder. "They've been very naughty boys, very naughty indeed."

"Did they steal any money?" I asked.

"Worse! They've written too many policies this year that people have made claims on. We've had to pay out $1,897 to Trembling and Trembling clients in the last 12 months."

"But what's that got to do with my wife's insurance policy? She didn't get any of the money."

"Ah, but since you are with Trembling and Trembling you are now considered a bad risk. Their record is your record."

"THAT'S NONSENSE. I hardly know Trembling and Trembling," I protested. "I wouldn't recognize them if I saw them on the street. This is guilt-by-association."

Featherstone smiled. "You came to us through Trembling and Trembling and you will leave with Trembling and Trembling. This company will not put up with people who make insurance claims against it."

"But that's what you're here for," I said. "To pay people off when something happens."

"THAT'S A FOUL lie," said Featherstone, losing his smile. "We're here to build buildings and real-estate developments, and finance ships and airplanes and ball parks. If we keep paying out claims, where would we get the money to construct this 56-story building with its beautiful shopping plaza and underground computer center?

"Do you realize," said Featherstone, "that every dollar we pay out in a claim is a dollar we have to take away from our advertising budget which tells the public what wonderful insurance people we are?"

"I appreciate all that," I said, "but surely you have to pay some claims in order to stay in the insurance business."

"THAT'S WHAT Trembling and Trembling thought," Featherstone said, as he tore up my wife's folder.

I thanked Featherstone for his kindness and understanding. He got up to shake my hand. "If you're staying in town for dinner we have a great restaurant on the roof garden which is bringing us 15 per cent profit a year."

Jail, Probation Given In Holdup In Mill Valley

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday sent Paul Robert Reynolds, 21, of no known address, to jail for nine months.

He also placed Reynolds, who had earlier pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from a holdup in a Mill Valley residence, on probation for two years. He ordered Reynolds, also, to get and keep a job when he leaves jail.

Reynolds and two other men were charged with forcing their way into the home of Kenneth M. Stevens, 21, on July 11 and robbing Stevens and two guests of $1,235.

One man, Roy Morgan Jr., 22, of Marin City, is awaiting trial and a third has not been found by authorities.

Makeup Of Pacheco School Is Reported As Improved

Last year's periodic racial imbalance at Pacheco School in the Novato Unified School District, apparently has been solved, a district official said today.

Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley said addition of a kindergarten class at the school and extension of the walking area for pupils have brought more civilian population into the classrooms.

Last year, the school was almost entirely filled by Air Force youngsters from Raphael Village, many of them members of minority races. Enrollment fluctuated widely as families were transferred to and from Hamilton Air Force Base, Modley explained. Addition of more pupils from civilian families this year levelled out the changes and made the school's racial balance more like that of other Novato district schools, he said.

At the time Pacheco School's racial imbalance was reported last December, the law was that no school's minority population should be more than 15 per cent above the district-wide average. Although military transfers altered the Pacheco School balance by as much as 6 per cent a month, minority enrollment at Pacheco often was 25 per cent above the district average, Mobley recalled.

The 15 per cent rule has been scrapped, Mobley said.

The actual percentage makeup of all Novato district schools will not be known until about Oct. 9, Mobley said, when tallies will be completed from a census to be taken Oct. 2.

House Democrats Condemn Hecklers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A large group of House Democrats has condemned hecklers who attempt to disrupt speeches by President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

A total of 137 Democrats, including liberals and conservatives, said Wednesday "as members of Congress, we have spoken out vigorously in the past to defend the expression of unpopular views. We speak out with equal force today against attempts to disrupt presentations by the president and vice president."

Today is Thursday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 1970 with 98 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

A thought for the day: Eisenhower said, "In the final choice, a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chain."

2,500 Customers Hit By Blackout

A blackout that lasted nearly an hour affected 2,500 customers in San Rafael Tuesday night, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. reported yesterday.

Leonard Robertson, district electrical supervisor, said a tree leaned on a high voltage line on Fairway Drive near Summit Avenue in the Golf Tract at 8:19 p.m. Power was restored at 9:06 p.m., he said.

The effects were felt between the Third Street-Lincoln Avenue intersection eastward as far as Peacock Gap, Robertson said, with traffic lights, street lights, stores and homes blacked out.

LED DUMMY'S TEN

Declarer, a simple, barefoot Hollywood producer, won the first trick with the ace of spades and led lummy's ten of hearts. This was a ghastly play, but it's unreasonable to talk about 30 days just because a man makes a horrible play.

West refused the first round of trumps and then refused the second. And now our hero led a third round of trumps. He thought the law compelled him to draw trumps at the first opportunity. A good lawyer would have told him that Magna Carta ended all this in 1215.

TWO HANDKERCHIEFS

The rest of our tale is a two-handkerchief Hollywood tearjerker. West took the third trump and led his other spade, forcing South to ruff. South drew the last trump and led a diamond to dummy's king.

West took the second diamond with the ace and led the queen of clubs. Declarer couldn't get to his hand, and West therefore got two club tricks as well as his two red aces. South was lucky to get as many as nine tricks.

After winning the first trick with the ace of spades, declarer should lead a low trump to the king and should continue with the queen of hearts. When West refuses both tricks, South should switch to diamonds. West takes the second diamond and returns a spade, forcing South to ruff.

Now South begins to lead good diamonds. If West ruffs, dummy can overruff with the ten. If West discards, dummy discards. And if West ruffs with the ace, South can easily draw the last trump and take the rest.

National Guard Has 25 Openings

A San Rafael National Guard unit has announced it has 25 openings for new recruits.

Second Lt. Richard A. Johnston Jr., commanding officer of Co. D, 579th Engineer Battalion, said the openings were made possibly by an increase in authorized unit strength.

Recruits, who are exempted from the draft, undergo eight weeks of basic training and must later attend one-weekend-a-month drills and 15 days' annual active duty training. Total service is six years.

Faberge Competition Cuts Company Profits

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 136 shares of Faberge for which I paid $35 per share. I would appreciate your opinion as to whether I should sell or hold the stock. I can afford the loss. L.M.

A. Competitive pressures and rising marketing costs have been partly responsible for Faberge's relatively unimpressive earnings performance in recent years. This in turn has adversely affected the issue's stock market appraisal. While sales for the first half of 1970 managed to show a slight gain (1.1 per cent) year-to-year, net income was off 24 per cent. Heavy advertising and promotional costs plus tight credit conditions are expected to continue to cut into margins. And although increased volume and various product price hikes will aid results as the year progresses, company faces strong competition in major product areas. Selling at approximately 9 x 1970s earnings estimates, shares have little appeal at this juncture. Switch to better acting Avon in the same group.

Q. I would like to know your opinion on whether to hold Iowa Beef Processors for recovery or to sell. C.C.

A. An innovator in the meat packing industry, Iowa Beef grew rapidly through the 60's. However, a protracted 227-day strike severely restricted fiscal 1969 earnings. Settlement of this strike was not achieved until early in April of the current fiscal year, which will end October 31. Therefore, first half results continued to be affected and earnings reached only 4 cents a share down from $1.01 in 1968. Nevertheless full year income is expected to surpass the depressed $1.53 a share reported in 1969. Profit margins will be adversely affected by increased labor costs and probable higher feed corn prices as a result of crop losses this summer. However, Iowa is placing increasing emphasis on the more profitable area of precut and prepackaged meats as well as institutional markets. While share recovery reflecting earnings improvement is probable, a return to the excessive price earnings multiples of the late 1960s is highly unlikely.

Market On Upswing For Second Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — Optimism about the economy and more favorable reports from the Middle East kept prices on the uptrack for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange today. Trading was extremely active.

With about an hour remaining, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was ahead about 4½ points at 759.17. More than 1,000 issues pointed higher, while only 26 declined.

A four-hour turnover of 15,660,000 shares was up from 12,740,000 shares traded during a comparable period yesterday.

The United States and Britain began evacuating their nationals from the war-torn city of Amman amid sporadic fighting. But the situation there was said to be quieter now than at any time since the civil war began a week ago.

Analysts said Wall Street generally was buoyed by the removal of the threat of immediate U.S. intervention in Jordan. This threat had weighed on the market early in the week.

A Walt Disney spokesman said the only thing he could attribute to the stock's advance was a recent U.S. Court of Appeals decision overturning a preliminary injunction which had delayed for more than a year Disney's proposed development of a recreational facility in Sequoia National Forest.

Among the day's most active issues were Plessey Co., Telex Corp., Penn Central, University Computing, Pittston Co., Kentucky Fried Chicken and American Telephone.

SEC Proposes Stricter Reports On Withdrawals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has proposed a tougher reporting rule for broker-dealer firms that withdraw membership from national stock exchanges.

The proposal would require such a firm to file with the SEC, within 48 hours of terminating its exchange membership, a verified report of its trial balance and computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital.

The rule also would require exchanges to notify the SEC whenever a broker-dealer ceases to be a member.

The SEC said the rule is intended to obtain current financial data on broker-dealers as of the time that they become subject to SEC net capital requirements.

In New York, Deutschmann & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange, said it ceased doing business as a broker-dealer as of today.

Deutschmann, a non-clearing firm that carries no public accounts, said its decision was forced by the continuing profit squeeze in the brokerage industry.

Turnover Up On Buoyant Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turnover soared to more than 20-million shares on the New York Stock Exchange today as the market gave a buoyant response to reports of a cooling of the civil war in Jordan and a more friendly economic news climate.

Shortly before the final bell, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was up 4.93 at 759.31. More than 1,000 issues pointed higher, while only 304 declined.

Closing prices included: Am T&T 45 up ¼; Bethlehem St. 22 1-4 up 1-2; Ford 50 3-8 up 5-8 Gen Motors 72 1-2 up 1-4; IBM 288 1-2 up 7 1-2; Texaco 31 1-4 up 5-8 and US Steel 32 3-8 up 1 1-2.

The United States and Britain began evacuating their nationals from the war-torn city of Amman amid sporadic fighting. But the situation there was said to be quieter now than at any time since the civil war began a week ago.

Analysts said Wall Street generally was buoyed by the removal of the threat of immediate U. S. intervention in Jordan. This threat had weighed on the market early in the week.

Among the stocks scoring the biggest gains were IBM, Memorex, Walt Disney, and Burroughs, all up several points.

Tokyo Newspaper Tells Of Secret Textile Talks

TOKYO (UPI) — A Tokyo financial newspaper has stated that Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., held secret talks in Tokyo with Japanese textile industry leaders.

The Nihon Keizai newspaper said Thurmond, a champion of American textile interests, expalined the American viewpoint to a group of highly placed Japanese textile men.

He reportedly was told by Shinzo Oya, president of Japan's Teijin Co., that "if there has been real damage to the American industry, the Japanese side would have to consider this."

Oya was said to have proposed discussions between industry leaders of the two countries.

As the result of a campaign promise to Thurmond by President Nixon, the United States has been trying to get Japan to voluntarily limit its shipments of woolen and synthetic textiles to the United States.

Negotiations between the two governments broke down last June.

Now a legislative measure to impose import restrictions on both textiles and shoes is before the U.S. House of Representatives.

TOWARD SURF — A borrowed San Mateo humane society truck drives over sand dunes toward the shore towing Christmas Seal in a horse trailer. The truck got bogged down in the sand before it made it to the shore.

Christmas Seal Is Well And Free

By C.P. McCARTHY

Christmas Seal is alive, well and free off the California coast, after having spent eight months in Marin recuperating from a bout with pneumonia.

When she didn't return to the water, the Roger Ahlenius family, in whose backyard she sat decided she was ill and called the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael.

She was taken to the museum and painstakingly nursed back to health. She had to be trained to eat dead fish as she was used to the live variety she caught herself. Along with the fish, she was given oil and massive doses of vitamins and antiobiotics.

Gay Maxwell, wife of museum director Paul Maxwell, said that in Christmas Seal's eight-month stay in Marin, she showed no affection for humans — a fact which thrilled museum officials because if she had grown fond of and dependent on man, she would never have been able to be returned to the ocean and survive on her own.

Last week, officials decided recuperation was complete and Christmas Seal was returned, with no little effort, to the sea.

The museum had to enlist the aid of the Peninsula Humane Society in San Mateo and borrow its four-wheel-drive truck and horse trailer to transport the hefty beast.

The truck got stuck in the sand as officials drove across a private ranch and down to the shore off Ano Nuevo Island near the San Mateo-Santa Cruz county line.

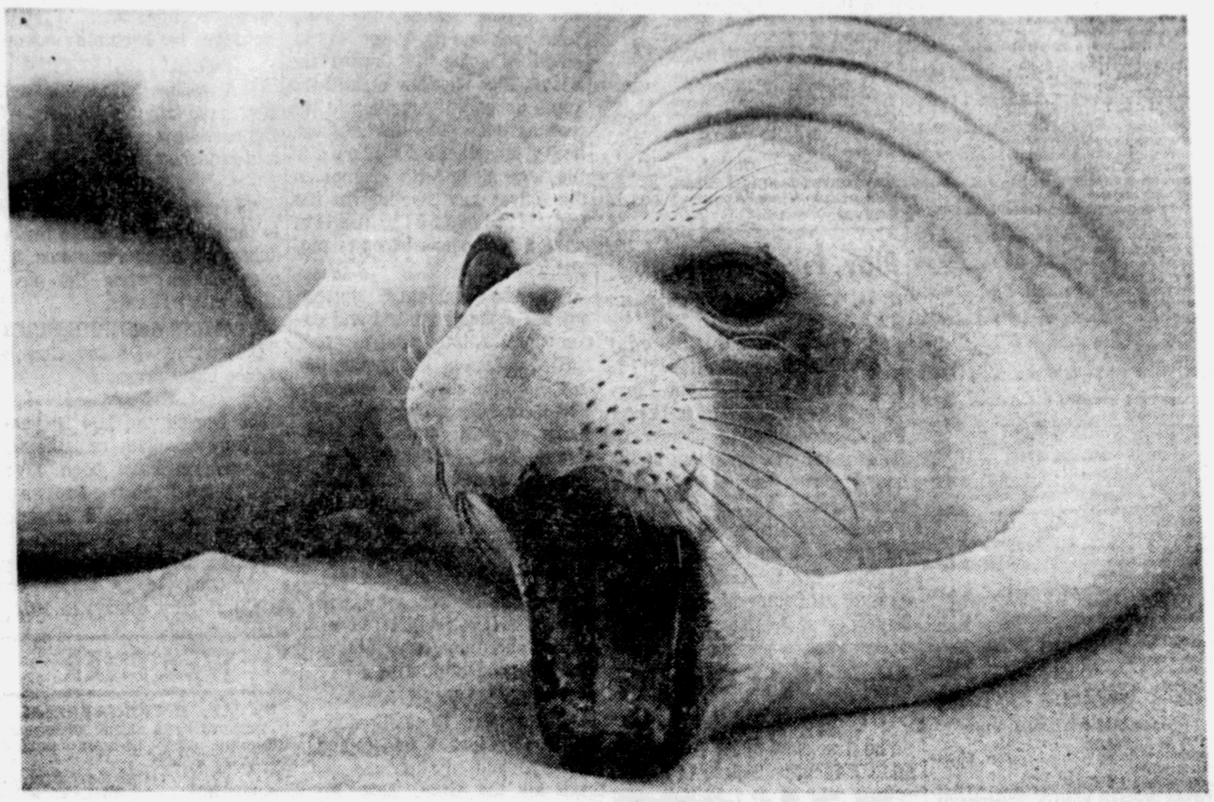
The island is maintained as a seal preserve by the State Department of Fish and Game to protect once nearly extinct breeds.

Fortunately, when the truck bogged down, it wasn't too far from the beach, so the horse trailer was opened up and Christmas Seal climbed out and headed for the shcre.

She got tired before she made it, though, and had to be given a few helpful tugs to get her to the water.

Lloyd Smalley, curator of the museum, equipped with scuba gear and a rubber raft, went into the water with her for a while to make sure she was all right.

She was. With a farewell bark, she dived under the water and disappeared to a life of freedom among the hundreds of other seals in the choppy surf.



NO BITE — The animal barks on the sand after climbing from the truck. When the trailer was opened, Christmas Seal maneuvered all of her 400 pounds to the ground by herself.

ALMOST THERE — The seal barks with excitement as she nears the shore. Lloyd Smalley (right), curator of the Boyd Museum, donned scuba gear and used a rubber raft to follow Christmas Seal into the water.

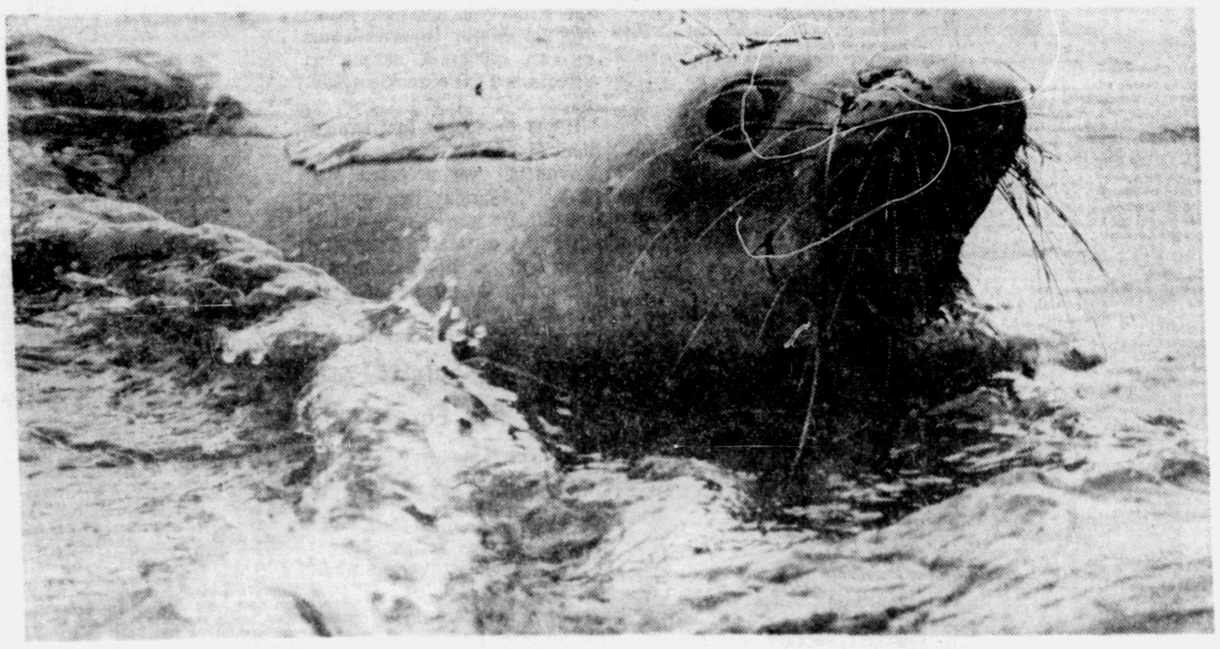
FIRST TASTE — Christmas Seal gets her first taste of her native ocean water as she enters the surf off Nuevo Island near the San Mateo-Santa Cruz county line.



FAREWELL — With a final bark toward shore, Christmas seal heads out in the chilly waters to join hundreds of other seals at the state Department of Fish and Game preserve. Her life was saved by men she never befriended.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

$12 Million In County Salaries

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils, and school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives pleading for large pay increases cited the rising cost-of-living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin are being published by the Independent-Journal as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

Publication continues today with several departments' share of Marin County's $12,383,592 payroll. Other departments will be listed in subsequent issues of the Independent-Journal.

TV REVIEW

Network Police Shows Proliferate

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—ABC-TV's "Dan August," a new police series, turned up Wednesday night, dealing with a detective lieutenant who wears elegant turtleneck shirts and sharp trousers that probably cost half of a cop's weekly salary. The rest of the hour premiere was just as believable.

What is even more unbelievable, however, is the way the three networks have programmed the late Wednesday night time slot that includes "Dan August." For this one-hour period now includes three network police series, all competing against each other: CBS-TV's "Hawaii Five-O," NBC-TV's "Four-In-One: McCloud" and now "Dan August."

As the new television year starts, "Hawaii Five-O" is the frontrunner, having scored strongly in the ratings last season. And "Dan August" is, at least on the basis of quality, hardly likely to cause anyone to compare it with the better cops and robbers entries that come to mind, such as "The Untouchables." Wednesday's premiere contained not a single original thought, not a single memorable device. It is straight out of the sausage factory.

Burt Reynolds portrays "Dan August," resembling Marlon Brando slightly in looks, and positively in no other way. In the opener, he investigates the murder of an auto racer who was a very unpopular character. After going through an assortment of stereotyped suspects, he finds the killer, and I can't imagine anyone giving a hoot—except maybe for admirers of Reynolds' trousers, which are almost as tight as those worn by Tom Jones. They are both in dire need of a tasteful tailor, and Reynolds could use a script writer as well. Earlier Wednesday night,

New Shopping Center Gets Initial Approval

The Larkspur Planning Commission has approved preliminary plans for a $2 million shopping center proposed by SDC Inc. at Doherty Drive and Magnolia Avenue.

Commissioner Robert H. Lee, according to secretary Babara Bruton, cast the only "no" vote at Tuesday's meeting because he disagreed with the architectural design of the buildings.

SDC, a corporation from Corona Del Mar, San Diego County, has been seeking approval for about a year of its plans to construct a 23,000-square-foot Alpha Beta supermarket, supported by 15,500 square feet of satellite service shops and a gasoline service station.

Mrs. Bruton said the other commissioners (Leonard S. Rubin absent) questioned traffic flow and parking facilities and directed the company to consider commission reservations before presenting final plans.

The company indicated it wanted to start construction within three months.

Last November, the commission, on a 2-2 vote, denied a use permit to the firm because they said the city's general plan called for high density residential development of the site.

The commission's denial was overruled in February by the city council which granted the permit. A controversial service station on the property also was approved after earlier being denied by the council.

Tuesday, however, the commission was told that the service station is not scheduled for construction until the Magnolia Avenue Bypass is constructed.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also: Approved a land fill application from Tiscornia Estate's for 2000 cubic yards of soil to be dumped in its marshland property opposite the Safeway store on Magnolia Avenue. Fill will come from the water tank area on Little King hill.

Strike Closes Food Dealers

OAKLAND (UPI)—A Teamsters Union strike has closed three major frozen food distributors in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The Teamsters Local 588 walkout affected 200 drivers and warehousemen at Selected Union Foods, Inc., Levy & Zentner Co. and Allied-Lengfield Co.

Employers had offered a new contract which at the start of the third year would have given warehousemen $198.50 a week and drivers $231.80 a week.

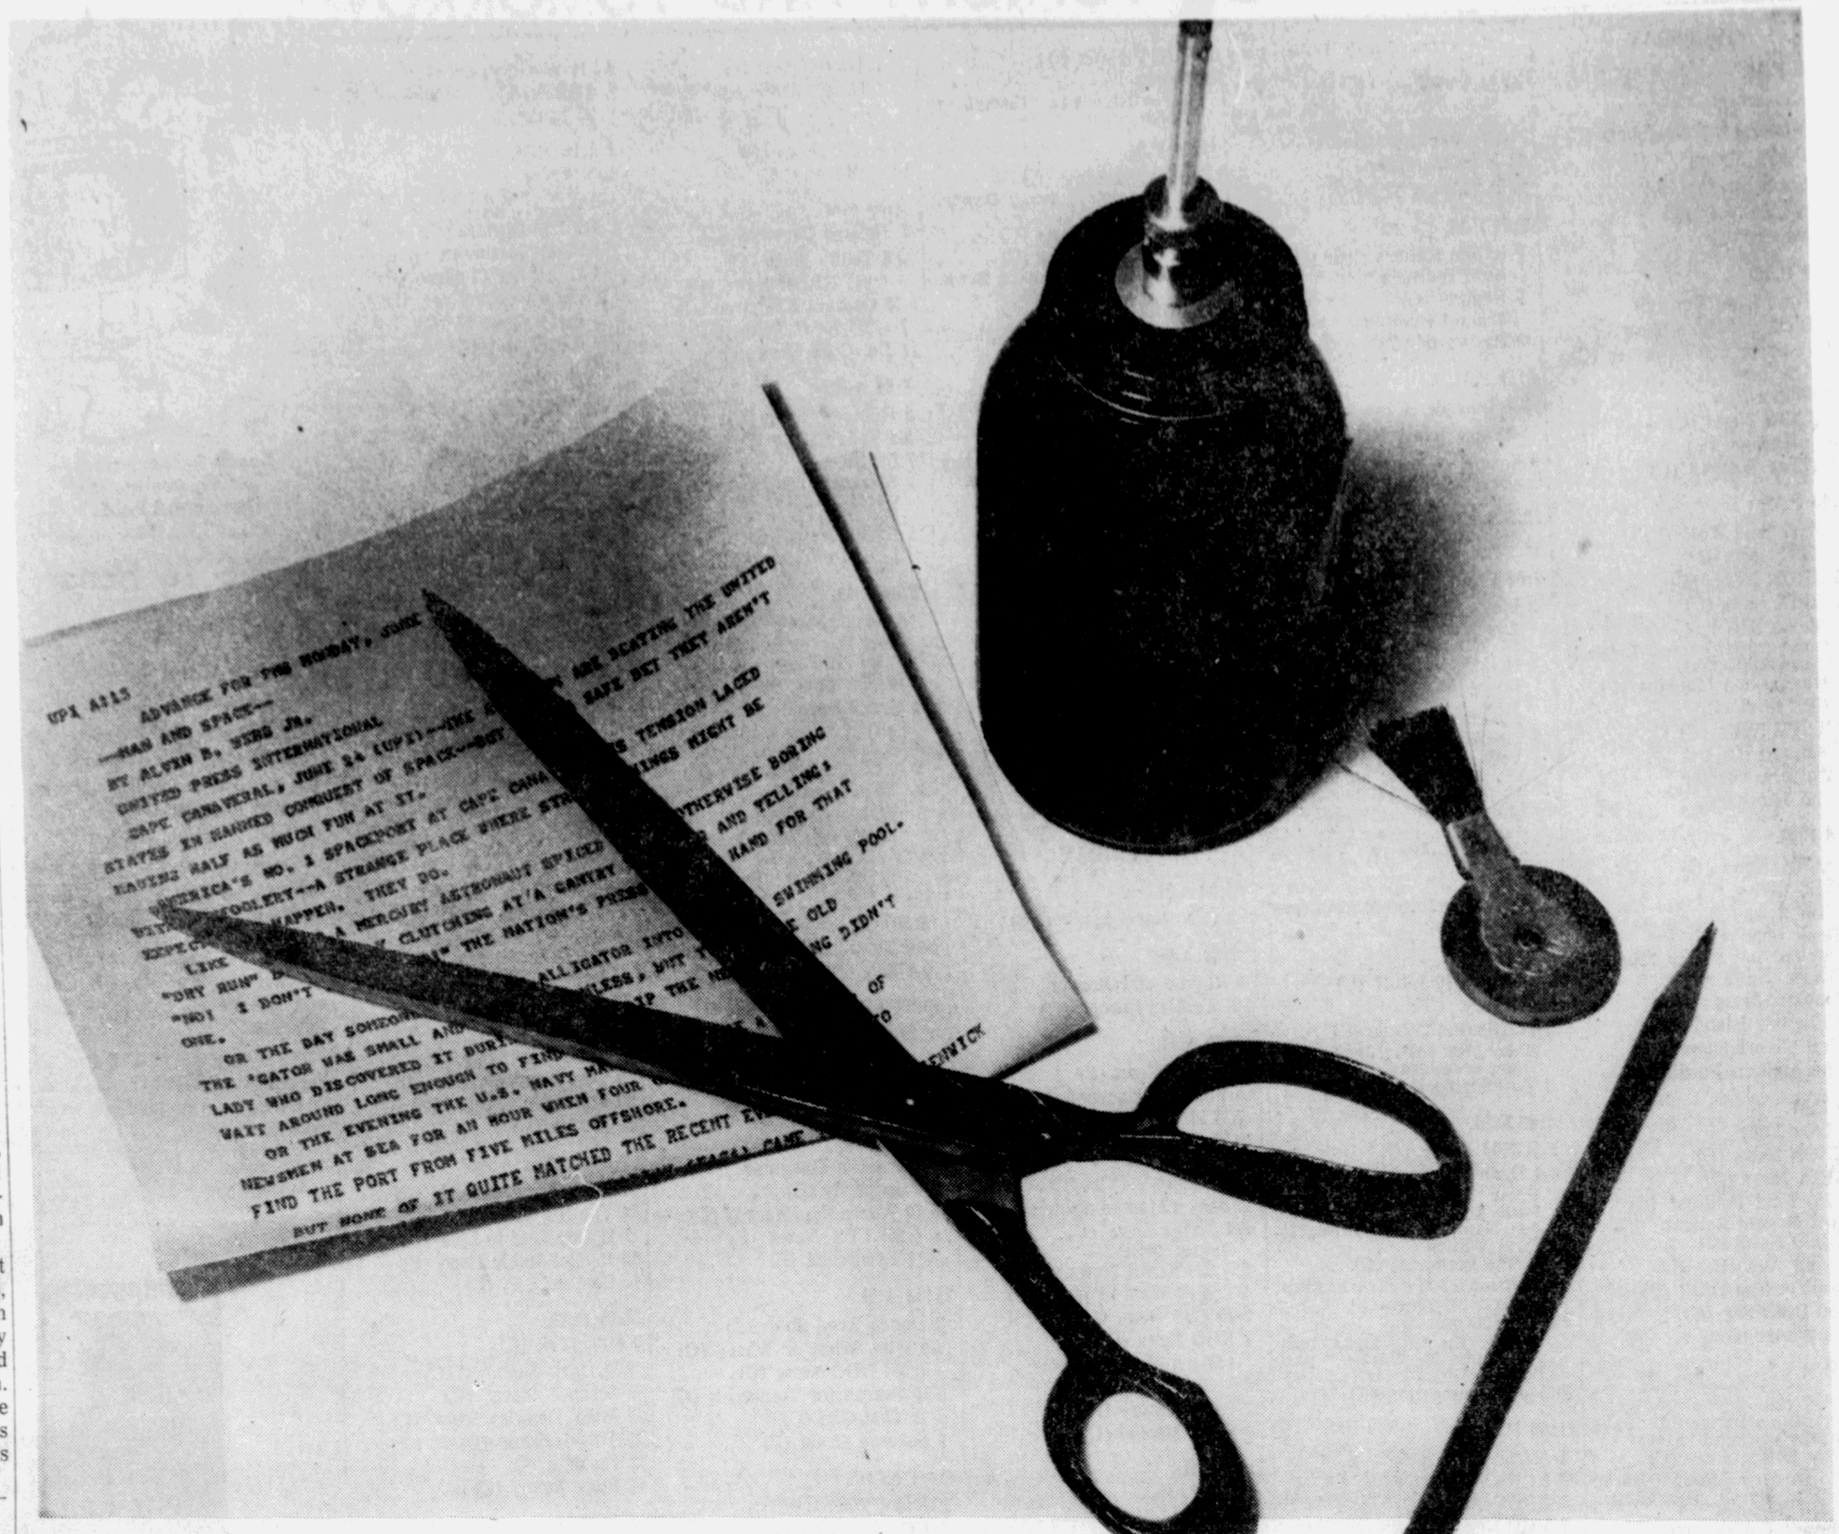
In a week, the three firms usually supply about 5 million pounds of frozen food products to groceries.

Hearing Set In Felony Assault

A preliminary hearing has been set in Marin Municipal Court for next Monday for one of two men charged with attempted murder and felony assault stemming from a fracas on a West arin Ranch last Wednesday.

Charged is James Harold Balch Jr., 24, of Little Rock, Ark. A codefendant, Edward Daniel Aguirre, 20, of San Bernardino is still hospitalized with wounds received in the battle.

Sheriff's deputies said that Roger Eugene Grondorf, 26, who lives at the Barboni Ranch near Marshall was seriously wounded when a third man tried to run Aguirre off the ranch. Balch allegedly drove Aguirre to the ranch and had three guns with him when arrested in his truck while leaving Marshall.



By tomorrow the world will have changed . . .

That's why we have 6,000 reporters

. . . to report the change

Between today and tomorrow news which is unexpected and unforeseen will change YOU . . . your attitudes, your values, perhaps even your personal life. For all of us live on a turning world, on the very threshold - second by second - of the future.

We at the I-J can't know what the news will be but we DO know it will happen . . . and on a thousand fronts.

Which explains why we use the enormous "nervous system" of United Press International and the eyes and ears of its 6,000 reporters to keep us - and keep you - in sensitive touch with every country in the world.

Strange thing is that this vast network of words and wire is almost instantly connected to our newsroom in San Rafael. And even UPI's electronic magic which sends us photographs by tiny impulses over the wire.

The world will change but news of these "new" events will as inevitably reach us in time to reach you in every evening's I-J.

The point then, is that the strange and complex world of "what hasn't yet happened" will be reported to you when it does. The UPI and the I-J have their nerves ready . . . and plenty of paper for tomorrow.

Wild Topper To Giant-Dodger Series Finale

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It was more like a three-ring circus than a baseball game but it was a fitting topper to a season between those two old rivals, the Dodgers and the Giants.

It was the final game of the season between Los Angeles and San Francisco Wednesday night and the Giants won it in 10 innings, 14-10, coming back from an eight-run deficit. On the season they tied with nine wins each and ended up tied for second place in the National League West to date.

The Giants thought they had it won in the seventh when they got eight hits including a three-run homer by Jim Hart and a grand slammer by Dick Dietz. After Dietz cleared the bags with his 21st of the year, making it 9-8 for the Giants, his mates swarmed out of the dugout and nearly mobbed him.

Los Angeles was not through. In the bottom of the eighth, Maury Wills carried across a tying run after he beat out an infield bouncer, stole second, took third on an infield out, and scored when Willie Davis beat out a hit to short.

The Giants broke the tie in the top of the ninth after Frank Johnson singled to center with one out. A pair of walks, one of them intentional, loaded the bases, and then pinchhitter Alan Gallagher hit a high bouncer to Wills at Short and Johnson scored.

The game went into extra innings when the Dodgers got a run in the bottom of the ninth on a single by Bill Sudakis, a sacrifice, a wild pitch by Rich Robertson who was the eventual winner, and a single by pinchhitter Len Gabrielson.

Robertson went two innings, giving up one run on two hits and got his eighth win against nine losses.

The loser was Ray Lamb who had won six without a defeat.

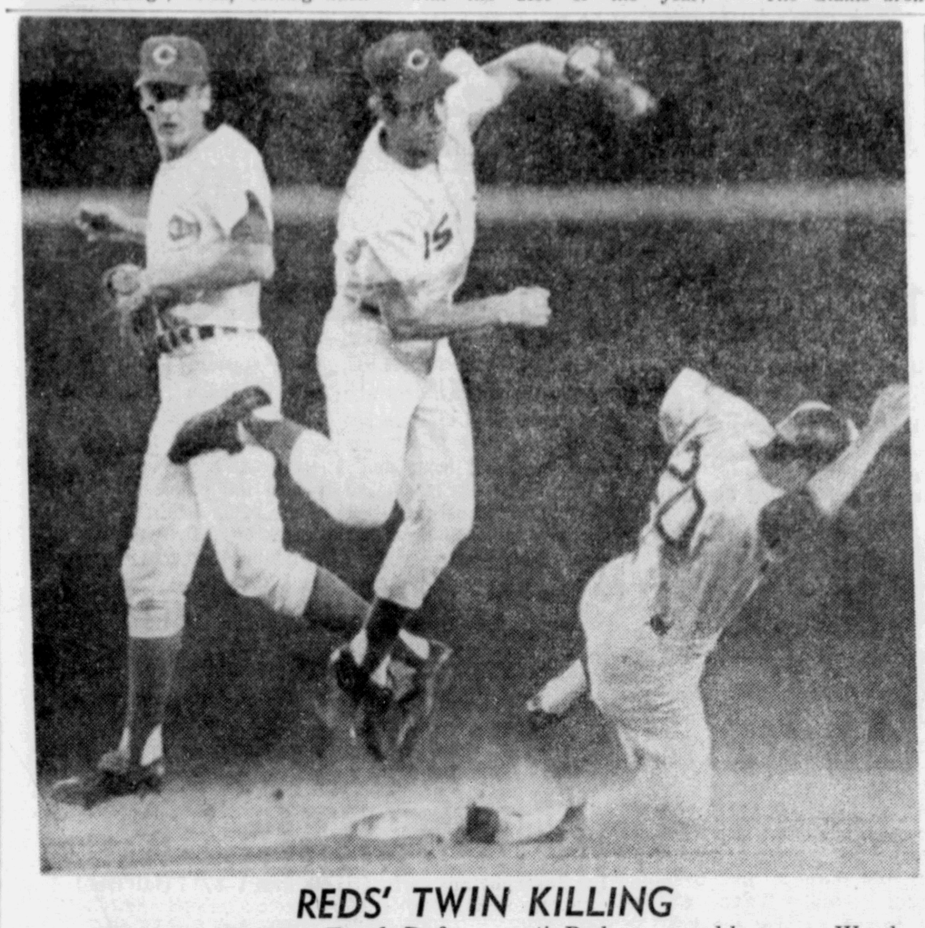
"It was a fantastic game," said Giant manager Charlie Fox. "I guess the breaks evened out."

The Giants headed for home where they open a three-game series Friday night against the San Diego Padres. Frank Reberger, 7-6, is scheduled to start against Pat Dobson, 12-15.

The Giants then finish the season with four games at Houston.

The 14-10 loss to the Giants was the last game at home for the Dodgers.

"I have never seen a game like that," said manager Walt Alston, who was rehired for '71, his 18th season with the club. "I really mean it. We got all the breaks in the first half and they got all the breaks in the second half."



REDS' TWIN KILLING

Cincinnati shortstop Frank Duffy fired the ball to first base for a double play after forcing Houston's Cesar Geronimo at second in the seventh inning last night in Cincinnati. Red second baseman Woody Woodward, who began the play, looked on. The Reds, champs of the National League West, won, 6-2. (UPI Telephoto)

Tackle At Marin, Runner For Cincy

In answer to many questions, yes, that Doug Dressler who played running back for the Cincinnati Bengals in their 31-21 upset of the Oakland Raiders in last Sunday's televised game is the same Doug Dressler who starred at College of Marin in the 1966-67 seasons.

Confusion arose because Dressler was an offensive tackle at Marin and never toted the ball like he's doing now as a professional. After he left Marin, Big Doug attended Chico State College where he was switched to a tight end, later becoming a running back.

Marin Coach Dick Read said he used Dressler, who played high school ball in Reno, as a lineman "because we had a surplus of good backs in 1966 and '67, our championship season, like Tim Harr, Dean Lazzarini, Donnie Smith and Dick Otis."

While here, Dressler also was heavyweight wrestling champion of the Golden Valley Conference and also guarded lives at the Upper Lucas Valley Recreation District pool.

Dressler and Martin Baccaglio, a defensive end from Novato who also starred at COM, saw limited action for the Bengals in their big upset over the Pride and Poise Boys.

And A Little Tennis, Too

Tennis may be incidental to the 18-year-old Marin lass for she is staying at the swank Encino home of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Guerin, wealthy tennis buffs who live next door to Efrem Zimbalist and are close friends of Charlton Heston. She has met both of those stars and other Hollywood types and has access to the Guerins' stable of sports cars. She may never come home.

Sharon and Mr. Guerin play tennis quite often and she is known to his daughter as ". . . the girl who cleans daddy's clock."

FOUR MARINITES were among the former players who were honored at Kezar Stadium Sunday during 49er Alumni Day.

They and the years they played for the Niners were Ed Balatti of Kentfield, 1946-47; Bruno Banducci, Marin Catholic assistant coach, 1946-54; Al Endriss, Redwood High assistant coach, 1952; and Bob Toneff of San Anselmo, 1952, 54-59.

Collaborated For Long TD

In 1946, Balatti and Kenny Casanega, now a Napa educator, co-authored one of the longest touchdown plays in Niner history on a pass interception. Casanega ran 68 yards, then lateralled it to Balatti who completed the 90-yard thriller.

Balatti, by the way, will have a son (Johnny) playing at Redwood High starting next year.

SPEAKING OF chips off the old block. Tam High Coach Mike Davlin's son (also Mike) is linebacking and place kicking for the Claremont-Mudd (Romona) college team that dumped St. Mary's 27-12 last Saturday.

GOOD NEWS for members of the S.F. Giants Boosters Club: President Allan B. Murray of San Rafael has announced that American Airlines stewardess Maureen Cassady again will reign as Miss Boston for the 1971 season. She's enough to cheer up any Giant fan.

Cleveland Weapon: 'Big Play'

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)—Specialty teams of the San Francisco 49ers drilled intensively Wednesday to halt the "big play," a trademark of the Cleveland Browns.

"Cleveland makes the big play when they have to," said Prospector coach Dick Nolan. "That's one reason why they are always in contention."

Maybe Nolan was thinking about Homer Jones returning the second half kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown that helped the Browns beat the New York Jets 31-21 Monday night.

Nolan also said offensive tackle Cas Banaszek and rookie cornerback Bruce Taylor are recovering from leg injuries and their availability against the Browns might be limited.

Cleveland is favored over the 49ers by two points.

Raiders: Look Out For Lance

OAKLAND Q(UPI)—Lance Alworth of the San Diego Chargers didn't catch a pass last weekend against the Baltimore Colts and that bodes ill for the Oakland Raiders.

That marked the first time in 96 games that the premier wide receiver of the Chargers has been blanked. So he will be more than eager to make up for it against the Raiders.

One thing in Alworth's favor when the teams meet Sunday at San Diego is the fact that Oakland cornerback George Atkinson might be sidelined with a leg injury. Atkinson is invaluable as a defender against the pass and was outstanding last season when the Raiders emerged with tight 24-12 and 21-16 victories over San Diego.

Also limping with leg injuries for the Raiders are running back Marv Hubbard and linebacker Duane Benson.

TARS HOST EUREKA TEAM

Marin's Field To Get Baptism

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The new College of Marin football facility, complete with electric scoreboard and 2,000 bleacher seats, will get its baptism Saturday afternoon when the Tars host Eureka's College of the Redwoods in a preseason game at 1 p.m.

Coming off their season-opening 19-14 loss last week to San Jose City College, the Tars will have their hands full against the Corsairs, who beat them last year, 32-21 at Eureka.

Marin could have beaten San Jose. "We had chances to score, and we made mistakes at the wrong time," Tar coach Dick Read said yesterday.

Real reproted only one injury of any consequence. Guard Chris Chapman is suffering from a twisted knee and must be listed as a doubtful starter.

When the press facilities are installed at the new Kentfield stadium next week, the only thing to be added (besides lights), will be a name. The board of trustees has taken that weighty matter under consideration and will act soon to alleviate the crisis.

MARIN'S CROSS country team took part in a beach run at San Mateo last Saturday, and placed third out of four teams. College of San Mateo, which hosted the meet, won with 23 points, Fresno had 45, Marin 71 and Skyline 115.

The Tars' Don Makela, one of the finest runners in the state, won the meet, setting a course record in the process. The second Marin runner to finish and 14th overall was freshman Steve Silvey, late of San Marin High School.

Tar runners encountered many obstacles on the beach, not the least of which was a capricious Pacific Ocean that washed away one of Seamus O'Reilly's shoes. He and Keith Krieger, who came in 17th and 22nd, began the race wearing shoes, but decided early in the running to discard them. But O'Reilly left his too close to the water line, and when the tide came in, his shoes went out.

Marin hosts Laney College of Oakland and San Joaquin Delta College tomorrow at 3 p.m. in a meet that Tar coach Tony Bailey feels his team should win.

THE TAR water polo team begins its season with games Tuesday and Wednesday at home against Diablo Valley and College of San Mateo. Coach Bob Justice has five returning lettermen, including all-around star Greg Myers and last year's high scorer, John Malvino.

WOMEN'S LIB

Gal Net Stars Vie In Houston

HOUSTON (UPI)—Any women's tennis tournament in which Billy Jean King is not seeded is going to be a little strange to begin with.

But in the case of the Virginia Slims International Tennis Tournament, Miss King's unseeded status is probably the only not unusual thing about it.

A LONG WAY

The Virginia Slims (named after the "You've come a long way, baby" cigarette) tournament began on the West Coast as the Pacific Southwest Open. But the women in the tournament decided they should liberate themselves from the affair because of the difference between the women's purse and the men's. The men's winner in the Pacific tournament will receive $12,500; the top woman gets $1,500.

So the top women tennis players left the tournament and went searching for a place to play. Houston provided the movement with a tournament and a $5,000 purse.

But the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association said it would not sanction the event because it conflicted with the association's already-sanctioned Pacific tournament. The USLTA said it would reconsider if the prize money was dropped.

So rather than jeopardize the tournament, the sponsors of Virginia Slims (Phillip Morris Tobacco Co.) decided to drop the purse and pay only the expenses of the women players.

NOT HAPPY

"We weren't happy this way," Mrs. King said Wednesday. "We thought we'd like to play above board rather than get expenses under the table. We're all pros so why should we become amateurs for a week. Why should we go backward?

"We're trying to make this game honest," she said. "I've received as much as $4,500-$5,000 under the table for playing in one tournament, even if I lost in the first round. Why can't we just get paid like the other pros?"

Then they found a way in which they could. Most of the top men's tennis players belong to Lamar Hunt's tennis organization and travel under his supervision, not the USLTA's.

So the women decided to form a similar organization and Gladys Heldman, the editor and publisher of World Tennis magazine was there to help.

Eight Teams To Play In Pro Cage Playoffs

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Basketball Association has decided only two teams in each of its four divisions will take part in league playoffs.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy said some NBA owners voted during a meeting Wednesday in favor of having three teams participate in the playoffs, but the majority felt such a system would eliminate too few teams from the semi-finals.

Specific arrangements for the playoffs will be made at the All-Star game in San Diego in January, Kennedy said.

The owners also authorized the commissioner to fine any NBA club $10,000 for illegal player relations—a move designed to eliminate "hidden players" who do not appear on the active list.

Kennedy said a settlement between the NBA owners and the Players Association is expected within three weeks.

Selma's Remarks Costly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Selma, the Philadelphia Phillies relief specialist, has pitched himself out of some tight situations in ball games but he still has not been able to talk himself out of hot water with four umpires.

Selma was fined $500 Wednesday by National League President Chub Feeney and apologized for remarks he made the night before about the umpiring crew when three of his teammates were ejected from the Phillies-New York Mets game.

CHARGES 'FIX'

Selma said the umpires were so wrong the game seemed a "fix."

He issued a statement Wednesday in which he said, "I know I was wrong in making accusations about the integrity of the umpires.

"I strongly question and still do, the judgment of the umpires in the game," Selma said. "In a fit of anger, I made charges for which I had no basis. I will apologize for this."

Augie Donatelli, senior member and captain of the four-member umpire crew that included Stan Landes, Dick Stello and Satch Davison, was not satisifed with the fine and the apology.

NOT ENOUGH

Donatelli revealed that the crew would have refused to take the field Wednesday night if Selma had not been "dealt with" and that they still feel he should be suspended.

Donatelli told Selma when the pitcher came to the umpires' dressing room and apologized that, "we don't think the punishment is nearly enough. We recommended that you be suspended and we shall work for your suspension after this race is over.

Selma replied, "You fellows know I never give you trouble out there and that wasn't the real me saying those things. I was just hot and I'm genuinely sorry."

HISTORY IN MAKING

Campy's Homer Is The Crusher

OAKLAND (UPI)—History, of sorts, was in the making at the Oakland Coliseum until Bert Campaneris came to the plate for the last time in the game.

He hit a line drive off 22-year-old lefthander Tom Hall of the Minnesota Twins with two out in the seventh inning and it carried over the left field wall for a home run. That's usually nothing to get ecstatic about except for the fact it was the first hit off Hall after 6 2-3 innings.

HIS 22ND

Had the Minnesota pitcher prevented the A's from collecting a hit, it would have been the second no-hitter in three nights at the Coliseum. A total of 5,066 unhappy fans sat on the edge of their seats and chewed their nails until Campaneris delivered his 22nd homer of the season.

Alas, further good fortune also dodged Hall. He walked Don Mincher and Sal Bando in the eighth before Dave Duncan poled a long shot over the centerfield wall to close the A's scoring and give the Twins a 7-4 victory.

LOST 13 OF 18

Thus, Oakland lost 13 of the 18 contests with the Twins this season. The A's remained in second place in the American League West, 9 1-2 games behind the pennant winning Twins but three games ahead of the third-place California Angels who were rained out of their game at Milwaukee.

The A's open a three-game series against the Angels at Anaheim Friday night with John Odom (8-7) on the hill. Vida Blue, who threw a no-hitter at the Twins Monday night, goes against the Angels Saturday and Chuck Dobson pitches on Sunday.

BATTLING

"We're still battling the Angels for second place and that means $1,000 more per man," said McNamara. "Just remember, a sweep by the Angels over us would vault them into second place by a few (percentage) points."

McNamara said 35-year-old outfielder Felipe Alou appears to be tiring and in a slump but he will remain in the lineup "because he's the best we got out there."

The A's are off today and close the season in a three-game series with the Milwaukee Brewers beginning next Tuesday at the Coluseum.

T. Jeremiah Beam. Part of the Beam family art for 175 years.

Son of the famous Col. Jim Beam, T. Jeremiah is the fifth generation of the only Kentucky family that's made the same Bourbon since 1795. As a matter of fact, 1970 marks the 175th anniversary of the year that Jacob Beam, founder of the Beam clan, sold his first barrel of Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey.

That's a mighty long time for one family to make one product, according to one formula.

So the next time you sip Jim Beam, savor its quality and its light taste. That's what we mean when we say it's a 175-year-old family art.

Mayo Rumored On Way Out

By U. P. International

DETROIT — Mayo Smith is apparently on his way out as manager of the Detroit Tigers. General Manager Jim Campbell said Wednesday, "I'll have nothing to say about next season until this season is over," but reports were being circulated that Billy Martin will replace Smith as manager the day after the season ends.

Smith refused to comment on the rumors, except to say, "I have nothing to say."

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Cardinal slugger Richie Allen was sent home for the remainder of the season Wednesday but the Cardinals said Allen's leg injury was practically healed and full recovery is anticipated.

Golf

EDINBURGH, Scotland — U.S. Masters champion Billy Casper shot a six-under par 66 Wednesday to lead a quartet of Britons by one stroke after the first round of the $24,000 Wills Open golf tournament.

Trailing Casper at 67 were U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin, his Ryder Cup teammates Peter Townsend and Brian Huggett, and Scot Andrew Brooks, who was in last year's Walker Cup team.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Lee Trevino, the fourth leading money-winner on the PGA tour, goes into the $60,000 Green Island Open Thursday with a new putter — and he says "it's a putter's course."

The new tournament drew 144 players — to be cut to 64 after 36 holes — but few of the big names.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — Bruce McCormick, who won medalist honors by a stroke, shoots for a berth in the quarterfinals of the U.S. Senior Amateur Golf championship today when he meets Steve Stimac.

McCormick, San Gabriel, Calif., helped open this year's over-50 tournament at the California Golf Club Wednesday with a 2 and 1 victory over Arthur Gee of Hammond, Ind.

Stimac, one of Northern California's leading amateurs of any age, got by his first hurdle by beating Frank Toronto of Fair Oaks, Calif., 4 and 3.

Basketball

OAKLAND — Six-foot-11 Bob Presley, former star basketbll player for the University of California, begins a six-month jail sentence today for grand theft.

Superior Court Judge Harold B. Hove sentenced the 240-pound athlete Wednesday, giving him credit for 21 days spent in jail after his arrest last November. He was involved in a traveler's check swindle.

Judge Hove also placed Presley on three years probation and ordered him to make restitution to the banks involved. He had pleaded guilty to one count of grand theft.

NEW YORK — Tony Jackson, a former star basketball palyer at St. John's University in New York, Wednesday filed a $2.5 million lawsuit against the National Basketball Association, charging the league and its teams with violation of anti-trust laws.

Jackson, who was drafted by the New York Knickerbockers in 1961, was barred from playing in the NBA after being implicated in a scandal that year. Jackson was charged with not reporting a bribe offer, which he rejected.

TENNIS

Mrs. Heldman signed the girls entered in the Virginia Slims tournament to one-week contracts and agreed to pay them each $1.

REINSTATE PURSE

With that, the sponsors reinstated the purse.

"We've been getting a raw deal and that's putting it mildly," Mrs. King said. "We eight girls decided we're not happy with the way things are going. We thought we'd like to play above board."

Mrs. King, a three-time Wimbledon champion, was joined in the anti-USLTA movement by Rosemary Casals, who teamed with Mrs. King to win the Wimbledon doubles crown this year; Nancy Richey, the top ranked woman tennis player in the United States; fourth ranked Peaches Bartkowicz; ninth ranked Valerie Jean Ziegenfuss; Kristy Pigeon and Australians Judy Tegart Dalton and Kerry Melville.

"These are about eight of the top 10 in the world," Mrs. King said. "I don't know how Margaret Court feels about it."

WINNERS

In the tournament's first round Wednesday, Miss Casals defeated Miss Ziegenfuss 6-1, 7-5; and Miss Melville defeated Miss Pigeon 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. King was not supposed to play and was in Houston for a tennis clinic and an exhibition. Her knee was operated on in July and she said she didn't think it was ready for tournament tennis. But fifth ranked Patti Hogan decided she did not want to take part in the tournament and lose the chance of a USLTA sponsored European tour. So Mrs. King volunteered to take Miss Hogan's unseeded place to complete the bracket.

"I've been a little rebel for a long time," Mrs. King said. "We've come a long way, baby, but we've still got a long way to go."

PREP FOOTBALL

Redwood Has Tough Task Tomorrow

If experience is a good criteria for rating high school football games, Redwood is in for trouble against Encinal of Alameda tomorrow afternoon when the teams meet in Larkspur at 3:30 p.m. in a non-league encounter.

But San Rafael and Drake, who rolled to gigantic victories in season-openers last week, should have a minimum of trouble in disposing of their opponents tomorrow. The Bulldogs, winners by 40 - 0 over Washington of San Francisco Friday night, take on undernourished Montgomery at Santa Rosa, at 4 p.m. while the Pirates, who dumped ePtaluma, 39-0, play at Vallejo High at 8.

Redwood suffered a 7- 0 defeat in its season debut last week against Sacred Heart of San Francisco that could be chalked off to inexperience. Twenty-four players, many in their first varsity season, saw action for the Marin County Athletic League team.

Encinal, on the other hand, relied on their abundant experience - returning lettermen - to knock off another MCAL team, San Marin, by a score of 12 - 0.

Redwood cocah Phil Roark saw that game, and later he testified that the Jets showed great depth in wearing down the Mustangs. "They're fair size and they've got a couple of real fast backs," he said.

The Giants threw the ball more than they would have liked against the Irish, and although quarterback Bob Brown did a yoeman job, hitting on 9 of 20, Roark said against Encinal his team will be trying "to perfect our running game a little more."

The Giants' ground attack will be made more effective by the return to the lineup of fullback Andy Anixter, who sat out the Sacred Heart affair with a bad knee.

There is also bad news for the Giants, however. Starting guards Steve Green and Gary Shunk are both down with Bronchitus, and are listed as doubtful for the game.

San Rafael, much to the misfortune of Montgomery, will take what coach Bob Muster calls as healthy a club as he's ever had to Santa Rosa for a game with the Vikings that was originally scheduled to be played under the lights.

Muster said yesterday he was impressed with the way the North Bay team held up in losing 20 - 0 to Novato last Satruday. "We think they're a very physical ball club, that they're going to be tough," he said.

Nevertheless, the Bulldogs are favored to win big, by at least two touchdowns.

In games Saturday involving Marin and Sonoma county teams, Tamalpais hosts Skyline of Oakland and San Marin is at Novato against Rancho oCtate of Rohnert Park at 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic hosts Piner of Santa Rosa at 2; and that evening at 8, Novato is at Petaluma, and Terra Linda hosts Hogan of Vallejo at San Rafael High School's field.

PIRATES, CUBS LOSE

Mets Jump Back Into Contention

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New York Mets are looking to pick up additional ground today in the National League East title chase. And, why not? The defending world champions have the day off.

The Mets, who seemed to have blown all chance at successfully defending their crown when they lost three of four games last weekend to first place Pittsburgh, fought their way back into contention Wednesday night with a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia while Pittsburgh and Chicago both helped the New Yorkers' cause by losing. The Pirates dropped a 3-2 decision to Montreal while the Cubs suffered a double setback, bowing in both ends of a twi-night doubleheader to St. Louis by identical 2-1 scores.

TO SECOND

The Mets' triumph moved them into second place, two games behind Pittsburgh and a half game ahead of Chicago. While the Mets have today off, the Pirates again play Montreal and the Cubs face St. Louis. Despite being two games out, New York is actually in the best position to win or lose the "I don't want it, you can have it" race by themselves as all their remaining games are with Pittsburgh (3) and Chicago (4).

"It seems a thrill-a-minute," said Mets manager Gil Hodges after his team's latest triumph. "It was a great break. We came back and got it."

Hodges was referring to Donn Clendenon's clutch two-run homer in the eighth off Dick Selma which enabled the Mets to overcome a 4-3 deficit. It was a bad day all around for Selma as earlier he had been socked with a $500 fine by league president Chub Feeney for his criticism of the umpires in Tuesday night's game.

Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh claimed he was "concerned, but not worried" after his club lost for the second time in three games to Montreal. "You've got to be concerned, but these guys (the Expos) are pitching pretty good. You have to give their pitchers credit. We've got good enough pitching the last two days to win, but we just didn't get enough runs."

Montreal has held Pittsburgh to five runs in three games and Carl Morton did his part Wednesday night by gaining his 17th win at the expense of the Pirates. Morton needed relief help in the ninth when Pittsburgh had a run in and runners on second and third with only one out. However, reliever Mike Marshall then got pinch-hitters Jose Pagan and Gene Clines on fly balls to end the game.

The Cubs, too, got good pitching in both ends of their doubleheader against St. Louis but it was Chicago's hitters who caused manager Leo Durocher to mutter, "We had our chances. We can't complain."

It was Chicago's misfortune to run into Cardinal ace Bob Gibson who tossed a two-hitter in the opener to best Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins and record his 23rd victory, a personal career high. Rookie Jerry Reuss silenced the Cub bats in the nightcap, allowing seven hits, including three doubles by Billy Williams.

FISH AND GAME

From Squirrel To Deer: Time For The Hunters

By AL GIDDINGS

Hunting seasons on deer, bear, ruffed grouse and sierra grouse, mountain quail and tree squirrels all open Saturday for you late fall hunters. The deer season naturally always creates the most interest for the most hunters. This year the "two-tag-system" required for one inland buck has created some problems and some confusion' but for those of you who still have your A and B tags, your season starts Saturday morning at one half hour before sunrise.

For those of you who have used your "A" tag on a coastal season buck, most of Humboldt and all of Del Norte county are yet open to you! Predictions for these two counties sounds good. Good early season bets are the areas around Kneeland, Bridgeville and Alderpoint. Better than normal antler development reported in these counties, and three and four pointers should make up much of the kill. In Humboldt and Del Norte counties, the season will run until Oct. 25 and forked horns are legal.

IN MODOC and Lassen and parts of Siskiyou and Shasta, the season runs from Sept. 26 through Oct. 25 with a one buck limit, three points or better. In Lassen County, hunter success is predicted to be up. Hot spots are Roop, Pegleg, Crater, Campbell and Fox Mountains and the Cottonwood and Warner Mountain ranges. In Modoc predictions are also for a better season with bucks scattered but in prime condition. Shasta and Siskiyou are both reported as good bets. The other parts of Shasta and Siskiyou opening Sept. 26 will have forked horns or better as legal game.

Trinity, Tehema, Glenn and parts of Plumas, Sierra Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Mono and Inyo are also counties with forked horns or better as legal game with openings Sept. 26 thru Oct. 25. The other parts of these counties generally on the west slope of the Sierra, will also open the same date but will close Nov. 8, for a longer season with forked horns or better all legal. A copy of the Hunting Abstract is almost a must for you to unravel the mystery of some of the areas open to hunting.

BEAR HUNTING with an annual average kill of approximately 600 bears has a major change this year. The limit is one bear per hunter per season which lasts from Sept. 26 thru Jan. 3.

The ruffed grouse and sierra grouse season opens Sept. 26 thru Oct. 11 with a limit of 2 birds per season in the following counties: Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Del Norte, Fresno, Humboldt, Inyo, Lassen, Madera, Mariposa, Mendocino, Modoc, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Tehema, Trinity, Tulare, Tuolomne and Yuba. Legal weapons: Shotguns 10 gauge or smaller, bow & arrow and falcons

A SPECIAL MOUNTAIN quail season will open from Sept. 26 thru Oct. 30 in many counties listed in the hunting abstract. The bird limit will be six per day. Weapons: Shotguns, 10 guage or less, bow and arrow and falcons.

Season for tree squirrels will also open Sept. 26 through Jan. 31, in most counties (listed in the Hunting Abstract). Bag and possession limit: four per day, four in possession. Rifles and pistols are legal for squirrels and rabbits in addition to shotguns, bow and arrow and falcons.

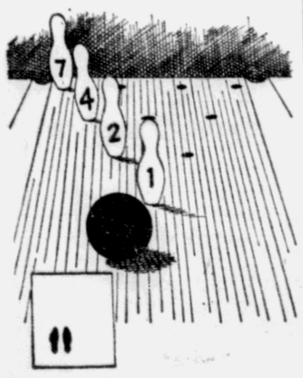
And with the duck and goose seasons just around the corner, it looks like now is the time for you and me to go on vacation.

Next to this column you see a wildlife drawing by Keith Soward of Oakland that probably has applied to you in the not to long past. Keith is a friend from Webber Lake.

TOM MACK one of Duck's Unlimited's hardest workers sent me a ticket to their annual "Drakes Only" dinner next Tuesday at the San Geronimo Golf and Country Club. The event starts at 6:30 p.m. I will be away possibly, so I suggested to I-J sports editor Jim Gilmartin, that he go in my place. I also asked him if he was a Duck's Unlimited member. He said, "he wasn't sure, but that last year he had joined Geodocks Unlimited and was that the same outfit?" I tell you!

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Periodically you can convert this 1-2-4-7 "fence" by hitting the headpin on the right side. But don't make this a habit. The odds of turning this set-up into a spare are much greater if you allow the ball to hook past the headpin on the left. Often the ball itself will touch all four of the pins.

SHARON WINS TWICE

Parade Of Tennis Upsets

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Young Jimmy Conors, who with his two-fisted backhand started a parade of upsets in the Pacific Southwest Open tennis championships, takes on Clark Graebner in a third round match today.

Conors, 18, stunned an overflow grandstand court crowd in the first round when he knocked off former Wimbledon champion Roy Emerson and went on to prove it was no fluke as he flattened Ray Moore of Australia in the second round.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael won twice yesterday, downing Carol Graebner in quarterfinal singles, 6-3, 7-5, and winning in doubles with partner Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., 6-1, 6-1.

In action Wednesday, young Tom Gorman of Seattle defeated Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 7-5, 0-6, 6-4, as seeded players broke about even during second round play.

"Okker is the highest ranked player I've ever beaten," Gorman said. "I broke his serve only twice and he broke my serve three times."

Gorman's victory over Okker was one of three upsets in the round. Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., seeded No. 6, was beaten decisively by Thomaz Koch of Brazil, 6-3, 6-2. Dennis Ralston, Bakersfield, Calif., ninth seeded, was toppled by Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 7-6, 6-3.

Seeded players advancing to the third round included fifth seeded Pancho Gonzales, who outlasted Richard Crealy of Australia 7-6, 3-6, 7-6; Andres Gimeno of Spain, No. 8, who turned back Jaime Fillol of Chile, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, and Stan Smith, Pasadena, Calif., who defeated Charles Pasarell, Puerto Rico, 6-4 and 6-2.

MARIN GOLF

Lazzarini Repeat Winner

Don Lazzarini won his fourth Meadow Club golf championship in five years Sunday. He defeated Dr. Robert Knudson on the second hole of a sudden death playoff after both had posted the same score — 303 — in regulation play.

Knudson carded a 72 for the final 18 holes, at the Fairfax course, six strokes better than Lazzarini, Dr. Mark Gilberg nearly made the playoff also, but missed a birdie putt on the 18th hole that give him a tourney total of 304.

Fourth place went to Joe Campbell, who fired a final round 73 for a 36-hole total of 306.

In other club championships in progress in Marin county, four players advanced to the third match-play round at Indian Valley, and Mill Valley narrowed its field to eight.

Former champion George Scherba of Indian Valley and defending champ Jim Brown of Mill Valley both won their matches.

Mrs. William May took her 12th women's title in 13 years at Novato's Indian Valley course Sunday, winning by 10 strokes over second place finisher Mrs. Roger Williams .

Marin golfers recorded two holes-in-one recently, one at Peacock Gap and the other at Lake Tahoe. At the San Rafael course, 51-year-old Charlie Oogh of San Rafael aced the 140-yard 10th hole using an eight iron. William Haley of Novato scored on the 272-yard 7th hole at the Tahoe Paradise Golf Course in Tahoe Valley. He used a No. 2 wood.

20 YEARS' SERVICE

McCarthy Views Accomplishments

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin's veteran state senator, John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, pulled the political surprise of the local 1970 season when he announced last winter that he was ending his 20-year career in the Legislature.

Few men close a political career at the age of 46, but McCarthy had the advantage of having been the youngest man ever elected to the California Senate.

His election at the age of 26 was "the biggest thrill" of his career, McCarthy told the Independent-Journal in an interview in his San Rafael office. He won by 81 votes in a four-way race with men far better known in the community.

The election made him a junior peer of senators whose age averaged almost 70. "I had to learn fast," McCarthy said of his first session in Sacramento.

During the interview, McCarthy flipped slowly through a scrapbook of his newspaper clippings. The mammoth volume must have weighed almost 50 pounds, and was only one of the four he has filled.

He recalled a belt full of accomplishments, especially his "two great battles" to build the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and to create the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. Marin originally was in the district, but dropped out after engineers said the Golden Gate Bridge could not support trains.

McCarthy carried the bill to build the bridge in his first year, and got it passed by only one vote in the Assembly after a fight that lasted almost until the last day of the session. And when he discovered that the bridge was going to have only three lanes on a single two-way deck, he won passage of a $5 million loan from school funds to build a second deck.

McCarthy also pushed through a measure cutting from two-thirds to 60 per cent the margin of voter approval needed to create the district was approved by 61 per cent of the voters.

Other accomplishments McCarthy cited as high points of his Senate years were getting the one-way toll on the Golden Gate Bridge cut from 40 to 25 cents, getting the second Waldo Tunnel built, and eliminating the sales tax on prescription drugs.

He also headed a two-year study by a businessmen's committee of accounting procedures in the Department of Public Works. Its cost controls saved the state millions of dollars a year, and became the model for reform in other departments, he said.

The major disappointments, McCarthy acknowledged, were unsuccessful trys to create a transportation agency to run all Bay Area bridges, ports and airports. His proposed Golden Gate Authority died by one vote in the Senate.

Sen. JOHN F. McCARTHY
Ending long career

McCarthy also recalled his unsuccessful campaign for a bridge linking Tiburon and San Francisco. "It should have been built, and we would have had rapid transit by now. It would have fitted right into the overall system."

One certain disappointment was his race for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor in 1962. He lost to former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, but ran a strong race.

That McCarthy long was a power in the state was proven by his 10 years both as his party's leader in the upper house and as a member of the Senate Rules Committee. "That's a long time to last in that position," McCarthy said of his tenure on the powerful committee.

His future plans, he said, still are uncertain. First, he will continue as a senator until January. His monthly retirement pay will be about $1,100 plus cost-of-living increases. The amount has not yet been computed, his staff said. McCarthy said he had offers for jobs from both the Reagan and Nixon administrations, but probably would go into private business. Most likely, he indicated, he will get into governmental relations" for a development company.

He stressed that this would not be lobbying, a position he said he also has been offered, but was a public relations position for a company that would involve smoothing the way with local government officials for the company's projects.

"I don't want to do that much work," he added. "I want to play some golf, too."

McCarthy, looking about an office crowded with mementos, said his first problem upon retiring will be finding enough room for all the things he has collected in 20 years.

Will he return to politics? "Not right now, but that doesn't mean I won't someday."

FIRST SIX MONTHS

Nation's Crime Rate On Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced Thursday that serious crime in the nation climbed 11 per cent in the first half of 1970 over the first six months of last year.

"None of us in law enforcement can take any comfort from these figures until we can report a reduction in the total number of crimes," he said in a brief announcement in the six-month FBI Uniform Crime Reports.

The Justice Department previously had reported an encouraging drop in the rate of increase in crime since President Nixon took office. The latest report showed the crime rate was 2 per cent higher than the first half of 1969.

Earlier the department said the rate of increase in 1969 over 1968 had jumped only 12 per cent compared with 17 per cent during the last year of the Johnson administration.

Crime rose 13 per cent during the first quarter of 1970 over the same period in 1969, but the department took comfort in the fact the rate of increase of violent crime had slowed by 7 per cent in the major cities and by 3 per cent in the country as a whole.

This time about all Mitchell could find encouraging was that "the number of murders and rapes in the District of Columbia during the first half of 1970 is actually less than in the same period in 1969.

"This is in sharp contrast to a year ago, when murders in the district had increased by 42 per cent and rapes had increased by 50 per cent over the year before," he said, commenting on what President Nixon called the "crime capital of the world" in his presidential campaign.

The six-month figures released by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Thursday showed that violent crime was up 10 per cent and property crime up 12 per cent nationwide for an over-all boost of 11 per cent.

The six-month increase was 9 per cent in 1969 over 1968 after reaching a high of 21 per cent in the first half of 1968 over 1967.

The latest report showed the crime rate increased 5 per cent in the South, 14 per cent in the North-Central states, 12 per cent in the West and 6 per cent in the Northeast.

First Americans Arrive In Beirut

Amman Airlifts Begin

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The United States and Britain today began evacuating their nationals from Amman, torn by eight days of civil war but quieter now than any time since the war began. Sporadic fighting was reported in the city but not enough to halt the airlift.

The first planeload of Americans arrived in Beirut aboard a Coronado (Convair 990) chartered from the Lebanese Middle East Airlines. An airline spokesman in London said 100 Americans were believed to be aboard, mostly women and children who were given first preference.

FIRST PLANE

The plane landed in Beirut at 5:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m. EDT). A spokesman said the 112-passenger plane also carried some Indians, Malaysians and "possibly other nationalities" caught up in the fighting. A Red Cross plane bringing wounded evacuees to Beirut also was arriving tonight.

Two planeloads of British nationals landed in Nicosia, Cyprus, today from Amman. The American nationals were flying aboard a plane chartered from the Lebanese Middle East Airline to avoid any semblance of U.S. intervention. They were flying the Americans to Beirut.

OFFER TO OTHERS

The United States in a broadcast by the Voice of America offered to evacuate citizens of Italy, the Netherlands, West Germany and Nationalist China. It chartered a total of three Coronados (Convair 990s) from the Lebanese concern.

There was still no word on the fate of 54 hostages, 37 or 38 of them Americans who were taken from hijacked airliners. UPI Correspondent David Zenian reported from Amman that U.S. ambassador L. Dean Brown drove in an armored car to King Hussein's palace to inquire about their fate. They were thought to be in northern Jordan or even Syria.

NO CONFIRMATION

The State Department said the first Coronado left Beirut at 8:45 a.m. EDT for Amman but there had been no cable confirmation of its arrival or departure. Communications were in a hopeless jumble and there were no telephone lines from the airport to the city.

Zenian, in one of the few direct reports from Amman in days, said occasional sniper fire in the capital still drew army artillery bombardment but that the fighting had ebbed and the shooting was only sporadic.

Fires still burned in the city and from time to time he could hear the cry of wounded begging for help. But he said anyone seen moving during the

Jordan's Capital: City Of Corpses

By ARTHUR CHESWORTH

BEIRUT — Amman is dying — a long, slow, cruel death. The dead cannot be counted. The wounded cannot be comforted. The dispossessed cannot be compensated.

Two-thirds of a once proud royal capital of 600,000 has been utterly destroyed.

For the past six days I watched every minute from my hotel in Amman — itself a fortress under heavy and almost constant artillery and machine-gun fire.

Yesterday, under armed escort, together with other correspondents, I was taken to the airport and flown here to safety.

The army of King Hussein with its tanks and artillery has got a grip on most of the city.

But the cost was terrible.

Thousands of dead and dying and wounded lie in the streets under the wreckage of houses and buildings. A sad victory — if victory it is — for Hussein.

Indisputable facts are hard to come by.

The Red Cross estimates that between 5,000 and 10,000 were killed or wounded in the past six days.

The commandos say that at least 8,000 of them have died and their casualties number tens of thousands.

They say that in one refugee camp alone 7,000 are dead.

I walked half a mile along the main road outside to what had been the front line of the army attack on the old town.

I passed huddles of troops, their faces bearing the strain and the dust from six sleepless days and nights.

The streets were strew with uprooted trees and telegraph poles and all the garbage of war, heaps of spent cartridge and shell cases, the wreckage of armored cars, the chunks of blasted concrete, the still-burning timbers from wrecked houses.

The lines of limestone houses all bore the black scars of shrapnel and bullets. And scattered across the square mile of side street I saw many blackened heaps of what had once been handsome villas.

Men, womenmnd children lay behind hedges in their gardens still dazed — breathing the air of freedom after days of lying terrified in cellars or on the floor of their homes.

One Jordanian woman in a torn and bloodstained Arab dress came running to me weeping over her small baby girl: "Why don't they stop? Where will this end? We don't know what to do. There's nowhere to go. I know we're lucky still to be alive but if this goes on we'll all be killed."

Above her little stone house which had been ripped by bullets, hung a torn sheet on a stick from a window — a makeshift white flag. And these pathetic symbols now hang from thousands of homes around the city.

One man limping along the street — he had been slightly wounded by a bullet in the foot — told me: "I live lower down in the town and in my street there must be four or five dead in many of the houses."

The man, dressed only in a dusty shirt and trousers and

Explosion Rips Hole In Jet; Safe Landing

LONDON (UPI)—An explosion today blew a hole in the front section of an Aer Lingus Boeing 707 jetliner minutes before it landed safely at London's Heathrow Airport. Airport officials said 10 passengers were treated for shock and one was taken to a hospital.

Ten crew members and 112 passengers were aboard the New York to London flight.

Aer Lingus, Ireland's major airline, announced in New York that the "explosion" appeared to be decompression due to failure in the outer skin of the fuselage at the forward cargo door. The airline said it was not a bomb-type explosion.

Aer Lingus said one stewardess was slightly injured when scalded by hot water.

Airport officials said at first there were "some injuries" to passengers, but later advised those were treated mainly for shock. One, a woman, was taken away on a stretcher and put in an ambulance, they said.

As the plane taxied to a stop, a hole measuring three feet by two feet could be seen clearly above the ninth and 10th windows of the first class compartment.

The airplane and the area around it were quickly cordoned off and Scotland Yard's special branch called in to investigate.

The unidentified copilot said the jetliner from New York, which had landed at Shannon, Ireland, en route, was about 15 minutes from landing at London when "all we heard was a loud bang. Then suddenly we had a loss of pressure."

One passenger said the pilot announced over the intercom that a window had broken, but there were no signs of a broken window when the plane landed.

Seashore Pleas: Quiet, Scenic Retreat From Maddening Crowds

Point Reyes National Seashore should be preserved in its natural state, providing a quiet, scenic retreat from the cars, the noise and the rush of today's living.

That was the answer the people gave last night to a National Park Service team set to draw up a master plan for the seashore.

Speaker after speaker from an audience of about 170 persons at Marin Civic Center pleaded for leaving the land much as it is and no one spoke for major development.

Pierre W. Joske, Marin County parks and recreation director, urged that the park service protect the serenity of the area . . . "save it for the reconstruction of the human soul and the declaration of the pace of life."

There were calls to protect the natural habitat of wildlife, keep the automobiles out, keep motorcycles off the hills, have a low level of development and preserve dairy ranches.

John F. West, Marin County planning commissioner, urged "preservation of the natural character of the area . . . the whole reason for establishing of the seashore."

Thomas T. Storer, attorney and former Marin County Supervisor, said automobiles could ruin the seashore "and any development should de-emphasize automobiles."

Storer proposed that there be "an old-fashioned train" from Central Marin to the seashore and a "taxi-ferry" service from San Francisco to avoid a crush of auto traffic to the seashore.

Storer suggested the planner consider having a youth hostel and a harbor of refuge at the seashore, banning beach buggies and restricting jet flights over the area.

"Preserve the beauty and have the use oriented toward people relaxing," he said.

Park Supt. James Roof of the East Bay Regional Park District, advocated putting up an entrance booth "and letting the rest of it alone. "Leave places where people can go and get away from cars. Places where people can walk are shrinking."

Harold E. Gregg, executive director of the Marin Conservation League, spoke of preserving the seashore in its natural beauty, which would offer a "complete change from urban and suburban life."

Gregg urged immediate acquisition of all the lands slated for the seashore, and said access to the area should be over several routes and primarily by public transportation.

Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, Republican candidate for the state Senate, described the seashore area as "very fragile, precious, original part of the world we want to enjoy as is."

Behr said it could become "one of the largest and most delightful outdoor zoos" in the state under a policy of restoring indigenous game. He said he'd like to see coyotes, badgers, and sea otters.

One speaker, William Ramsey, criticized park service policy, which he said had "confused access with automobiles" until it was finally realized this was wrong at Yosemite.

Taxpayers have put out money "to buy a piece of land that hasn't been loused up," Ramsey said. "We hope you don't justify the money expended by turning around and lousing it up."

George Jenkins of the Urban Arts Foundation proposed that the foundation be permitted to establish and operate a center for environmental studies, which would serve minority high school students from San Jose, San Francisco and Oakland.

The protection and the use of the seashore extends beyond Marin County, and Marin isn't safe if others misuse the seashore, he commented.

Raymond Gambonini, representing Consolidated Milk Producers, asserted that dairy ranches are part of the rural atmosphere and should bel eased back to existing dairy ranchers. The character of the area includes the cattle, the weather-beaten fences and buildings, he said.

Attorney Bryan F. McCarthy, representing dairy ranchers, said the ranchers want to help preserve the beauty of the area, and "ranching is compatible with seashore use . . . dairy ranching won't hurt it one bit.

Toby Giacomini, Point Reyes Station businessman, said a major share of the town's business comes from ranchers on Point Reyes, and if they were moved out, it would have a serious impact on the community.

There was a plea to preserve the Drake and Limantour esteros, a stopover for migrating black brants, a vanishing breed.

Auto Insurance Firm Sets Bay Operations In Marin

Automobile Mutual Insurance Co. of American will move its entire San Francisco office operations to Marin County in January.

The company, headquartered in Providence, R.I. and specializing in automobile and home owners insurance, has leased the entire fifth floor of the Holiday Plaza Office Building (approximately 4,000 square feet) in Terra Linda for a district headquarters.

The building, still under construction, is located near Holiday Inn on the promontory overlooking the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway and the 101 Highway and is owned by GIF Properties, Inc., an eastern organization.

The lease transaction was handled by Robert Strom of the San Francisco office of Grubb and Ellis Co. the exclusive leasing agent.

Automobile Mutual maintains 35 branch offices throughout the United States. Two of its San Francisco officials are residents of Marin County. Rodger Broomhead, resident vice president and manger of all western offices, lives in Ross. Earl Koehler, also a vice president and district claims manager, lives in San Rafael.

Victory For Gretel II In America's Cup Race

BULLITIN

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)— Gretel II of Australia, benefiting from a wind shift on the final leg, upset defending Intrepid of the United States by one minute, three seconds today to cut the U.S. lead to 3-1 in the America's Cup Yacht series.

Gretel, trailing by 1:02 at the end of the fifth leg, caught the wind shift first and zoomed in front of Intrepid with about 200 yards to go and successfully tacked across to gain their first official victory in the series.

Last Sunday Gretel finished first but was disqualified by the New York Yacht Club race committee for a starting line infraction.

Today's race was almost a duplication as Gretel rallied in the face of a 4-0 deficit to give Sir Frank Packer's syndicate its first victory since the 1962 series against Weatherly, which lost 4-1.

Intrepid was seeking to complete a sweep of the series and led from the start until overtaken by Gretel.

The American yacht built a 54 second lead after the end of the fourth leg even though it had spinnaker trouble.

At the end of the first mark the American craft led by 29 seconds and its advantage at completion of the second mark was 24 seconds.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Saw Friends Die

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Blonde actress Sharon Tate was the last to die in the bloody foray at her home because her killers wanted her to witness the other victims slain first, a witness at the Charles Manson murder trial testified Wednesday.

Barbara Hoyt, 18, a buxom brunette with thick horn-rimmed glasses, introduced one of the most damaging statements of the trial against the defendants by repeating a conversation she said she overheard about a month after the slayings.

It was the first testimony in the 14-week-old trial concerning admissions about the killings except for the story of key state witness Linda Kasabian, who said she was at the Tate home the night of the murders.

Pornography Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without a dissenting vote, the Senate has approved doing what a presidential commission says should not be done—make it tougher for smut peddlers to do business.

At the same time, a Senate subcommittee heard three witnesses attack the forthcoming report on the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography as a shoddy scientific study that amounts to a "magna carta for pornographers" to ply their trade.

The commission report — to be made public Sept. 30 — is known to conclude pornography largely is harmless and to recommend all laws restricting it for adults be abolished.

But the Senate, without mentioning the controversial document, approved on a 79 to 0 roll call vote a bill to sharply curtail the amount of sexy advertising that pours unsolicited into American homes.

Okinawa Accord

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force has agreed to remove all its B52 bombers from Okinawa, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said today.

The foreign ministry said, however, the bombers may be returned to Okinawa if future operations require it.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman would neither deny or confirm the report, but said, "An embassy official discussed the matter with foreign ministry officials this morning."

Japanese government sources said the notice from the U.S. Embassy did not say when the bombers would be removed, but they understood the removal of the planes would be in the "very near future."

Lunar Space Feat

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's Luna 16, loaded with rocks from the moon, landed today in Soviet Central Asia, completing the first round trip between Earth and the surface of a space body by an unmanned craft, the news agency Tass said.

"The return apparatus of the station Luna 16 landed in the preset area of Kazakhstan (the Soviet Central Asian Republic) at 8:20 a.m. Moscow time (1:20 a.m. EDT)," Tass said.

Nixon Trip Doubts

LONDON (UPI)—President Nixon may postpone or cancel his European tour next week if the Middle East crisis gets worse, according to Herbert G. Klein, White House director of communications.

But he said that, as of now, the President has no intention of doing so.

Klein told a news conference Wednesday the Nixon Administration does not rule out possible military intervention in Jordan to save American lives, including those of hijack hostages held by Palestine commandos.

Anti-Nixon Rallies

ROME (UPI)—Communists demonstrated in three Italian cities Wednesday against the impending visit of President Nixon and threatened a week of nationwide protests. Nixon arrives Sunday.

The demonstrations in Rome, Naples and Milan were relatively small but police said they might prelude riots such as those that marred Nixon's February, 1969, visit when 119 persons were injured and one leftwing student fell to his death from a rooftop.

Four separate Communist rallies in Rome Wednesday were peaceful. In Naples two policemen were injured in a battle with about 100 demonstrators.

Developer Cited For Saving Clues To Indian Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An anthropologist is praising a land developer for preserving clues near Half Moon Bay to the culture of Indians who may have lived there 5,000 years ago.

Robert Schenk, San Francisco State College's Treganza Anthropology Museum curator, gave his compliment Wednesday to Deane and Deane, Inc., a firm which owns 8,000 acres in the area and plans a resort hotel and golf course.

Called in before bulldozing, Schenk and a party of anthropologist gound the sites of 18 prehistoric villages on the land and preliminary diggings have produced mortars and pestles used to grind grain.

Bruce Asks Further Clarification Of Reds, Vietnam Peace Proposal

PARIS (UPI)—The United States today asked the Vietnamese Communists for "further clarification" of their latest peace proposals. But it said the package did not appear to offer anything new.

At the same time, Ambassador David K. E. Bruce accused the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong of using American prisoners and their families as "pawns to achieve your political objectives."

Earlier, Saigon's chief delegate at the Vietnam peace talks rejected the week-old Communist "peace initiative" and said it showed no change in the Communist aim of seizing power in South Vietnam.

Bruce, in the first formal U. S. response to an eight-point proposal from the Viet Cong on Sept. 17 offering a cease-fire if American and Allied troops were pulled out of Vietnam by next June, said:

"While you have rearranged some of the elements of your earlier proposals and added certain detail to them, it would appear that your fundamental demands remained unchanged. However, if you intended in your latest statements to convey new positions, we would welcome further clarification from you."

Bruce said American goals continue to be the withdrawal of all "outside forces" from South Vietnam, although he did not mention North Vietnamese troops specifically. He also said the Communist demand for the overthrow of the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu and their refusal to negotiate with that government "is unrealistic . . ."

South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, Thieu's official representative at the talks, arrived in Paris two hours before today's session but refused to talk to newsmen and did not sit in on the session. Aides said they did not know how long he would stay or any details of his program.

Bruce devoted almost half of his 550-word statement to demands, the Communists begin immediate talks on better treatment for American war prisoners.

In their latest package, the Communists had offered to hold talks on the release of the American prisoners in return for a troop withdrawal within a nine-month deadline.

"You cannot avoid your responsibility by using these helpless men and their anguished families as pawns to achieve your political objectives," Bruce said.

Chief Saigon negotiator Pham Dang Lam told the 85th session of the deadlocked conference the eight-point Communist proposal was unacceptable because it demanded unilateral Allied troop withdrawal and the overthrow of the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu as preconditions for a negotiated peace.

The proposals, he said, "further underline the intransigent aspects of your position and reveal even more clearly your objective which continues to be the seizing of power in South Vietnam."

The proposals, submitted last week by the Viet Cong, offered the United States a cease-fire and immediate discussions on the release of U.S. prisoners in return for a U.S. and Allied troop withdrawal by June 30, 1971.

Rail Dispute Settlement May Be Near

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Railroad and union negotiators, apparently near a settlement, agreed early today to postpone for two weeks a strike deadline over the issue of whether firemen should be used on diesel freight locomotives.

No one, including Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, appeared fully satisfied with the progress made in a 13-hour negotiating session that lasted until 1:30 a.m. EDT today, but the clear indication was a settlement could be reached on the 11-year dispute within the two-week period.

WORKERS STAY ON JOB

Unlike past rail strike deadlines, no local union members staged wildcat strikes when the 12:01 a.m. deadline passed today, and rail lines reported operations normal.

The new strike deadline is 12:01 a.m. Oct. 8.

"I am disappointed that no settlement was reached," Hodgson said at an early morning news conference. "But I am appreciative of the fact that further opportunity for negotiations now exists without an immediate threat of a strike."

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

United Transportation Union negotiator H. Edward Gilbert, gripping a briefcase and looking for a taxi, said Wednesday's talks were "not satisfactory," but that he held hope for settlement in the new round beginning today.

At issue is the need for firemen on diesel locomotives. The union insists they are necessary to maintain safety standards. The railroads contend an engineer and a brakeman can handle all work in the cab and that the fireman issue boils down to little more than "old-fashioned featherbedding."

After a series of strikes and strike threats beginning in 1959, Congress passed legislation in 1963 to permit the railroads to phase out the 38,000 jobs held by firemen on diesels.

But the legislation had a two-year limit. The union renewed its battle in 1965 to keep firemen.

Soviets Say Cholera Epidemic Is Over

Health Minister Boris Petrosky lifted the quarantine from the Volga estuary city of Astrakhan and its surrounding region, where the disease had been at its most virulent, the official Tass news agency said.

Carter Captures Georgia Primary

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, a wealthy peanut farmer who called himself one of Georgia's "little people," won a smashing victory over former Gov. Carl E. Sanders Wednesday night in a Democratic primary runoff for governor.

"The voters' decision probably will go down as one of the greatest victories that has ever been seen in this state," said the 45-year-old former state senator.

Carter had led Sanders, also 45, in the first primary two weeks ago, but a nine-man field kept him from getting a majority. He kept his momentum in Wednesday's runoff. Three hours after the polls closed his lead was so large that Sanders conceded.

Also in the voting, Andrew J. Young, a former aide to the late Martin Luther King Jr., won a first step toward becoming Georgia's first black congressman in 100 years. Young, 38, beat white attorney Wyman C. Lowe for the Democratic nomination in the 5th District and will meet Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson in November.

In another runoff, Dawson Mathis, 29, a former television newsman at Albany, beat attorney Harry Wingate for the 2nd Congressional District nomination. He has no Republican opposition and will succeed retiring Democrat Rep. Maston O'Neal.

With 1,993 of 2,045 precincts reported, Carter claimed more than 59 per cent of the vote, 495,209 to 340,082 for Sanders, and was losing in only eight of Georgia's 159 counties.

Organized Labor Gives Top Priority To Health Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized labor gave unequivocal endorsement today to legislation to set up comprehensive health insurance protection for all Americans to reverse what was described as a "shocking decline" in standards.

One day after the Nixon administration attacked national health insurance as unworkable, too costly and a risky break with the past, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, gave it top priority among domestic issues before Congress.

In prepared testimony for the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, Meany said labor did not realistically expect final action this year but that the need for a national health plan was so urgent that delay beyond 1971 should not be tolerated.

He said several pending bills in Congress would serve to "control the runaway cost inflation of medical care," with each containing particularly worthwhile features that might be combined.

NOT A SEA MONSTER

Heat Forces Power Cut For Third Day

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Utility companies along the east coast began reducing power again today while an unseasonable heat wave pushed temperatures into the 90° bracket for the third straight day.

The Potomac Electric Power Co., which services the capital, reduced power by 5 per cent today. Temperatures in Washington Wednesday reached the 96 mark, making it the hottest day of the year.

In New York City, Consolidated Edison first dropped voltage by 3 per cent and later cut back another 2 per cent for a total power cut of 5 per cent. Wednesday, Con Ed cut its output by 8 per cent.

The Virginia Electric Power Co. which serves two thirds of Virginia and parts of West Virginia and North Carolina, also cut voltage 5 per cent for the third consecutive day.

The voltage drops were deemed necessary despite pleas from officials and the utilities for consumers to conserve electricity. In New York City thousands of apartment dwellers did their part by turning off unneeded lights and air conditioners. Some, however, ignored the pleas.

In the suburbs on Long Island, the barbecue was back in style Wednesday night as housewives shunned the electric range for chaircoal briquets and outdoor dining.

A Con Ed spokesman said, "We have received wonderful cooperation, but again today we beg the public to use electricity sparingly. A critical situation still exists."

U.S. Mortar Crews Bomb Own Troops; Two GIs Die

SAIGON (UPI) — American mortar crews mistakenly bombarded their own troops Wednesday night in Central South Vietnam, killing two GIs and wounding four others, the U. S. Command said today.

The incident involved a unit of the 2nd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division. The outfit was shelled while operating 16 miles south of Bong Son and 289 miles northeast of Saigon. Another Army unit mistakenly fired 38 rounds of 4.2 inch and 81mm mortar at the infantrymen.

The Army said the incident was under investigation.

The U. S. Command also reported 52 Americans killed in the war last week and 333 GIs wounded. The death toll matched that of Aug. 22, the lowest of the year. It brought to 43,674 toe total Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961.

Communiques in Phnom Penh said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese defenders of Tang Kauk are so well dug in that air strikes have been powerless to dislodge them. Cambodian troops failed again Wednesday to capture the town.

Cambodian military officers at the operational base of Skoun said the Communists have again cut off supply routes to a major government force north of Phnom Penh. They said the Communists blew up three bridges along Highway 6 at the rear of the task force.

Troops of the force, largest assembled by the Cambodians, continued fighting Communist units that stalled its advance 11 days ago. Ten Cambodian troops were killed and 60 wounded in fighting Wednesday, the officers said.

U.S. C119 Shadow gunships poured thousands of rounds of gunfire into the Communist positions in the town Wednesday, observers at the front said. But the observers said no American strikes were flown in support of Cambodian forces.

Tang Kauk is 52 miles north of Phnom Penh and the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have chosen the town to stand and fight, stalling the largest Cambodian operation of the war for 11 days. The Cambodians have 16 battalions or nearly 10,000 men in the campaign, double the number of troops that set out from Skoun, 27 miles north of Phnom Penh, more than two weeks ago in an effort to break the Communist siege of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of the capital.

The Cambodian assault on Tang Kauk intensified Wednesday after two days of maneuvering troops into position. But the spokesman said the Cambodians so far have been unable to encircle the Communists, who could still escape to the north if they wanted to.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese inside Tang Kauk fired back with 57mm recoilless rifles, 82mm mortars and six-foot-long 122mm rockets, military officers at Tang Kauk said.

The use of the 122mm rockets, one of the largest indirect fire weapons the North Vietnamese have in their arsenal, emphasized further that the Communists plan to stand and fight at Tang Kauk, Cambodian military officers said.

The spokesman said the Cambodians had suffered "quite a number of casualties" but later called the casualties "moderate." He declined to provide specific numbers for security reasons.

Cambodian spokesmen said the Communists were defending the town largely from bunkers constructed in a school complex. Some bunkers can hold as many as a dozen troops.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported the loss of an Air Force F105 Thunderchief jet fighter-bomber Wednesday over Laos. The pilot of the $2.1 million plane parachuted to safety over the South China Sea and was rescued unhurt.

Saboteur Sentenced For Bombing

OAKLAND (UPI) — A one-time University of California research assistant, who admitted a sabotage bombing, was sentenced Wednesday to from one to five years in prison.

Judge Harold E. Hove, standing on the opinion of a psychiatric board, disallowed arguments that Anthony R. Tankersley, 29, had done an "about face" since a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. pole was bombed in the Berkeley hills Sept. 1, 1968.

"Unfortunately he saw the wrong way to go and ended up this way," the judge commented.

Tankersley and his wife, Susan, 27, fled to Canada after the pole was damaged and police later found a large quantity of exposives, booby traps, literature and a list of San Francisco Bay Area targets during a raid on their home in Richmond.

In arguing for probation, defense attorney Coleman Fanning declared Tankersley no longer believed in violence as a means of gaining revolutionary objectives.

First Step Taken To Adopt Downtown Plan

The Novato Planning Commission last night took the first step officially to adopt the long-awaited downtown plan.

Following a two-hour presentation by consultant Thomas Cooke of San Francisco before an audience of 60 persons, the commission voted 6-0 to recommend that the city council adopt two sections of the voluminous plan — the "overall goals and policies for downtown development" and the "proposed structure of the downtown."

The commission and the council later will set hearings on the Seway and Cooke report's proposals for specific sub-areas, including a major regional shopping center on the Pinheiro property.

No opposition was voiced at last night's discussion, commission member Benjamin F. Edwards reported. Individual landowners, including shopping center owner Richard Nave, had questions about the uses proposed for their specific properties, but the discussion centered more on such problems as financing the downtown proposals and possible development of the Sutter Hills area as a park-apartment neighborhood.

The commission and staff explained that last night's actions carefully avoided "locking in specific areas to specific uses."

The commission, adopted the goals as the probably highest use of the areas involved, Edwards explained today.

Cooke warned the audience that financing would be one of the most important hurdles to overcome. The report extensively outlines various financing proposals, ranging from urban renewal through combined development by city and private holding companies, to individual landowners' efforts.

In another action at last night's special meeting, the commission unanimously asked the county planning commission to postpone action on proposals for an industrial park and mobile home park off the end of the main runway at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Unresolved worries about development in the air safety zone were the main reasons for the delay request, the city planners said. The development, sought by Marvin Soiland of Novato and associates, is on the agenda for Monday's meeting of the Marin County Planning Commission.

Trans World Airways Vice President Richard Wilson, in Amman to try to free the hijack hostages, returned today to the Inter-Continental Hotel after spending two nights under fire at the American Embassy, which was hit four times by mortars during the fighting.

He said the ambassador had been trying for days to see Hussein but only today an armored personnel picked up the Ambassador and took him to the palace. Hussein said earlier house to house searches in Amman and searches of refugee camps had failed to turn up prisoners.

As the military situation eased, the United States said it was lowering somewhat the level of alert of some U. S. military units which had been told to prepare for possible duty in evacuation of Americans from Jordan.

Meanwhile, at the United Nations, Britain called on the Arab governments today to end the fighting in Jordan and insure humanitarian treatment for all wounded or left homeless in the conflict.

"We are relying on the Arab governments to achieve these minimum objectives," British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home said in a policy speech to the General Assembly.

Also it was reported, President Nixon was clearly more relaxed today than he had been the past few days during the fighting in Jordan, with U.S. forces on alert for possible duty.

The President breakfasted with 63 freshman Republican congressmen and chatted good-naturedly with them and with tourists afterward outside the White House.

He displayed a similar attitude when newsmen were allowed into his office briefly for photographs of a meeting with Yugoslavia's ambassador to Washington, Bogdan Crnobrina.

Military observers in Tel Aviv said the Syrian pullout, although as yet incomplete, decreased prospects for any immediate Israeli intervention in the Jordanian fighting.

However, a call by King Hussein for the Palestinian guerrillas to join his in figthing their common enemy, Israel, drew a sharp reply from Premier Golda Meir.

Speaking to visiting American newspaper editors, Mrs. Meir said "this offers wonderful prospects for Israel, doesn't it?"

In reference to the Middle East peace initiative, Mrs. Meir said Israel "will never go back to the pre-1967 borders" before the Arab-Israeli war.

take "a careful look at the wildlife heritage of the Point Reyes Peninsula."

Howard Waite, president of the Inverness Improvement Association, said access to the seashore "should be other than Sir Francis Drake Boulevard through Inverness."

Dennis Teagarden, an associate professor of forestry at the University of California at Berkeley, said "the scale of development must be minimal."

Teagarden said he once had his students create six different plans for the seashore, and they reached the judgment that the public would best be served by a low level of development.

About 30 persons spoke at the hearing called by the park service to get public comment before the master planning began.

John L. Sansing, seashore superintendent, asked that written comments about planning for the seashore be sent in the next two weeks to the seashore headquarters, Drakes Beach Road, Inverness.

When a draft of a plan is completed, there will be another public hearing, Sansing said.

Mill Valley Youth Group To Provide Bike Repair Shop

The Mill Valley Youth Commission last night directed two if its members to prepare plans for a bicycle repair center.

Commission secretary David Abrahams said he and Robert O'Reilly will develop the plans for the center which will provide space and some equipment for young people to work on their bicycles.

There will be no cost for use of the center facilities, Abrahams said. He and O'Reilly will present their plans to the commission at its next meeting, Oct. 7.

The youth commission also scheduled its second annual John F. Kennedy Memorial Hike for Nov. 1 and tentatively scheduled a Halloween dance for Oct. 31 at the Mill Valley Golf Clubhouse.

Driver Injured When Hit By Bus

A Richmond woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for acute back strain suffered when her car was struck from behind by a school bus yesterday in Highway 101 near the San Rafael viaduct.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Lucy Reed, 46, was stopped in traffic at 9 a.m. when it was struck by a Three R schools bus driven by Laurence G. Clark, 21, of 401 Vendola Drive, San Rafael.

Neither Clark nor 30 school children on the bus were injured.

Two Victims Report Indecent Exposure

Two girls, 13 and 13 years old were victims of indecent exposure about 8 a.m. yesterday at Woodland Avenue and Mariposa Street, San Rafael, police reported today.

The man was described as about 20 to 22 years of age with brown hair, a small moustache, purple and pink shirt with yellow stripes, blue pants and a grey-green coat. After exposing himself, he rode eastward on a bicycle on Woodland Avenue, according to police.

Trustees To Set Uses For Tax Money

Eugene E. Jacks of the San Anselmo School District board told the city park and recreation commission last night that school trustees would set priorities for use of the district's community service tax money.

Jacks told the commission the funds are currently being used for playground and lunch-time supervision at the district's schools, secretary Marge Carroll reported today.

Priorities for their future disbursement would have to be set by the school board, Jacks said.

The city has been attempting to woo the district into parting with more of its funds for joint city-school recreation programs.

The trustees have said they are not against the city's proposal, but wish to develop a comprehensive recreation program with the city before parting with the money.

In July, city councilmen donated part of their salaries for the development of a tot lot at Brookside School. The school district in return agreed to pay half the $1,500 cost of the lot out of the service tax.

A joint meeting among the commission, city council and school board has been set for Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. at Red Hill School to discuss the comprehensive recreation program and the use of the school district's funds.

The plane was flying at 19,000 feet when the incident occurred. The pilot said he immediately made a steep dive to 9,000 feet before making his approach to the Heathrow runway.

Passengers said the lights in the aircraft flickered and tea, coffee and other drinks crashed to the floor.

An airport police officer said later that the hole in the aircraft had been blown in the cargo compartment, a sectioned off area in the first class cabin. He did not know what the cargo consisted of.

He said the hole had not blown right through the skin of the jet, but had splintered the outer panels revealing center struts.

An Aer Lingus spokesman said later that the airliner s captain, J. J. Gallagher, reported a cracked window forward of the aircraft's cargo door.

Assessment Panel To Begin Review Of 844 Appeals

Marin's Assessment Appeal Board will begin weekly meetings tomorrow to review the 844 applications from property owners who want their 1970-71 assessments reduced.

Asst. assessor Herschel Johnson said no taxpayer is scheduled to make a personal appearance at tomorrow's session because the board will concentrate on the 168 cases in which reductions have been stipulated to by the assessor.

The Assessment Appeals Board, headed by Julius H. Selinger, will meet each Friday at 9 a.m. in the Board of Supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

District Votes Four Alarm Boxes

Instead, Fire Chief James W. Kidder said today, the commission approved installing four new radio-control alarm boxes between the Grant Avenue fire station and First Street. High cost of undergrounding wires or changing to radio-type boxes for the rest of Grant Avenue dictated the commission's decision, Kidder said.

The commission also changed its next regular meeting's date from Oct. 14 to Oct. 7, so the commission can attend a meeting on proposed organization of a county-wide fire district, Oct. 14.

barefooted, was still shuddering with nerves. In his state of shock he might have been exaggerating. But it gave a picture of the kind of hell the people in their tiny, crowded houses have lived through.

I glimpsed the bodies of two commandos — both youngsters in blue sweaters and camouflage battledress — lying sprawled against a garden wall.

Nearby, I was told there were 30 or 40 bodies lying in the street. They have been there for days.

Returning to the hotel, I went over to the two armored personnel carriers standing in pools of molten metal. Commando rockets had pierced the armor-plated back door and exploded inside. In the metal wreck were the remains of what had once been men.

Down a side street was a group of weeping men, women and children, still fearful as the sound of gunfire came closer. Along that street they had run out screaming into the night as the bullets made hells of their homes, risking the gunfire rather than be trapped inside.

I crawled back to the hotel.

This was just a small part of the bloody anarchy which took over Amman — the anarchy of the gun. At the hotel, I heard what had happened down the hills towards the old town.

Fifteen commandos were holding out in an alley and in gardens a few hundred yards from the hotel. From a nearby three-story building, children hung from the windows on the second night of the fighting, calling to the commandos to stop firing.

They yelled: "Please do not shoot us — we are only children!" the building was a children's school. The commandos sent a burst of .50-caliber machine gun fire through the children's college — and there was silence.

The army has still not reached those children.

A young Palestinian engineer told me: "I was hiding with my brother on the sixth floor of an insurance building when the army came in and took all our money and jewelry. They stood us up against a wall and threatened to shoot us to stop us telling anyone. The sergeant stood in front of us and begged them to leave us alone because he said we were good men."

The Palestinian said the army trapped eight commandos in another room. When he escaped two days later the commandos were still in the building — all dead.

That, in fact, was my only "outing."

The rest I saw lying flat on my bedroom balcony on the fifth floor of the Intercontinental Hotel as machine guns sprayed walls and windows of the hotel.

Tax Bills In Mail Oct. 19 In Marin

About 75,000 tax bills will be mailed out to Marin property owners and lending institutions during the week of Oct. 19 to 25, tax collector-treasurer Stanley J. Fontez announced today.

First installment taxes for 1970-71 fiscal year are due payable from Oct. 20 and will become delinquent on Dec. 10.

"If any property owner does not get his bill by Nov. 1, he should contact us because he is not relieved of the penalty for late payment," said Fontez. "There's always the chance of a mixup in mailing bills, especially if the property changed hands recently."

Fontez estimated that this year's total property tax collection will exceed last year's $58 million.

Strike Labor Losses Rise Eight Per Cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department estimates working time lost because of strikes across the country so far this year is 8 per cent above what it was last year.

The department said idleness caused by work stoppages was estimated to amount to just over one quarter of 1 per cent of the total time worked in the first eight months of this year. This annual rate the department said, is running at the second highest annual rate in 11 years.

OBITUARIES

Matts Perry Of Sausalito Dies At 67

Mathew J. (Matts) Perry, longtime Sausalito resident and fire chief for 20 years, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital following a long illness. He was 67.

Perry was born and reared in Sausalito and attended the local schools.

His parents, Fred and Alfay Perry were early day Sausalito residents.

Fred Perry was 3 years old when he moved to Sausalito in 1884 with his parents.

The elder Perry, who dealt in real estate, was for many years owner of Perry's Market (now the Caledonia Market) at the corner of Caledonia and Pine streets.

He worked for the Sausalito Fire Department 40 years, 38 years as a paid fireman and two years as a volunteer, and retired as chief in Feburary of 1965. In April of 1966, Perry was an unsuccessful candidate for the Sausalito City Council.

He was a longtime advocate of public access to the bay and also campaigned for the council on a platform which included construction of a new city hall and library. A $560,000 bond issue, passed by voters in June, will provide for both the access and new public buildings.

Perry was a member of the Elks Lodge, Native Sons of the Golden West, Sausalito Lions Club, IDESST, the California State Fireman's Association and a life member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a brother, Frederick J. Perry, also of Sausalito; a stepson, Leonard Jukich of Sonoma and one grandchild.

A Requiem Mass will be offered Saturday at 10 a.m. in Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Sausalito, where Perry was a parishioner for many years. Recitation of the rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Coffees Slated For Smallman

Because of a composing room error, a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal omitted one campaign coffee scheduled in behalf of Robert A. Smallman, candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, and incorrectly listed another.

The story should have read that coffees will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Robert Armington at 39 Wolfe Avenue, San Rafael, and at 8 p.m. Sunday at the home of Jack Nixon, 301 Locust Avenue, San Rafael.

Also, the story said a coffee would be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Marinwood home of Mrs. Robert Banfield at 266 Glagstone Terrace. The street is Flagstone Terrace.

BRUCE WEBER

Bruce Arthur Weber, 49, of Petaluma, a federal poultry inspector, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Born and reared in San Francisco, Weber served in the Merchant Marines during World War II and later owned and operated the Petaluma Egg Ranch in San Francisco for seven years.

He had been employed by American Poultry of San Francisco until 1955 when he became a poultry processing inspector working at Fulton Processing Inc., Fulton, Sonoma County.

Weber, who lived at 3637 Middle Two Rock Road, was a member of Petaluma Elks Lodge No. 901.

He is survived by his wife, Stella; two sons, Bruce A. Weber Jr. of Petaluma and Wayne B. Weber of Whittier; his mother, Hazel D. Sagarini of San Francisco; a sister, Grace N. Weber of San Francisco; a brother, Joseph E. Sagarini of San Jose; and a grandson.

Requiem mass will be offered at 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Petaluma. Entombment will be at Calvary Cemetery. Recitation of the rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma.

MARY UPHAM

Service for Mary F. Upham of San Francisco, mother of Alice Hein of San Anselmo and a former long-time Marin resident, will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow at Daphne's in San Francisco.

Mrs. Upham, 72, died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

She was a long-time employee of the Navy Department, joining as a yeomanette during World War I and later serving in various civilian supervisorial positions until her retirement four years ago. At that time, she worked in San Francisco.

Mrs. Upham lived in San Anselmo from 1933 to 1952, when she moved to San Francisco.

Survivors are another daughter, Marjorie Upham of San Francisco, and four grandchildren.

CARL HEPP

The wife of Carl Hepp, Mill Valley Republican leader who died Tuesday, is Nan Hepp, not Anne, as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal obituary.

It performs like a big expensive American car. On the highway. In traffic. Up hills. Steep hills.

Now you can get that kind of performance from a small economy car at a small economical price. $2,356.87*.

A 1900 cc., 102 horsepower, 4-cylinder engine that gets up to 26 miles to a gallon of gas.

A 4-speed, floor-mounted transmission, synchronized in all forward gears (3-speed fully automatic transmission is available).

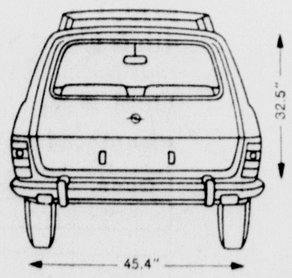
The only thing not small about the Opel Wagon is its load space. 55.6 cubic feet that's easy to get to from the swing-up tail-gate. Plus, a fold down rear seat for extra room.



Where do you find Opels?

They're sold at over 1500 Buick dealerships nationwide. Which also means you have more places to get them serviced than any other imported car. Any other.

Why not see your local Bay Area Buick-Opel dealer today. He has more Opels than ever before.

Burns Ends Last Session, Unruh Exits With Battle

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Hugh M. Burns, affable leader of the state Senate longer than any other man, traded bits of nostalgia with colleagues and then gaveled the Senate to adjournment.

Jess Unruh, former powerful speaker of the Assembly longer than any other man, led a last Assembly floor fight, lost and then drove to a campaign fund raiser.

Both men formally closed their legislative careers Wednesday in fashions highly characteristic of their distinctly different political styles.

Neither will return when the 1971 session of the Legislature convenes in January. Unruh is the Democratic nominee for governor and has surrendered his Assembly seat while Burns will retire after 34 years in the Legislature.

Burns, for 13 years Senate president pro tem before being ousted in 1969 by Republican Howard Way, was invited to preside over a brief adjournment ceremony in which retiring Senators were saluted.

Burns, a husky 68-year-old Democrat, leaned over the podium and said he was "deeply grateful for this honor to come up here and close out the last session I will participate in."

Wearing a bright blue and white checked sport coat, the gray-haired "Senator," joshed that for him the 1970 "session hasn't been so successful."

"The governor shot down 50 per cent of my legislative program," Burns said. "I had two bills and he vetoed one."

Reagan vetoed a Burns bill allowing legislative employes to join the lawmakers' own generous pension system and signed a bill giving race tracks and horse owners another $8.3 million in gambling tax revnue. Unruh failed to win enactment of a single bill during the

But he quipped to a newsman, "I'm not out of a job yet. I'm going to collect that damn salary right up until January."

As a predule, the tape recorded voice of the late longtime Senate Secretary Joseph Beek was broadcast in the chamber by the Senate's public address system. The tape recording also included Burns' voice as he presided over a session in 1968.

But while the Senate spent an extra 20 minutes saluting the retirees, there was little nostalgia in the Assembly.

Unruh, once known as the "big d addy" of the Assembly because of his political power and physical size, led a second unsuccessful assault on the partial veto by Gov. Ronald Reagan of a Highway Patrol pay raise bill.

"You know this is an outrageous veto that never should have been exercised," Unruh insisted. "You know it's a slap in the face of every law enforcement officer in this state."

Republicans refused to give the former speaker the 54 votes needed to reverse the governor and the override move failed 37-9.

It was the second consecutive day that Unruh, speaker for seven years, lost the override attempt. He unceremoniously strode out of the chamber, presumably for the last time as an Assemblyman.

Unruh headed for a campaign fund raising luncheon and Burns headed for a nearby hotel for the weekly "moose milk" luncheon sponsored by lobbyists.

CHP Association Votes To Sue In Row With Reagan Over Pay

The Assembly Wednesday refused 37-9 to reconsider its earlier 45-5 rejection of Jess Unruh's attempt to override the veto, and Vern Alexander, president of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen, said his group would file suit.

Unruh, Reagan's Democratic campaign opponent in the Nov. 3 election, denounced the veto as "a slap in the face for every law enforcement officer in the state."

Alexander said salaries paid to other police agencies are "way above ours and we should be paid commensurate with these outside agencies."

He said the association's directors have voted to file suit "as soon as possible" based on a government code provision that state workers receive "wages comparable to those prevailing wages outside state service."

The bill by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, would have given the CHP a 5 per cent pay hike in addition to the 5 per cent granted earlier to them and other state employes. Reagan cut the additional amount to 3 per cent before signing the measure.

It called or a $4.1 million raise for 5,600 uniformed patrolmen. Reagan chopped $1.6 million from the total, leaving $2.5 million. CHP salaries come from the Highway Construction Fund.

"All he did was save a half a mile of freeway," Alexander said.

"We can't live on praise any longer," he said in reference to Reagan's frequent tributes to law officers. "We've gotta have money. The time has come now to stop telling us how good we are. We can't eat on praise."

He said the 3 per cent raise still leaves the CHP below 46 other police agencies in the state.

He originally said the state's "tight fiscal situation" forced him to trim the pay raise, but later told his weekly news conference the extra 5 per cent "didn't seem fair" to other state workers.

Study Shows Bald Tire On One-Third Of Cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tire Industry Safety Council says almost one-third of the cars on the highway today have at least one bald tire and probably two.

The council, which is supported by the major tire manufacturers, said it based its claim on a study made by the National Bureau of Standards. The government study defined "bald" to mean a tire with one-sixteenth inch of tread or less and added that bald tires "are 18 times more likely to have flats than other tires."

OFF AGAIN — Peter R. Georges and his traveling companion, Ted, try to hitch a ride out of San Rafael. The pair has been roaming North America together for almost three years. Georges said he has been impressed with the kindness of the many people who have fed, sheltered and transported him and Ted during their journey.

WITH ST. BERNARD

He Gave Away All Belongings To Hitchhike, Follow Christ

By LARRY MOWELL

"Travels with Charley," John Steinbeck's novel about his wanderings with his French Poodle, immediately comes to mind when Peter R. Georges tells of his travels with Ted, a St. Bernard.

But attempting to fit Georges with any kind of label is a tough job. He is a hobo in a business suit, a hippie with short hair, a free spirit who tries to live within the system, a young man who doesn't see a generation gap.

One tag that sticks is wanderer. Georges, 24, was a third-year student at City College of San Francisco in 1967. Living in a penthouse and studying English, he said he was a fairly typical young man.

But "all the smoke and the noise and the tension and all the cutthroat competition finally got to me. I just had to leave," he said.

"I was reading in the Bible about giving up everything you have and following Christ. I gave away everything I had," he said. Between his giveaway and visit to the Independent-Journal this week, he has wandered North America — for the past two and a half years with the dog — meeting people, seeink things and trying to be a follower of Christ.

Hitching rides in Volkswagens, cargo jets, freight trains and even a canoe, he has, he said, traversed most of the United States and Canada —from the Grand Canyon to Harlem and from Hell's Angels hangous to fancy hotels.

He received his early education in parochial schools in Boyes Hot Springs and tries to follow the teachings of Christ, he said.

"My idea is a free thing is when everybody can love; can love God and fellow men. Laws should ideally only keep man from degenerating or going the wrong direction. Most of Christ's laws were very positive," he said.

He said a typical rule of Christ was: if you see a hungry man, feed him.

He said he couldn't live in the mainstream of society now partially because it is not Christian. "If you take the Sermon on the Mount and compare that to our society, it's kind of hard to say they are (Christian). If a hotel says welcome neighbor and you don't have the money, they don't want you there at all. I don't think that's Christianity at all. If people would help each other there would be no need to struggle eight hours a day to survive," he said.

"I'm trying to make me a Christian. Maybe sometimes Christ can be seen in me. I'm not saying I'm a Christian, but I'm trying," he concluded.

While not content to be in the main stream of American life, there is room, he feels, for him to live within the society. "What I'm saying is that people can be free and live in the system despite the hang-ups, the hypocrisy," he said.

He hopes to become a married Catholic priest in spite of the difficulties it would entail. He said he wants to have an open-ended family that might ideally encompass everyone, not just blood relatives.

"I could go out and continue tripping around forever, but unless everybody would come with me, it's no good," he said. Helping others find faith and peace enough to live happily is his goal.

What attracts him to wandering, he said, is that he can bring out the best in people and enjoy nature.

He told of an Alaskan fisherman who gave him Ted, a Chicago policeman who gave him a ride, a drunk who purchased a New York cut of steak for the dog, and a railroad guard who found them in a freight train and invited them to dinner so his children could see the dog.

He said he had stayed in hippie communes and suburban homes and often has slept in the wild. Some of the best moments have been provided by nature, he said.

"There is no reason everybody can't go up and see Yellowstone and the Grand Canyon and the thunder at night," he said.

His junket hasn't been without unpleasantness though. The apathy of people bothers him as do racial tensions and teen-agers beating Bowery bums. He said he has also suffered through chilly winter nights in Alaska and many hungry days.

"Right now I'm the poorest man in America — I don't even take welfare or anything — but I'm richer than 80 per cent of the world," he said.

Petaluma Will Offer Classes In Ballet, Judo

Classes in ballet and judo will be offered starting next month by the Petaluma Recreation and Parks Department.

Judo classes for children ages 6 to 14 will be held from Oct. 1 to Nov. 5 with two one-hour sessions on Thursdays at 5 and 6 p.m.

Another class may be scheduled at 7 p.m. if there is enough interest.

Ballet classes for girls between the ages of 5 and 13 are scheduled from Oct. 5 through Dec. 11 in the multi-purpose room of La Tercera School. Classes will be held at 4:15 and 5:15 p.m. Registration for both classes may be made at the park and recreation department office at Walnut Park.

New Issue In Drydocks Removal

A new legal issue loomed yesterday in the longtime battle by Marin officials to get rid of the four huge wooden drydocks bogged down in Richardson Bay.

Earlier this month, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered the drydocks demolished or removed and the county's public works department is working on specifications so that the job may be let out to a contractor.

Since then, the Board of Supervisors has also toyed with the idea of getting the Army Corps of Engineers to do the job.

However, yesterday, the owner of the drydocks, J. Christopher Roberts, filed an appeal in the District Court of Appeals in San Francisco, claiming that the courts never had jurisdiction over him.

He said that his name was improperly substituted for that of the former owner, the late Delmar D. Wise, at one stage of the proceedings.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest said that the names substitution came after Judge Gardiner's original decision that the drydocks must go was being appealed in the district court.

An attorney for Wise, Frank Peterson, suggested the substitution of Roberts's name as the new owner, saying that he had Roberts's permission. Forest said the county agreed after being assured that Peterson would represent Roberts.

Through his present attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, Roberts now claims the move was made without his consent.

If the district court rules that the name substitution was illegal, Forest said that this would nullify all proceedings by the appelate court, which upheld Judge Gardiner.

The county has been trying for three years to get the drydocks, variously described as an eyesore, a navigational hazard and a potential cultural center, removed.

District Of Columbia To Have Delegate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After 100 years without a delegate in Congress, the District of Columbia will have a nonvoting delegate. President Nixon signed a bill authorizing the step on Tuesday.

Congress abolished all elective offices in Washington in 1874 after there were various forms of self-government for 74 years. The new bill also authorizes a commission to study the efficiency of the city government and report to Congress in a year.

Crusade Leader Urges Better Job Or Face A Pullout Of Charities

"We in the Bay Area have done a lousy job, not as good as other cities in the country," Lawrence E. Hoyt of San Rafael said yesterday at a luncheon kick-off rally for Marin County volunteers for the Bay Area United Crusade.

Hoyt, vice chairman of the 1970 United crusade campaign, gave the warning to approximately 250 volunteers yesterday at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

Unless the volunteers get out to the small businesses and their employees, and homes, the lack of funds will cause individual charities to pull out of the crusade, said Hoyt, vice president of Southern Pacific Co.

"A United campaign is the most effective way to get the most mileage out of our dollars for charity," he said, warning that if other charities pull out, there would be a duplication in cost of collection and distribution of funds.

Hoyt then went on to say that it was hard to spend money well. For example, he said, the Ford Foundation hires experts to study methods of giving away its money to do the most good.

UBAC this year is starting a new program. It will ask agencies to which it gives funds, to make a yearly accounting of these funds. He said he could not see funds going to the Young Men's Christian Association for middle-age buinessmen's reducing program.

Last year the crusade gave almost $500,000 to 31 different agencies, mostly minority groups, such as an Oakland Negro group, he said.

"The true test of our society is to do something for ourselves in addition to and working with government," he said.

The Bay Area crusade goal this year is $16.8 million. This is not divided into countywide goals because large firms collect for the entire Bay Area. The telephone company employees have topped the $1 million mark so far in this campaign, Hoyt said.

Francis T. Fogerty, area director for Marin County, presented guidelines on which agencies will be judged for funding.

These are to phase out agencies that are not now relevant to the present conditions; terminate funding where it does not affect the continuation of a program; reevaluate programs for which the government has assumed responsibility; require agencies to charge full cost of services purchased from them by governmental agencies; charge private clients according to their ability to pay, and require merger of agencies of like programs.

Rotary Honors Mill Valley Man For Degree Work

A Mill Valley man, confined to a wheel chair since a gymnasium accident eight years ago, was honored Tuesday by the Mill Valley Rotary Club on his completion of work toward an accounting degree at Golden Gate College in San Francisco.

Despite paralysis from the waist down, Locati graduated from Tamalpais with his class in 1964. He took a parttime job with Mill Valley public accountant John Finn and enrolled at Golden Gate.

Dr. Russell T. Sharpe, president emeritus of the college, was present yesterday to present Locati with a certificate of completion. He will receive his bachelor of science degree in graduation ceremonies next June, and is now preparing to take the certified public accountant's examination in November.

Petaluma Opens First United Crusade Drive; Goal Set

Campaign chairman Rollan Rea said the funds will be divided among 17 agencies with the full amount to remain in Petaluma, in the case of national and countywide organizations. Heading the Golden Torch division of the campaign is George Tomasini who will be calling on individual residents for contributions.

A donation of $250 or more entitles the donor to membership in the Golden Torch Club.

Chairmen of the Pacesetters division, which includes 40 business firms, are James Ordway and Benjamin Hunt. Assisting as captains are Jack Loomis, Harold Lenhard, James Thompson, Samuel Christensen, Harold Cella and James Bengson.

Member agencies of the crusade are Petaluma Boys Club, Camp Fire Girls, Catholic Youth Organization, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Children's Home Society, Visiting Nurse Service, County Council on Aging, Catholic Community Service, Retarded Children's Council, Drug Abuse Council, Family Service Agency, Big Brothers', Legal Aid Foundation and U.S.O.

Kortum Slates Canoe Trips

Two canoe trips on the Russian River have been scheduled to benefit the political campaign of Dr. William K. Kortum of Petaluma, Democratic candidate in the First Congressional District.

River trips will be held Sunday and Oct. 4 from 8 a.m. to noon at the Bob Trowbridge canoe concession at Asti. Participants may relinquish their canoes at either the Geyserville Bridge or the Alexander Valley Bridge.

Each canoe holds three adults or two adults and two children under the age of 10.

Rights Panel To Try Quorum Again

Marin County Human Rights Commission, which failed to muster a quorum two weeks ago, will try again tonight.

The meeting is set for 8 o'clock in the supervisors' chambers at Civic Center.

Commissioners will discuss hiring a new director and a new youth worker for the human rights department. Former director Austin J. Thompson, resigned last June, and youth worker Horace White resigned last month because he was drafted into the Army.

Teen-Age Dance Set In Petaluma

A teen-age dance sponsored by the Petaluma Roost Club for teenagers will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Kenilworth Recreation Center, Petaluma.

Music will be provided by the jazz-rock group, Twenty Two from Millbrae. The dance area of the recreation hall includes a remodeled stage and additional lighting.

The event will be the first of a series sponsored by the Petaluma Recreation and Parks Department.

Coffee House Reopening Due Study

Possibilities for reopening the San Anselmo Coffee House, which closed its doors in June to its youthful patrons because of financial woes, will be discussed Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church.

Verna M. Fairchild, a member of the committee charged with overseeing operation of the coffee house, said yesterday the meeting has been called to talk with teen-agers and determine if they still have interest in the program.

If so, she continued, means of financing its operation will be discussed.

Mrs. Fairchild said if the program were to start again, it would probably stress arts and crafts activities.

"This generation of high school kids is more creative. They are more interested in using their hands than sitting around listening to music," she explained.

The coffee house, which was formerly the controversial Third Rail, closed because the church could no longer afford to budget the director's salary .

"We have received $1,000 from the county for programs," she said, "but the church is having to cut back on all its programs" because of lack of money.

The coffee house, which is located in the basement of the church at the corner of Ross Avenue and Kensington Road, was closed once before in October, Mrs. Fairhcild explained.

"We reopened it about Christmas under a new format," she continued, "but we just weren't able to find the leadership for the programs it offered."

She added that the format was based on art, music and outdoor activities, but that it eventually slipped back to the music and talk atmosphere of the Third Rail.

"The kids were able to cover the cost of the food they ate," she said, "but they couldn't cover the cost of two adults to chaperon the program or the policeman we hired to watch the outside."

She suggested that if the program starts again, membership fees may be collected to offset operation expenses.

Henry Hall Break-In

A burglar entered the Henry Hall School at 29 Lakeside Drive, Corte Madera, sometime between its closing Friday and opening Monday and stole a $25 camera and $5 in cash from the desk of kindergarten teacher Beverly Cooper, Larkspur police have reported.

Parent-Teacher Boycott Ends

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The parent-teacher boycott at Sir Francis Drake elementary school ended Wednesday after school officials said the hiring of a black principal would be given high priority.

The parents and teachers at the Hunters Point area school demanded that dilapidated buildings be repaired, a black male principal be hired and that the school be given more campus aides.

Teachers and parents met separately Wednesday and agreed that all teachers and pupils return to class Thursday morning.

Rift Nearly Destroys Proposed Sewer Study

By JEFF GREER

Marin Municipal Water District directors yesterday nearly shelved proposals to form a special assessment district for a $190,000 study on the district's proposed takeover of sewage services for Southern Marin.

But they heeded a plea to wait until Oct. 14. William Hargreaves, chairman of the Southern Marin Sewer District Advisory Committee, said this might give time to bridge the deep rifts in the committee that were revealed at yesterday's two-hour hearing on the assessment district.

During the debate, the city of Belvedere and the Tiburon Sanitary District formally demanded exclusion from the special district. Richardson Bay Sanitary District demanded answers to questions about the proposed study. A Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District spokesman said his district did not want to give up its present system for a single district idea because "Sausalito would have to pump everything uphill."

"My first inclination (over the dispute) is to say, 'forget it,'" and let the districts "live in their own filth and sludge.

"This district was asked to set up the assessment district, and I want that real clearly understood. This is not a power grabbing agency . . . either this group works together . . . or you're going to go down the tubes together."

"I resent your attitude," said Douglas De La Fontaine, advisory committee member and director of the Richardson Bay district. "Before this committee was formed, Richardson Bay (district) was a leader; all of a sudden you are calling Richardson Bay a stinker.

"We do not want out (of the assessment district) — we want in," De La Fontaine said. But he criticized lack of a voice in how the study would be done.

"I'm not going to throw my taxpayers on the mercy of you or the MMWD," het old Seeger. "The MMWD is you."

He complained that Seeger had shunned advisory committee meetings when the Richardson Bay district sought to question the study plan. When Seeger explained that Hargreaves and committee member Jerome Hauke of Mill Valley had suggested he not appear at the sessions, De La Fontaine branded the committee members' action "Presumptuous."

James Murry of the Tiburon district argued that his and all of the other Southern Marin districts should be dissolved, and an areawide district created. He said he opposed forming the assessment proposal as "a taxing district on top of the existing taxes" of his own district, and said the assessment procedure is "an evasion of the democratic process."

County Supervisor Michael Wornum agreed that "we have a plethora of special districts," but pointed out that the county had asked MMWD to make the one-district study. He argued against exclusion of any areas from the assessment district.

John F. Barrows, executive secretary of the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission, said his agency "has been barraging" the water district for five years to serve as a focal point for areawide sanitary service. He said its acceptance of the role would save at least 17 months over any method of setting up a single Southern Marin agency. He opposed any exclusions from the assessment district.

Roger Jones, engineer for the Bay Region Water Quality Control Board, also urged the assessment district action, stressing state deadlines for Southern Marin to be included in a regional planning system. If a state bond issue passes in November, he predicted, the one-district study may get up to 80 per cent financing.

Water district chairman R.G. Anderson said, "I don't know . . . I hoped we could come up with an answer today, but maybe we should dump the whole thing." Board member Jordan L. Martinelli first proposed to table the assessment district, then agreed to a three-week postponement to allow Hargreaves to seek unity among the advisory committee.

Innocent Pleas To Deer Stalking

Four men, one of them district director of the U.S. Immigration Service, pleaded innocent yesterday to citations issued for stalking white deer on Point Reyes National Seashore lands Aug. 16.

The plea came in West Marin Justice Court, where Judge David R. Baty continued the case until Oct. 7 for a decision on whether a jury trial will be held.

Cited under a state Fish and Game Code statute that prohibits carrying weapons on lands closed to hunting are Cecil W. Fullilove, 51, of Greenbrae, director of the San Francisco immigration office; Dr. Millard R. Ottinger, 77, of San Rafael, a retired physician and former Point Reyes landholder; Douglas G. Adams, 26, of San Rafael, realty broker, and James R. Aman, 31, of Point Reyes Station, truck driver.

Lines Transposed In Payroll Listings

In yesterday's Marin District Attorney's payroll listings, two lines were transposed, listing incorrect titles for two employees.

Propane-Driven Trucks Work Well For Water District

Marin Municipal Water District's latest contribution to the ecology scene — conversion of two district trucks to run on propane fuel to cut smog —is working well, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger told district directors yesterday.

The trucks were converted in the district shops three weeks ago at a cost of $245 plus eight man-hours each. They are performing on a par with similar gasoline-powered trucks, Seeger said.

As a result, the board voted to contract with Buck's Gas Service of San Jose to lease a 1,150-gallon propane storage tank at $50 for a six-to-nine-month trial period, and to buy the gas from Buck's at 14 cents a gallon.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

PIPE PURCHASE — Ordered a stockpile of water line of various sizes from American Pipe and Construction Co. for $77,646.95. Two bids were received.

TRESTLE GLEN — Postponed decision to Oct. 14 on contract to install 700-plus feet of 16-inch main in the Alto-Tiburon line, when both of two bids submitted were in excess of the $10,000 allowable on short-form, non-advertised contract work.

BIDS — Called for bids to be opened on Oct. 14 for relocation of a 12-inch main near San Quentin and for construction of a bridge and water main, estimated to cost $47,000, across a slide area on Pine Mountain tunnel access road.

CORROSION — After Seeger reported that three years use of magnesium anodes on pipeline had cut corrosion leaks by half, ordered $5,910 worth of anodes from Standard Magnesium, branch of Kaiser Chemical Co., low among six bidders.

MEADOW CLUB — Asked an invitation be sent to Meadow Club directors to attend the district board's Oct. 14 meeting, to discuss lease conditions for district land used by the club.

BOND ISSUE — Approved a policy statement and brochure in connection with district's Proposition H, an $11.5 million-bond issue sought for new construction, replacement of aging lines, and other needs. The election will be Nov. 3.

LITIGATION — Received a check for $3,404 from the American Pipe and Construction Co. as the district's latest share of court-ordered payments on a pipe overcharge. Also approved negotiation with a San Francisco attorney to represent the district in suing over possibly overpriced concrete meter boxes.

AGREEMENTS — Approved pipeline extensions for Kappas Yacht Harbor, Northgate Shopping Center Unit Two, and Roundtree Unit Two, Marinwood.

California Added To Indian Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Pitt River Indians amended their $5 billion broken treaty damage suit Wednesday to add the State of California to the list of defendants.

Indians, who contend large stretches of land were taken from them illegally, had named the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and three Shasta County officials as defendants previously.

When gold was discovered on the land "white miners and settlers proceeded to remove Indians from their land, making them homeless vagrants," the suit contends.

"The state helped this process along by refusing to enforce its laws to protect Indians and also denying them access to the courts," the suit adds.

Skyjack Plan Gets Committee's Nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's plan to put 2,500 air marshals in the sky to thwart hijackers appears headed for certain congressional approval before Congress adjourns. Equally sure of enactment is the tax on airline passengers to pay for it.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved the measure Tuesday. The House could pass it next week and the Senate soon after.

Balloonists' Spokesman Holds Hope

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for three balloonists missing in the North Atlantic says he thinks they're safe and that searchers "haven't looked in the right place yet."

Peter Dean, flight manager for the "Free Life" balloon project designed to cross the Atlantic, said Wednesday, "That balloon is too big to get lost."

Rodney Anderson, 32, a commodities broker; his television actress wife, Pamela Brown, 28, and British balloon pilot, Malcolm Brighton, 32, have been missing since Monday about 500 miles off Newfoundland when they reported they were going down in a rainstorm. They left East Hampton, N.Y., Sunday and traveled 800 miles before radioing at 7:05 p.m. Monday they were in trouble.

The search effort continued through the night Wednesday with more than a dozen planes and three ships criss-crossing more than 100,000 square miles of the North Atlantic.

"The gondola could be swamped but it couldn't sink," Dean said. "I think they're floating somewhere. The searchers just haven't looked in the right place yet."

Improved weather and visibility Wednesday buoyed the hopes of the air-sea searchers looking for the adventurers who had hoped to float from the United States to Paris and set a world distance record.

"I'm tired and the search is long," Capt. Rod Dodd, commander of one of the Canadian Argus aircraft participating in the search, said Wednesday night. "We have just finished a 17-hour flight . . . but it's not as rough as it is for the people down there."

To Eye Finances

The Marin County Housing Authority will discuss its financial status at a special meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in the authority office, 429 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Three Firms Are Accused Of False Detergent Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has accused three leading manufacturers of falsely advertising that their enzyme detergents remove all stains and dirt from clothing.

The complaint was issued against the Procter and Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, makers of Gain, Biz, and Tide XK enzyme detergents; Colgate-Palmolive Co., New York, which makes Punch, Axion and Ajax; and Lever Brothers Co. Inc., New York, makers of Drive, Ensolve and Amaze.

Gerald J. Thain, the FTC's acting assistant director for food and drug advertising, said the nine brands accounted for 99 percent of the enzyme deteregent market.

The FTC's proposed consent order stipulated that for one year after the order becomes final, if it does, the firms should disclose clearly and conspicuously in advertising and packaging "the particular types of stains likely to be found in fabrics subject to home laundry cleaning which the product cannot reasonably be expected to remove."

The proposed consent order is the first step in FTC proceedings against allegedly false ads. Without acknowledging guilt, the companies can sign the order, agreeing to stop the ads and follow the FTC's proposed rules for future advertising and labelling.

Tanker Truck Spills Gasoline At Station

About 200 gallons of gasoline were spilled at a San Anselmo gas station Tuesday when a customer's car ruptured a filler spout connecting a tanker truck to an underground tank.

Firemen used 1,800 gallons of water to wash down the gasoline that escaped at 2:32 p.m. at the 1535 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard station operated by John Young.

ASHES, HOPE AND DETERMINATION — Only ashes remain where the $60,000 home of John H. Tarman stood before this week's brushfire disaster in the Oakland-Berkeley hills .Tarman and three of his children inspect the ruins, vowing to rebuild on the site. Tarman hopes his $80,000 loss will be at least half-covered by insurance. (UPI Telephoto)

Hippies Win Respect By Helping Fight East Bay Fire Disaster

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)— Because of volunteer help in a disastrous fire, "straights" in the Oakland-Berkeley area are looking with newfound respect on previously unloved, long-haired hippies and street peope.

The "kids were working themselves to death," policeman Arthur Roth declared when the 250-acre fire was stopped after destroying 39 homes and damaging six others. "They did a damn good job."

"I arrest these kids all the time, but no more," he added.

"We had 250 to 300 so-called longhaired people," said Lt. J. B. Foster of the Oakland Fire Department. "They really put out."

"I've taken a dim view of them, but they were sure here . . . when we were in a bind."

Youngsters — armed with shovels, hoes and wet burlap sacks—swarmed out of nearby Berkeley and the University of California Tuesday to battle in brush and tinder-dry grass to put out the blaze which the American Insurance Association estimated will cost up to $3 million.

"These young people deserve to be complimented. They come in for a lot of criticism . . . but they often deserve much better, especially when they have helped save lives and property."

Frank Finney, Oakland Tribune news editor whose house was in the hilly area overlooking San Francisco Bay, wrote:

"Swarms of teen-agers and college kids—beards, shaggy locks and all—were in the area, helping immeasurably. They grabbed heavy hoses and helped firemen lug them up and down steep slopes. They carried dogs, cats and canaries to waiting cars. Many had brought shovels and they spread out below and above the houses, digging fire breaks and slashing away at burning brush."

One hippie, he recalled, "Huddled in poison oak with a fireman below the house of artist Felix Ruvolo. It was a hot, dangerous spot, but they staved off the flames until a borate bomber splashed a load of chemicals along the hillside and finished the job."

Among the longhaired was a man who identified himself as Patrick Yippie, 22, a photographer for the Berkeley Tribe, an underground newspaper. Asked why so many hippies volunteered, he said: "Most street people don't work, so we can easily volunteer."

Stan Gibbons, 25, a graduate law student at the university, led a group of 25 volunteers to the rescue of a home.

"If it gets into those trees, there's no hope," he shouted as flames approached. The volunteers beat back the blaze.

Another volunteer was Bruce Wong, 20, an undergraduate. "I woke up about 10 a.m. and saw all this brown smoke in the sky," he said. "So I picked up my girl friend, Vicki Chow, and we came with shovels as quickly as we could." Many hitchhiked to the blaze in the hills.

Oakland Fire Chief James J. Sweeney, who also praised the help from youngsters, said the fire was "man made" and been "either carelessly or deliberately set." There has been no arrest.

Hayward Strikers Maintain Plant

HAYWARD (UPI) — Striking city employes said today they would maintain a skeleton crew at the Hayward sewage treatment plant, but would extend their picekting to municipal building projects.

The United Public Employes Union, Local 390, started its strike Wednesday, demanding a bigger say in the city's personnel policies, including a grievance procedure and representation on a safety board.

Wages are not the issue, said Dean McKinley, the union's field representative.

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

This week's disastrous fire in the Oakland-Berkeley hills intensified fears of residents of the Fairhills-Rafael Highlands-Sun Valley area of San Rafael, who have been in constant worry over fires since early June.

On June 3 at 7:07 p.m., the San Rafael Fire Department was summoned by alarm boxes being pulled almost simultaneously at Fifth Avenue and K Street, Fifth Avenue and Happy Lane, and California and Humboldt avenues. They found flames and smoke rising from grass and weeds on the Sun Valley slope of San Rafael Hill.

That was the first of a series of fire alarms in that area that now total 28. All of them, believe police and firemen, have been set.

In several cases, firemen have found two or more unconnected spot fires blazing — clear evidence, they contend, of incendiarism.

Most of the blazes have been stopped before they burned more than small spots — because of prompt response by firemen and the increasing watchfulness by residents as the fire series continued. A few have spread to two or three acres. All have menaced homes in the area.

The series, as shown on the fire department log, runs like this (the streets listed being those from which the alarms came, with the fires being always in open lots or fields):

June 3 — California and Humboldt avenues, Fifth Avenue and K Street, Fifth Avenue and Happy Lane (all for the same fire).

June 4 — Chestnut Avenue and Fair Drive (two fires in same area).

June 14 — California Street and Windsor Avenue.

June 16 — 44 Windsor Avenue, second fire off Valley View Avenue.

June 26 — Fifth Avenue near California Street.

June 30 — 2100 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 1 — Valley View Avenue and Fairhills Drive.

July 4 — 2200 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 10 — 2200 block of Fith Avenue.

July 17 — 2200 block of Fith Avenue.

July 19 — 2100 block of Fifth Avenue.

July 31 — 2400 block of Fifth Avenue.

Aug. 13 — Ridgewood Drive.

Aug. 19 — Los Altos Drive.

Aug. 21 — Fifth Avenue and California Street.

Aug. 22 — California and Humboldt Street; second fire, Forbes and Chestnut avenues.

Aug. 24 — Windsor Circle; second fire, Maywood Way.

Aug. 25 — 2200 block of Fifth Avenue.

Aug. 29 — Chestnut Avenue.

Aug. 30 — 44 Windsor Avenue.

Aug. 31 — 400 block Forbes Avenue.

Sept. 1 — 400 block Forbes Avenue.

Sept. 9 — Humboldt and California streets.

Sept. 16 — 33 Windsor Avenue.

Fire investigators think seven fires on the opposite side of Fifth Avenue, from the Racquet Club Estates to East Crescent Avenue, may have been part of the same series. The first of these was on June 6; the latest, on Aug. 27.

Three fires set simultaneously near the end of Quarry Road on July 24 may also have been the work of the same firebug, in the belief of Battalion Chief Robert H. Rogers.

The fires follow a pattern. Times of the alarms run from dusk to after 11 p.m. In most cases, boys have been seen in the area shortly before the fire is sighted, but are gone by the time it breaks out.

San Rafael police, believing the blazes to be the work of juveniles, have questioned several suspects, but there has been no arrest.

Meanwhile, Sun Valley, Fairhills and Rafael Highlands residents have become habituated to sitting near windows, looking out frequently for the tell-tale flick of flame or billow of smoke which may mean another menacing fire.

Woman Injured In Bridge Wreck

A Berkeley woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with neck and back strain suffered in a two-car accident on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge Tuesday morning.

The patient, Bertha Mack, 53, was a passenger in a car driven by Alfred Armstrong Jr., 46, of Berkeley, which was stopped in traffic when it was hit by a vehicle driven by Angelina M. Coronado, 40, of San Jose.

The California Highway Patrol said Armstrong and two other passengers in his car, Gloria Armstrong, 37, and Mary Alexander, 49, both of Berkeley, said they would see their own doctors for neck pains.

Hot Winds Fan Fires; More Feared

GARBERVILLE (UPI) — Hot, dry and windy weather plagued firemen today as they fought an uncontrolled blaze that has blackened more than 3,000 acres in Northern California's redwood covered mountains.

Fires "are going to give us a lot of trouble in the next day or two," a State Division of Forestry spokesman declared as 400 men battled the blaze with 70 trucks and two aerial tankers.

The biggest fire is in the Clark Buttes orea, 12 miles northwest of Garberville and 210 miles north of San Francisco, near the Pacific Ocean.

But also causing trouble were smaller timber and grass fires in the area.

A grass fire south of Zenia in southern Humboldt County caused the evacuation of five families. A five-acre brush fire at Whale Gulch in the same area destroyed a hippie colony's quarters.

No cause has been determined for the Clark Buttes fire which broke out Tuesday.

South of San Francisco, seven trucks, two bulldozers, and 83 men were used to put out a 13-acre brush fire west of Woodside.

There was no injury and no structure was threatened in that coastal range blaze.

Kenton's Third Marriage Ends

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The three year marriage of bandleader Stan Kenton, 58, and his wife, Jo Ann, 39, was dissolved Tuesday in Superior Court.

The decree was granted after Mrs. Kenton testified to irreconcilable differences between the couple.

Kenton was ordered to pay his wife $34,000 alimony over a 30-month period and 50 per cent profit from two movies he has made. It was the bandleader's third marriage.

Bench Warrant Set

A bench warrant with bail set at $3,500 was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Warren Harden Allen, 26, of Oakland, when he failed to appear to enter a plea to a charge of credit card forgery.

Allen is accused of attempting to purchase clothing with a stolen credit card Sept. 7 in a Sausalito shop.

House Votes To Cite Arnold In Contempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to cite Arnold S. Johnson, public relations director of the U.S. Communist Party, for contempt of Congress because he refused to answer a committee's questions about an antiwar group.

The case was sent to the Justice Department to be taken to a grand jury, which will decide if Johnson should be brought to trial. Johnson refused June 11 to testify about the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Involvement Program Can Use Volunteers

Sonoma State College's community involvement program is now accepting requests for volunteers, according to director Roy Johnson.

During the spring semester, 470 program volunteers served more than 20,000 hours assisting as teacher aides, private tutors, Scout leaders, drug abuse counselors, Big Brothers and aiding the physically and mentally handicapped.

Volunteers are encouraged to work in their home communities and receive academic credit for work approved by the program's faculty adviser.

Board Voices Protest To 102-Unit Plan

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board last night registered its protest to development plans for a 102-unit apartment off Seminary Drive in the Strawberry Cove area.

Board president Douglas De La Fountaine said the board directed a letter be written to the Marin County Planning Commission opposing the plans of developer Paul J. Broman.

The planning Commission will consider Broman's application for approval of the master plan and precise development plans Monday, De La Fontaine said.

He said the board based its protest on past poor experience with facilities constructed on bay mud as well as on its stated intention to limit the flow of sewage into the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District System.

The board last night also agreed to hold a special meeting, date to be determined, to review its position concerning the Marin Municipal Water District's plans for a Southern Marin sewage system.

Greenbrae Veto On Special District Idea

The Greenbrae Property Owners Association last night agreed not to establish a special services district for architectural review powers and maintenance of Greenbrae's public areas.

Instead, the association will continue — when it takes over Nov. 1 — to operate under the same procedure as the current custodian, Schultz Building Co., Beth M. Reilly, association secretary, reported today.

Schultz's legal obligation to maintain the public areas ended the first of the year. The firm had set a deadline of Nov. 1 and asked the association to take over maintenance. The areas to be maintained include street divider strips and the landscaped entries to Greenbrae.

The association, at its July meeting, accepted the offer and discussed establishing a special services district, Mrs. Reilly said.

But last night the association's board decided to continue with the setup established by Schultz. Schultz has been collecting between $10 and $15 per year from each of Greenbrae's 1,200 families. The amount totaled about $14,000 a year, Mrs. Reilly said.

She said the board rejected the idea of a service district because it would have only two months to forward paperwork to the county for formation of the district. Also revenues would not become available for maintenance until after July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Last night's decision was partly the result of an offer from Merle Collins of Greenbrae to handle the maintenance bookkeeping Mrs. Reilly said.

The board accepted the offer and voted to offer Mrs. Collins a seat on the association's board of directors. A seat has been vacant since the resignation of Director Robert A. Geurts who moved from Greenbrae, the secretary said.

In other action, the board also appointed Kermit Steeg of 44 La Cumbre to head a committee to study billing.

Mrs. Reilly said the board estimates billing by mail may cost as much as 50 cents per family for administrative costs of the program. This amount, she said, would come from the maintenance charge, and so the committee will study more economical means.

Supplies Stolen

Automobile supplies valued at $280 were taken from the back of his station wagon between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. yesterday while it was parked in his carport at 550 Canal Street, Apt. 17, San Rafael, Jerold Tomaszak reported to police.

Treehouse Project Causes Five Arrests

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing stolen property was James Warren Black, 19, of 876 Greenberry Lane. He was held in lieu of $2,500 bail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Four 16-year-olds, Mark Alan Wheeler of 860 Flaxberry Lane, Christopher Lea Morton of 854 Greenberry Lane, Matt Wallace Fenn of 823 Greenberry Lane and William Lindley Swenning of 600 Blackberry Lane, were booked into Juvenile Hall.

Sheriff's deputies said that the youths had taken two by fours and plywood from a construction project at 275 Miller Creek Road and they also had three metal signs taken from Miller School parking lot.

Copter Service Announces Marin Flights To Continue

Helicopter service to Marin County will continue "on what we hope will be a permanent basis," Sam Kagel, court-appointed trustee for San Francisco-Oakland Helicopter Airlines, announced today.

Earlier this month, Richard C. Lovern, general manager for the airline, had said service to Marin and Berkeley, continued when SFO halted service to San Jose and Palo Alto Aug. 14, was in jeopardy because of a lack of passengers.

At that time the routes, which need a daily average of approxifately 175 passengers to break even financially, were averaging 100 per day.

"The response to our efforts to keep this run and these heliports alive has been most encouraging," Kagel said, "and a very substantial growth in passenger traffic justified continuation of this service."

He said the passenger count had risen "in an encouraging fashion," with as many as 220 passengers carried by the company on one September day. A average of over 165 persons ha been established," he added.

"This type of growth patter —and its maintenance — in sures the Berkeley-Marin rout will continue to operate," ac cording to Kagel.

The nine year old airline – said to be the only one of it kind to operate in the U.S. with out federal subsidy — filed for bankruptcy in late July. At tha time the U.S. District Court ap pointed Kagel trustee to admin ister the economically-trouble airline.

Concurrently, the company asked the civil aeronautics board to approve a temporary halt in service to Marin and oth er Bay area cities. But a week later, in response to community pressures to retain the service in Berkeley and Marin, SFO decided to drop only its routes south of the San Francisco International Airport.

The company, which uses the Richardson Bay heliport north of Sausalito, flies 20 flights daily from the airport to Berkeley and Marin.

Hearing Set For Terra Linda Youth

A preliminary hearing has been set for Oct. 6 in Marin Municipal Court for David Mathew Sliney, 18, of Terra Linda, who is accused of burglarizing an office in the Del Prado building in Northgate Aug. 3.

He is also to appear in court Oct. 2 to see if his case is acceptable to juvenile court.

Sliney was arrested after he reportedly tried to pawn a typewriter in San Francisco.

Marin Shows Hike In U.S. Bond Sales

The sale of $141,384 in savings bonds was reported in Marin County in August, up from $132,465 the previous month, according to the Treasury Department.

Total sales in August 1969 reached $138,880. The sale of $1,052,802 in bonds was reported thus far this year, down from $1,182,713 for the same period in 1969.

Japanese Using More U.S. Wheat

ASTORIA, Ore. (UPI) — Because Japanese have found new uses for fish, the wheat growers of Washington and Oregon have been helped.

Dave Crawford, who directs Oregon State University's Seafoods Laboratory here, said the Japanese have processed fish ham and fish sausage, which are hot-selling items in that country.

As a result the Japanese are using more wheat flour in bread to go with the sausage and ham. Most of the wheat Japan uses comes from the Pacific Northwest.

Two Quentin Inmates Due Freedom Back In Custody

Two San Quentin Prison inmates who vanished while out on three-day passes — although they were soon to be paroled — have been caught hundreds of miles away from the prison, Associate Warden James W. L. Park said today.

Duane M. Rogers, 37, who failed to return Aug. 17 was arrested Friday in Los Angeles on an auto theft charge, Park said.

Vance Burns, 22, also missing since Aug. 17, was caught yesterday by authorities in El Paso, Tex.

Rogers, who already was on work-furlough to a Sonoma County ranchjob, was due to have been paroled next Monday. He was winding up a term for second-degree burglary in 1965 in Orange County with exra time for escaping from a state prison facility at San Bernardino in 1968.

Burns would have been paroled last Monday after being sentenced for six months to five years for attempted grand theft in Sacramento County in 1968. He had been given a pass to visit family in San Francisco and seek work, Park said.

Both are to be returned to San Quentin.

Group Again Complains On Traffic Issue

The Alto-Sutton Manor District Association will again file a complaint with the California Highway Patrol regarding vehicles stopping for hitchhikers at the East Blithedale Avenue interchange of Highway 101.

The association's board had previously asked for a no-stopping sign in the area.

Sara S. Ruffner, association publicity chairman, said the highway patrol had been checking the area for stopping vehicles, but had ceased its extra patrol.

The association board agreed again last night that vehicles stopping for hitchhikers are a serious safety hazard.

The Alto-Sutton Manor District Association board also:

SPEAKER — Agreed to invite a representative of the Marin Municipal Water District to the board's next meeting, Oct. 21, to explain the water district's November bond issue.

TRAFFIC — Voted to ask the city of Mill Valley to install a stop sign at the intersection of Lomita Drive and Shell Court near Edna McGuire school.

REFUSE — Leanred that the Mill Valley Refuse Co. will conduct two free refuse pickups in the area, the first on Oct. 22-23 and the second some time next spring.

Rec Panel Proposes A Pre School Program

The Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission last night drafted another proposal on the town's winter recreation program.

It recommended the town council establish a one-day-a-waeek program for pre-school children in addition for programs already approved for students aged 10 to 14, secretary Marilyn Wilson reported today.

The town council on Monday approved allocating $5,000 for programs for the 10-to-14 age group, which was the recommendation of its recreation director, Jacqueline Branch.

However, at that meeting, park and recreation Commissioner Shirley A. Walker protested that the recreation director's program had not been discussed by the commission.

The council responded time was short and funds were not available for a program the commission had recommended earlier. Therefore they were going along with Mrs. Branch's proposal.

Last night, however, Mrs. Branch proposed yet another program to the commission, Mrs. Wilson said.

It would reduce the 36-week program approved by the council to 30 weeks and would include a program for preschool children. The total cost of the revised program is estimated to be below the $5000 approved by the council, Mrs. Wilson said.

The commission said, in making its recommendation, that the preschool program should include volunteer help from mothers so it does not turn into a free baby-sitting service.

The commission also received a report from Mrs. Branch that 27 fee supported adult recreation programs for this winter have already been filled.

Sun Studied For Space Power

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A system that will harness the power of the sun to keep a large space station running for years is being studied by engineers.

A contract worth about $2 million to design and test the largest "solar array" in the world has been awarded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to Lockheed Missiles & Space Co.

A solar array is a sheet of photovoltaic cells which convert solar energy into electricity. Lockheed must build and test one 30 feet wide and 90 feet long to evaluate how well it can perform in space.

The party had 45,287 registered for the June primary election, compared to the Democratic total of 41,989.

FTC Trained Team Working On Rate Facts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Federal Trade ommission said yesterday it has eight trained investigators working in the Bay Area to enforce compliance with federal interest-rate disclosure laws.

Ray Lloyd, senior FTC attorney in charge of the San Francisco area, said the operation has been in progress for the past three months.

The law provides that actual interest rates be printed on contract business forms.

CURRENT PROBE

Sodergren said the current investigation is two-fold: It covers a number of specific complaints and also is giving broader coverage in selective areas, even when no complaints have been filed.

"The major thrust has been against stores," Sodergren said. "But we now have gone into the field of automobile dealers, both new and used, and into finance companies."

Sodergren said that nearly 70 department stores in the area already had been subject to investigation, including women's and men's specialty companies.

A WIDE FIELD

"But, at the same time," Sodergren said, "our investigators also are covering such fields as home improvement loans, pawn brokers, correspondence schools, collection agencies, employment agencies and appliance dealers."

Results of the survey never are immediate, Sodergren explained.

"There are times when we find violations and the specific concern agrees to correct the situation," he said. "Then, there are cases in which the firm disagrees with our finding and wants to make a contest. But all cases are submitted to Washington where eventual disposition of specific cases are assigned back to the field."

Kaye will play as solos the Sonata in A. by Domenico Cimarosa and Gavotta by Allesandro Scarlatti.

Grape Festival At The Civic Center

The 71st annual Sunny Hills Grape Festival will be held Oct. 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Marin County Civic Center grounds.

Although the earliest records of the Grape Festival are missing, the Sunny Hills administration knows that it began in 1899. In 1903 the tradition of holding it the first Saturday in October began, along with the establishment of a site on the grounds of the Kent estate in Kentfield.

Mrs. A. E. Kent donated a portion of the family vineyard for the benefit of Sunny Hills. Profits from the grapes sold were given to Sunny Hills, which in those days was an orphanage and farm. The festival continued at the Kents for 43 years. In later years, as guilds were established and the number of volunteers grew to more than 900 the site of the festival changed to include the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and the Northgate Shopping Center, where it was held until this year.

The Sunny Hills Home also changed. Today it is a residential treatment center for adolescents with severe social adjustment problems.

Also involved in preparations for this year's Grape Festival is a group of 20 San Rafael High School students, the Interact Group. The group's purpose is involvement in community projects, and after attending meetings with the festival committee, members built and painted frame supports and awnings for the festival, which will benefit boys and girls their own age.

Items for sale at the country-fair style festival include clothing, food, toys, rummage and gift items. There is also an amusement area for children, staffed by the members of the Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary.

Not As Many 'Naked' Women Next Summer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Not as many women are going to take off their clothes in public next summer.

Although Catalina was showing more girl and less suit in its designs for Spring 1970, most of the beach-wear manufacturers were keeping the customer covered up.

Cole of California told fashion editors attending the California Fashion Creators annual press week here that nakedness was no longer news, and its was returning to a more down to earth, realistic approach to swim wear.

Although every designer had a selection of bikinis, there was a general trend back to the one-piece suit, with some even adding short or long sleeves. There were lots of suits with flouncy skirts for women with less than perfect figures.

And most of the suits came with very covered up accessories to wrap the swimmer from head to toe when she climbs out of the surf.

After all, if women really drop their hems to mid-calf this winter they may feel somewhat shy about baring their bodies on the beach next summer.

Suits came with coordinated caftans, ankle length beach coats, tunics, fringed ponchos which doubled as skirts, and ankle length sarongs.

Many of the wraps were fancy enough to use as hostess costumes.

There were some new fabrics for swim gear—panne velvet, an acetate combination which looks like suede, and clothbacked vinyl for a leather affect.

Sea Fashion of California had a three-piece suede vest set with a bikini worn under the cowboy style vest.

Catalina had a sleek cotton backed vinyl wet-look bikini with a short slicker to wear over it.

Bill Blass Swimwear, for those with better than average figures, featured a long sleeved maillot suit buttoned up the front with silver buttons, topped with a long wrap skirt in polyester jersey.

She attended the Institute de Professeurs de Francais a l'etranger, Sorbonne in Paris and the University of Oregon as a French major. Pamela was a 1967 Marin debutante. Mrs. Edward B. Ward of Belvedere is her grandmother.

Tricia Is Romancing As Her Mother Plans Refurbishing

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tricia Nixon is expected to be enlisted by the Republican National Committee to do some campaigning this fall, but a schedule has not yet been worked out.

Tricia, 24, is a firm exponent and defender of President Nixon's programs and views.

But blonde, blue-eyed Tricia has been concentrating on the romantic department lately, spending just about every weekend with Edward Finch Cox, who will be 24 next month.

Tall, blond Cox, a New York socialite, is going back to Harvard Law School where he has a couple more years before he gets his degree. He often stresses that his brother, Howard Ellis Cox Jr., 26, is also single, indicating that his elder should march down the aisle first. And he will.

Howard Cox and Julie Bolton Dempsey of Cleveland, who graduated from Wellesley College and made her debut in 1964, will be married in the fall. Tricia and "Eddie" flew to Cleveland Sept. 5 to attend his brother's fashionable engagement party.

The Cox brothers' social leader mother and their blonde sister Mazie, a Tricia lookalike, are featured in a "mother daughter" role in the magazine, Town and Country.

TRICIA AND Edward Cox have spent several weekends together at the White House this summer as well as at Westhampton Beach, L.I., his summer place. He is an excellent sportsman, but looks elsewhere for a tennis partner. Fragile Tricia does not go in for rugged sports.

First lady Pat Nixon says above all she wants to see the White House "spic and span." Lately, the White House formal rooms, viewed by hundreds of thousands of tourists, have been looking a bit dowdy.

With the expected approval of her Committee for the Preservation of the White House, Mrs. Nixon is expected to forge ahead with the long needed refurbishing of the mansion.

There has been a hesitancy on the part of first lady successors to make any changes since Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis's White House redecoration project.

But Mrs. Nixon has decided to make the red room and the blue room more authentic and true to their original shades on the theory that each first lady is mistress of her own domain and can improve on the past.

The first lady has gone out of her way to make visitors feel welcome at the White House. Whereas tourists were previously sidetracked to a side door, they now come through an elegant reception room at the east entrance.

She also has transformed part of the theater into a reception room for visitors on the east side of the house, which includes the military office and the first lady's official bailiwick.

Mrs. Nixon also is in the habit of giving a surprise treat to groups of early morning tourists. An early riser herself, she often will come down to personally greet a special group following their tour of the White House.

Many such groups are teachers and women with whom she can relate. She tries to make them feel at home in the White House, a place she admittedly still holds in awe.

Linda Mallett Wed To Brad Donald Myhill

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Myhill of Pacific Palisades.

Helen Williams of San Rafael was maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Gail Mages, also of San Rafael.

Kevin Myhill was his brother's best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by Tom Mattecci of San Francisco.

Linda is the sister of Susan and Mary Jayne Mallett. Mrs. Frances Mallett of San Rafael and Mrs. Rodman Gifford of San Francisco are her grandmothers.

Brad has five brothers and sisters.

The newlyweds are living in Hermosa Beach.

By HELEN BOTTEL

High School Kids Ecology Is Too Much Of A Hassle For Parents

DEAR HELEN:

Last spring our school started a group called S.A.F.E. (Save Air For Everybody). A few weeks later we formed two more groups: H20 — Help to Overcome (water), and S.O.S. — Save Our Soil.

The object is to open people's eyes to pollution and start them working to eliminate it. Our projects include awarding plaques to companies who do something to cleanup the air or water; and selling buttons with the above initials on them. The money we make will go toward obtaining movies on pollution to show publicly; and for clean-up projects.

At first people kind of laughed at us, but now they're buying our buttons. We try to explain as we sell, and it gets easier selling all the time.

I was very proud of the way so many kids volunteered to help. Then it happened. I brought home a few of the anti-pollution pamphlets we had printed and my mother flipped. Though she is usually understanding, she said she was tired of this pollution bit, and if we had to watch every little thing, stop burning leaves and agriculture lands, buy glass bottles and go to the trouble of returning them, etc. well, it was just too much of a hassle. I had answers for her, but couldn't explain without getting mad and making her madder so I decided to write to you, Helen. Here goes:

I read about a woman celebrating her 100th birthday. At the rate we're going, no one will live half that long in the future because of lung troubles, cancer, bronchitis and other bad air and water-caused diseases. If people lived to see their grandchildren, they'd have to explain to them what the sun is, because they'd never have seen it for smoke.

Who wants to wear gas masks all their lives? Isn't it worth it to go to a little more trouble — like plowing under weeds instead of burning them, and turning leaves into compost, and re-using bottles — if we can live longer and happier lives?

Oh, Helen, why are people so close-minded? — W.B. OF S.A.F.E.

DEAR W:

People are getting less close-minded every day, and it is organizations such as your which help shine the light into dark places. Keep promoting, but don't expect an easy victory. Your mother's attitude is like that of many individuals and industries who think anti-pollution is just great — until it makes them work harder, or spend more money. — H.

P.S. Congratulations on your education-action program. I'll bet by this time, your parents are on your side, too. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I opened a box of crackers today. First there was the cardboard box, then a big heavy plastic bag, and inside of that were four individually wrapped packages of crackers. It happens with cereals too — all those separate wrappings inside wrapping. They're a big nuisance, they don't keep food you use up fast that much fresher, and think of all the extra waste to burn, plus making the product a little more expensive. Maybe people think that little bit of extra paper makes no difference, but when you multiply it by a million packages — wow! Pollution time.

Why doesn't industry come off the fancy packaging kick. Burned paper causes enough smog, but burning plastic gives off poison gases, too. — AWARE

DEAR AWARE:

Why don't you (and others) write to those excess wrapping companies and complain direct? You'd be surprised how fast public opinion changes policies. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottle in care of the Independent-Journal.

Smaller Variety Of Vegetables In Stores

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USDA's consumer and marketing service reports that food shoppers this weekend will find a smaller variety of vegetables and fruits as most harvests are ending their seasons. But most meats are in generally good supply.

Meat counters will offer ground beef, rib, round and chuck roasts and a choice of beef steaks. In pork, there are good supplies of bacon, Boston butts, hams, roasts and spareribs. Broiler-fryers will also be in good supply, and some markets will offer turkeys.

In the vegetable line, potatoes, cabbage, carrots and onions will be abundant, and in fruits, apples, grapes, canned fruit cocktail and dried prunes will be excellent choices.

Foods listed on USDA's plentiful foods list for September shoppers are canned peaches, canned applesauce, split peas and peanuts and peanut products.

There are few wholesale food price changes this week in West Coast markets.

Beef ribs and loins are lower.

Pork loins are higher, whole Boston butts and spareribs are lower.

Among the fruits and vegetables in best supply are apples, bananas, grapes, melons, watermelons, artichokes, green cabbage, onions and potatoes.

Clothes And Weight

When shopping for the little girl who is a bit overweight or underweight, keep these tips in mind. Bright colors add pounds; dark colors slim the figure. The thin child can wear bold plaids and big flowered prints, but the plump little girl should stick to small geometrics or tiny flowers in prints.

'Tosca' Successful In Second Round

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Puccini's "Tosca," which opened the San Francisco Opera's 48th season, suffered through illness the loss of the French dramatic soprano Regine Crespin in the title role. But in its second performance last night it was evident a strong cast of principals is carrying it through successfully.

Dorothy Kirsten may not be a great Tosca in this role created as a vehicle for the immortal Sarah Bernhardt in the play on which the opera libretto is based, but she gives a much better performance than I had expected. And it is appropriate that she should have the honor of opening the season this year since it is the 25th anniversary of her debut with the San Francisco Opera.

Her voice, her appearance and her grace of movement are remarkable after so many years.

As Tosca's artist lover Cavaradossi the Rumanian tenor Ludovic Spiess unleashed a ringing, powerful voice to match his giant frame; yet it was capable of lyrical subtleties in the aria "Recondita Armonia" in Act 1 and the moving aria "E Lucevan Le Stelle" in Act III.

The really polished performance of the evening was that of the American baritone Cornell MacNeil as the elegant but evil chief of police, Baron Scarpia. He not only had a powerful voice in a wide spectrum of vocal color but was a master of the art of character creation through facial expression and gesture.

The second act in which he is murdered by Tosca, was from every standpoint a consummate theatrical achievement, and Miss Kirsten sang beautifully the opera's most famous aria, "Vissi d'Arte."

Most impressive vocally of those appearing in minor roles was the Belgian Jose Van Dam, leading bass-baritone of the Berlin Deutsche Oper, making his San Francisco debut in the roel of the political prisoner Angelotti. One looks forward to hearing him sing Escamillo in "Carmen" next week. Baritone Renato Capecchi put his flair for comedy to good use as the Sacristan, adding the only humor in the grim tale.

In his San Francisco debut, conductor Carlo Felice Cillario directed skillfully, but in his efforts to enhance the most dramatic moments musically sometimes allowed the orchestra to cover even the big voice of Spiess.

Stage direction by Lofti Mansouri was logical and heightened the drama for the most part, and sets and costumes in Acts I and II were oppulent. There was some odd unmotivated lighting in the first part of the stark third act prison scene, and Tosca's death leap from the parapet was anticlimatic without the shock it should have.

There is a possibility that Crespin will be able to sing in the performances Saturday and on Oct. 4 and 9. Kirsten and a different cast will sing in performances on Nov. 22 and 28.

Two Vacancies On Youth Panel Are Announced

Marin County Youth Commission is looking for two youths to fill vacancies from the Fourth and Fifth Supervisorial Districts, youth coordinator, L. Charles Smith, announced today.

The Fourth Supervisorial District includes South San Rafael, most of Larkspur and Corte Madera, and from Woodacre westward. The fifth district is North Marin.

Next meeting of the youth commission will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Room 310 at Civic Center.

"Interested applicants may attend that meeting and ask questions about the role of youth commissioners," said Smith.

Spock Urges Use Of System To Gain Aims

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Dr. Benjamin Spock, famed baby doctor and outspoken critic of the Vietnam War, says students should avoid violence and achieve their aims by "working through the system."

Discussing "Dissent and Social Change," Dr. Spock told a gathering of about 2,500 University of Hartford students Wednesday that, "When the system fails to respond to all normal means and channels, then you must become more dramatic in your tactics.

"You know that the majority of the American people do not give a damn about granting equal rights to blacks, poor people, and other minority groups," Spock said, but added, "I will work within the system for change."

The author of one of America's most noted books on child rearing, whose 1968 conviction on charges of counseling men in draft evasion was overturned by a federal appeals court last year, said he didn't believe a violent revolution is possible in the United States.

"I am opposed to all forms of violence," he said. "Throwing rocks through bank windows and calling police pigs only gives the government the excuse to become more oppressive," he said.

Spock encouraged the students to work dramatically through the system and predicted that a third party he is helping to organize will boost a candidate for national office by 1972 as "a dramatic lesson to the American political system."

Doctors Will Split Heart Study Prize

NEW YORK (UPI) — An American and a British physician who were among the first to recognize high blood pressure as a disease leading to heart attacks and strokes will split the 1970 $50,000 Stouffer Prize for leadership in heart research, it was announced Wednesday.

Dr. Irwin H. Page, 69, of Cleveland and Sir George Pickering, 66, of Oxford University and former president of the British Medical Association both were cited for their leadership in cardiovascular research and their fundamental discoveries in physiology.

Page told a news conference called to announce the winners that he did not believe heart transplants were the present answer to heart disease. He said the use of artificial hearts was an even more distant prospect.

He said he would choose arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteris) as the disease most in need of attention because it leads to attacks and strokes and "because there are many encouraging leads that need to be followed."

Yet basic research was not being done, Page said.

"We are being lulled to sleep by the curious bit of logic that heart disease will be abolished by 'blue ribbon committees,' 'task forces' and legislative 'assaulting' and 'attacking, . . . the heart attacks an strdokes that are the lot of 53 per cent of the people," he said.

WHERE THE TALL CORN GROWS

Maria Zitelli of San Rafael gazes skyward to the top of her corn patch wondering when it will stop growing. Some stalks have reached 20 feet, she said yesterday admiring the plants at her home at 58 Marina Court Drive. This isn't sweet corn she explained, but rather hominy corn which grows higher. But never has she seen it grow this much higher, she added.

Though Snatched, Posh Bus Ruled Too Heavy For Roads

That Mercedes-Benz bus snatched away from Marin Transit Systems on Monday was too heavy to have operated legally in California, it has been learned.

The Independent-Journal reported yesterday that the bus had been repossessed by Mercedes-Benz, a point later disputed by both the Marin City-based company and by Mercedes-Benz.

Theophus Barron Jr., president of the transit company, said that he had asked the German manufacturer to take back the bus because he discovered belatedly that it was too heavy to conform to California weight limits.

A spokesman for Mercedes-Benz readily conceded the bus was overweight by California standards, but said that his company had assumed that a waiver had been secured by Marin Transit Systems. "That is the carrier's responsibility," said Hans Von Wasmer, manager of Mercedes-Benz's San Francisco zone.

He stressed that the bus conformed to engineering standards that assured its safety. The state limits the weight on each axle to 18,000 pounds, plus an allowance of 2,500 pounds for standing passengers. The weight of the rear axle on the disputed bus was 22,040 pounds, he said.

Von Wasmer, a resident of Tiburon, objected to the word "repossession." He insisted that "in no way was it a 'repossession,'" but rather was "an expiration of lease."

He then added that "we chose not to renew because of arrears in payments." He said that Marin Transit Systems was "substantially" behind in its payments on the first six-month lease, which expired last Friday.

The lease payment was $4,500 for six months, Von Wasmer said, but he declined to say how much still was owed.

(Webster's Third International New Dictionary defines repossession as "the act of resuming possession of property when the purchaser fails to keep up payments on it.")

Barron also mentioned last Friday, but said that was the day on which his company asked Mercedes-Benz to take back the bus because of the overweight axle.

Barron did not say when he learned about the overweight axle, but told the I-J that he had decided to return the bus "before the highway patrol found out. We figured it just was a matter of time before they came to that fact, and we didn't want any more trouble from the highway patrol."

Barron also disputed the report from the sheriff's office that the Mercedes-Benz representative could not find the bus at fisrt. Barron said it had been parked at the sheriff's substation in Marin City.

Still unanswered was how state officials police restrictions on weight limits. A spokesman for the highway patrol said the patrol generally assumes that manfacturers conform to the state's weight limits, and checks buses for weight only when there is suspicion of a violation.

The $53,300 pride of Marin Transit Systems' four-bus fleet was used on its Mill Valley run to feed the Tiburon ferry. The company also leases other buses.

The disputed bus left on Tuesday for Mercedes-Benz's North American headquarters in Fort Lee, N.J. The 48-passenger luxury coach had air-conditioning, AM-FM radio, reclining seats and individual reading lights.

The company has received $34,000 in county subsidies through Oct. 15, and has been promised an additional $51,000 in county subsidy for a six-month extension of its service to Novato.

Special Meeting

The Strawberry Recreation District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. today at Strawberry Point School. Chairman Arthur R. Senter said the open meeting was called to discuss possible litigation, but declined to specify what the litigation concerned.

Sonoma State President Gets Hearing

The State College Board of Trustees took no action yesterday on the appointment of Earl W. Jones as president of Sonoma State College, leaving the faculty and students wondering at least until next week.

While the trustees did not discuss the Sonoma State presidency in open session, the board did meet with Jones privately.

Jones said today he would make a full report on the statu of his presidency in a letter to the faculy on Monday and would not comment further before then.

Prior to the meeting in Los Angeles, faculty and students said they feared that Jones's appointment would be made permanent, thereby bypassing the deliberations of the campus presidential selection committee.

A faculty petition to the trustees requested that no president be permanently appointed until the campus committee could make a recommendation.

Marin City CSD Executive Is Fired; Audit Of Books Ordered

Harold Brooks — executive director of the Marin City Community Services District who last week submitted a resignation effective Sept. 30 — was fired last night and an immediate audit of the district's financial records was ordered.

The firing of Brooks was expected after he verbally lashed out at the district board in his resignation Friday, but the audit was not.

The audit was ordered after it was disclosed to the board that Brooks had spent $120 even though expressly forbidden to do so by the district board.

"If he can play those kinds of games with $120, then there's no telling what he might have done with other district funds," said board member Doreatha Mitchell in calling for the audit.

The board learned last night that Brooks had refunded the $120 to a Richard Cook, who had posted the money as deposit for rental of the Manzanita Center for a dance in July which never took place.

Brooks, the district's meeting minutes show, requested in August that the $120 be refunded but the board voted not to refund the deposit. Last night's financial statement of the district showed that Brooks had done so anyway.

The board also last night voted to withhold, if legally possible, Brooks's final paycheck until he repays the $120 to the district.

The board was scheduled to authorize the advertising for a successor for Brooks at last night's special meeting, but held off after setting another special meeting for Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Manzanita Center to discuss the job description.

In his resignation, Brooks charged that the district board had not given him any support and that it had not hired any of the people he had recommended for positions.

Mrs. Mitchell said last night that the charge was "factually untrue."

"He (Brooks) never even brought any people before us," she said.

Brooks, who was not at last night's meeting, was scheduled to remain on the payroll until Sept. 30 and board members and persons in the audience noted that he hadn't even been in his office in the past week.

Brooks, in his resignation, said that the board had failed to support him on many matters.

"In the last two months, the board has not acted on a single recommendation of mine," he said. "This has made my job impossible. Without support for my programs and plans, I cannot accomplish anything."

His chief job was to seek and implement economic development for Marin City.

Charge Of Gun Threat Is Dropped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A charge of threatening a store clerk with a shotgun has been dismissed in municipal ccurt against a Sausalito man because the district attorney's office was unable to locate the victim to prosecute the case.

Freed was Gerald Harris, 27, who had been accused of threatening an employee of a North Beach radio repair shop on July 5. Police said Harris and a companion had intended to steal a stereo amplifier to replace one he said had been stolen from him.

Failing to find the equipment he wanted, police said, Harris allegedly fired a shot into the ceiling.

Sportsmanship Needed By Athletes—And Parents

We don't hear much about sportsmanship these days. Maybe we should hear more.

Sportsmanship is cheering the opposing team for a brilliant play — or a victory. It is playing fair. It is "taking your lumps" in good grace. It is modesty in victory and good humor in defeat.

Sportsmanship seemed lacking this week at a meeting of the Tamalpais High School District board, when Gordon W. Pusser, father of two Redwood High School cross-country runners who were dropped from the team last year for long hair, again raised the issue of rules on length of athletes' tresses.

The cross-country and soccer squads, Pusser told the board, are not willing to comply with the haircut rules. Therefore, he contended, the rules should be changed.

THAT GAME has been played, and Pusser and the long-haired athletes came out losers.

The issue was first raised by Pusser at a Tam High District board meeting on Oct. 16, 1967. His sons at that time had haircuts which conformed to the coach's regulations. But Pusser said the hair length rule was discriminatory. The board, and Principal Donald Kreps, upheld it.

Pusser subsided for awhile. But on March 3, 1969, he again appeared before the board to protest grooming rules for athletes. He said 55 of the 56 members of the Redwood High track squad had signed a petition against the hair rules. He threatened to bring suit to prevent enforcing the regulations.

(How much Pusser had to do with obtaining those 55 signatures, we do not know. Athletic Director Robert J. Troppmann said Pusser had urged the athletes to stand fast against the rule.)

The protest just simmered that spring, while Pusser collected support. Soon after school opened in the fall of 1969, he was back before the board — this time with other parents to support him — to again challenge the rule and set off what became known as "the great hair controversy."

FINALLY, HE MADE good his threat to sue. His two sons and several other youths involved in the dispute were entered as plaintiffs in a suit against the high school district in U.S. District Court in San Francisco in February of this year.

Judge George B. Harris heard testimony, and on March 10 upheld the school grooming rules for athletes.

"The record is barren of any evidence . . . that this was an arbitrary and capricious decision," wrote Judge Harris. Requiring a haircut for participation in athletics did not infringe a youth's constitutional rights, he held.

At this point, sportsmanship would seem to call for Pusser to yield gracefully.

But no — he was back this week, with the same old complaint.

WE SUGGEST that Gordon Pusser be a good sport and allow the high school district to devote its attention to matters that are, after all, much more important to education than the length of an athlete's hair.

We don't hear much about sportsmanship these days. Maybe we should hear more.

Passage, Signing Of Mulford Bill Affront Public's Right To Know

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — How a seemingly intelligent governor, concerned over the right of the people to know, could have signed AB 981, by Assemblyman Don Mulford, R-Oakland, is puzzling.

Not only did Gov. Ronald Reagan sign the Mulford bill, but in doing so, issued a press release which was deceptive if not wholly incorrect concerning the content of the measure.

THE GOVERNOR said "There have been numerous attempts in California by revolutionary groups to completely disrupt the activities of city councils and other public bodies. This law provides a reasonable method of insuring the orderly conduct of the public's business.

"I believe that this bill provides local authorities with the means they must have to continue to conduct the business of public agencies despite the efforts of revolutionaries to disrupt them in extreme situations, while at the same time protecting the public's right to know by insuring the presence of the news media at these sessions."

All of which is something of a stupid conclusion, as there appears to be plenty of law on the books to enable authorities to arrest individuals for disturbing the peace in disrupting public meetings. Or felony charges of inciting to riot.

While the Mulford law says the legislature believes it's in the public interest to allow duly accredited news media representatives to attend sessions from which the public has been excluded because of a wilful disturbance, there still remains in the law a provision that the press can be excluded if the public body wants it that way. The governor failed to call this to public attention when signing the bill.

The chairman of a meeeting is responsible for maintaining order, and he can call the proper authorities if it happens to get out of hand. And he could do this despite the Mulford law.

The Mulford bill appears to be a deliberate attempt to control the sources of information to the public, a measure which could be used to the detriment of democratic and open government.

However, Mulford swings one Republican vote, which is sorely needed by the Reagan administration to maintain a precarious majority in the assembly.

Whether the governor thinks that by signing AB 981 he will swing the trend to Mulford is questionable, but at least, he shows his heart is in the right place by making a puny effort to try.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Propaganda Trick Of Association

It is an old propaganda trick to associate those you don't like with an unpopular group, regardless of how silly it is. For instance, Spiral T. Corkscrew has coined the term "radical-liberal" for people he disapproves of.

The nonsense of this term becomes clear once one gets by the confusion caused by the way people sometimes sound. To a conservative, a radical and a liberal can sound much alike in the concerns they find important in the world, but the difference is that a radical usually tries to use these issues to justify drastic social change (a fancy way of saying "revolution") while a liberal attempts to correct these ills to ensure the stability of society.

Thus a liberal is a radical's worst enemy as he is constantly cutting the ground out from beneath him. On the other hand, the neanderthal right with their purple prose (a la Agnew), their rigidity, and their skull cracking are the radical's best friends for they create an endless supply of issues, causes, and martyrs. Perhaps our illustrious V P is an overaged agent in the pay of the Weathermen.

Here Is What's Happened To Parents

Most sincere congratulations for the editorial of Sept. 18 — "Question for Americans: What's Happened to the U.S.A.?" — a reprint from John S. Knight of Knight Newspapers Inc.

To quote and comment: . . . "Where indeed are our leaders — the Parents of our youth, the educators and the great body of law-abiding responsible citizens?"

This last question is indeed pertinent. And the answer comes immediately to mind as follows. . .

The parents happened to be the very first generation of child-bearing citizens to become victimized by the (at that time) new fraudulent fad of child-raising according to the great Freudian theory of permissiveness and non-discipline. They were admonished by the head-shrinkers advocating this theory that to restrain the child, or to discipline him in any manner or for any action, regardless of how perverse, — would cause him to become "inhibited. . ."

The younger group of present-day teachers being the product of the same unfortunate era (up to possibly 50 per cent) are prone to submit and go along with the "modern" anarchy. . .

We now have the school psychiatrist to whom Johnny is sent when he creates an outrageous infraction of schoolroom discipline, and the poor lad comes away back to class in a state of doubt and wonderment, — whereaz 30 years ago he would come back from the principal's office with his behind just a little sore from a caning and settle down in his class with a much improved respect for discipline in the class-room.

So this is the way it is. This is what has happened to the U.S. It is not good.

Hardly The Way To Effect Economy

Your editorial on two-man sheriff patrols on Sept. 16 has a lot of food for thought. However, I don't know how the people of Marin through the board of supervisors can deny two-man patrols to the sheriff's department when most other law enforcement agencies have recognized the necessity of this and have implemented such programs. Volunteer citizen patrol is an interesting concept and I think should be pursued also. In the final analysis, though, there are so many ways to effect economy in our local governments, exposing our police force to potential great bodily harm or death is hardly the way or the place to effect economy.

Israeli Self-Defense Strike Could Explode Whole Mid-East

WASHINGTON — The headline of tomorrow or day after may well be: "Israel Planes Hit Egyptian Missiles in Canal Zone." A pre-emptive strike on the SAM-2s and SAM-3s, moved so close to the canal, is what top policymakers in the Nixon administration fear most, since they believe it would trigger an explosion throughout the entire Middle East.

Israeli intelligence knows exactly where these missiles, which were pushed forward during the standstill agreement, are. A powerful faction in the Israeli government is said to be convinced that only by striking quickly can Israel's long-term security be assured.

With the Middle East crisis at the peril point, the oversimplified wiew is that the only participants involved are on one side Israel and the United States and on the other side Egypt and the Soviet Union. The truth is that nations far and wide — certainly those in western Europe, Japan, the oil-producing states of the Middle East — have a large stake in the outcome.

UP TO 80 per cent of western Europe's oil comes from Arab countries. More than 90 per cent of Japan's petroleum comes from the Middle East.

Top Nixon policymakers are irritated by the reluctance of nations with such a direct stake in the Middle East to take any part in helping to resolve the crisis. While they lie doggo as the crisis deepens, in private they complain of the imbalance of America's approach. Privately, too, they play footsie with the Arab states, trying to make it clear they are detached from the American position.

DURING THE Arab-Israeli six-day war in 1967 about 55 per cent of the normal oil flow was shut off with the closing of the canal and the pipelines across the transit country. M.A. Wright, chairman of Humble Oil and Refining, testified before Sen. Philip Hart's anti-trust subcommittee about how the world's tanker force was mobilized to send Western Hemisphere oil to Europe to make up the difference. And even though the long haul around Africa meant a loss of 50 per cent effectiveness, there was no rationing anywhere.

This could happen again, although whether for a long pull is questionable. But, if credence can be put in the warnings coming from throughout the Middle East, oil is not the first concern. The lives of all American citizens, even in such normally conservative countries as Saudi Arabia, would be in jeopardy, and American property virtually assured of destruction. When the United States was about to announce a decision on whether to send more Phantom jets to Israel, Aramco, the American company in Saudi Arabia, is reported to have asked both the White House and the State Department for one week's advance notice if the decision would be for immediate compliance with Israel's request. This would give the company time to evacuate all American personnel.

NOT ALL Arabs are as fanatical — as mad — as the Syrians. A repeated assurance has been that the Arab states would never shut off oil to the West, or not for very long, since they would have no other place to sell it and, therefore, no other source of hard currency. This overlooks, however, the mass fanaticism stirred by incessant hate propaganda even in such conservative states as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

This is a major reason for the restraint with which the Nixon administration is proceeding. The situation in Jordan bears some resemblance to that in North Korea when the Communists seized the Pueblo and its crew. The outcry was for rescue by American intervention. But no one knew even where the Pueblo crew was held and intervention would almost certainly have meant their death, as American action in Jordan would doom the hijacking hostages and the lives of most Americans caught in that civil war. These are the terrible choices the administration faces as passions intensify.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By ROBERT CRABBE

When the Bamboo Curtain fell along the 38th parallel in Korea at the end of World War II, it parted husbands from wives, brothers from sisters, parents from children.

They can't visit each other, or even exchange letters, and there is no end in sight to these personal tragedies.

THE CONCRETE is frozen hard around divided Korea, because the leaders of the free enterprise South Korea and Communist North Korea have no possible grounds for compromise.

Beyond that, the great powers have accepted the partition of Korea, no matter what they say in public. The United States and the Soviet Union are determined not to risk a nuclear showdown over Korea.

The Russians know the United States will fight to keep South Korea out of Communist hands. Washington knows Russia would not tolerate a takeover of the north by the American-oriented government of South Korea.

Communist China wants such a war only if the United States and Russia fight it. Peking doesn't wish to get involved again.

THE DETERMINATION of Washington to live with the status quo has become even more apparent in the last three years.

The United States withheld military action when North Korea grabbed the USS Pueblo in January, 1968. It sat tight again when the North Koreans gunned down a U.S. Navy intelligence plane in neutral air space in early 1970 with the loss of 31 American lives.

American forces in South Korea are to be cut back from an authorized strength of 64,000 men to 44,000 by the middle of next year.

U.S. officials in Seoul are confident the South Korean Army now can defend the country, with American air support.

While preparing to furnish about $1.5 billion in new equipment to South Korea's Army, the United States keeps the keys to South Korea's air defense in its own hands. One reason is to discourage the South Koreans from striking at the North on their own.

THE INSISTENCE of South Korean President Park Chung Hee that the north is girding for another invasion of South Korea gets little credence in the U.S. establishment in Seoul. U.S. officials say the Russians and Chinese are too preoccupied with each other to stir up the North Koreans. And they reason that North Korea cannot conquer the South alone.

North Korea has been run for 25 years by the chairman of its Communist party, Kim Il Sung. Its foreign aid and its trade are mostly with Red China and the Soviet Union.

The south is led by an exsoldier, Park Chung Hee, who has turned to the United States and lately to Japan for aid and investment.

Communist Kim has no future in a capitalist Korea. President Park, who has worked closely with the United States, has no future under Communism.

The prospect is for empty seats at Korea's family reunions for a long time to come.

Suppose They Rated Marin Boards The Way They Rate The Movies

A week or so ago there was a story about some Stanford University students who had the gall to rate Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board members on performance and attitude.

It would be interesting if governmental bodies in Marin were subjected to the same sort of review, but that takes a lot of time and effort.

So, for an impromptu experiment, let's see how it might go if they were reviewed in the manner of the I-J's motion picture guide.

FAMILY

Ross Town Council — A sterling struggle by four men and a woman to keep their community as it is, with Mayor Frederick S. Allen as the central character; staunch defense of single-family zoning; limited commercial appeal.

Novato City Council — Five men in search of a shopping center, flanked by the city planning commission.

ADULTS AND TEENS

Marin Community College District Board — Caught between students who want things their way and taxpayers who don't want to pay any more; hoping for another campus while trying to keep the Kentfield campus operating; reaches dramatic peaks when students storm meetings, otherwise routine.

Larkspur — Story of a city up the creek faced with becoming a wildlife refuge while its arch-rival, Corte Madera, seeks to capture the lucrative ferry terminal.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say adults only)

Sausalito City Council — Modern tale of tourists versus residents, complicated by battle between council and merchants over downtown parking; features colorful audience participation led by Sally Stanford, full-length meetings, but never past closing time at Paterson's bar.

ADULTS ONLY

Fairfax City Council — Sequel to the "Friday Night Fights," known as the "Monday Night Fights;" strong on audience participation; suspense centers around city administrator job; strong dialogue by Robert R. Souza and Francis J. O'Connell.

Marin City Council — Uphill struggle by blacks to get ahead in a white world without money or power; dialogue based on theme of "tell it like it is;" lively comments by Thelma McKinney and Mary Brooks.

San Rafael City Council — An underground saga featuring the reconstruction of sewer lines with the Regional Water Quality Control Board as the villain; mystery surrounds fate of courthouse square.

What Silly Ideas People Have About Role Of Insurance Firms

WASHINGTON — There has been a rash of automobile insurance cancellations lately by the major companies, and everyone is very nervous about it. The other day my wife was notified that her auto insurance policy was being canceled. The notification gave no reason for the cancellation, and since my wife had not been in an accident or had ever made a claim, she was perplexed.

She asked me to get to the root of it and I took the next plane to visit our insurance company. The company is housed in a 56-story aluminum and tinted glass skyscraper on a 30-acre shopping plaza overlooking most of the state of Connecticut.

I arrived on the 35th floor where one made inquiries concerning canceled insurance policies. After browsing through the company literature, which told how insurance was making America great, I was ushered into the office of Clyde Featherstone.

I GAVE Mr. Featherstone the cancellation notice and he clucked once or twice and then disappeared. He returned in a few moments with the folder.

"What did my wife do wrong?" I demanded.

"Then why did you cancel her insurance?"

"Trembling and Trembling?" I said.

"YES," SAID Featherstone, going through the folder. "They've been very naughty boys, very naughty indeed."

"Did they steal any money?" I asked.

"Worse! They've written too many policies this year that people have made claims on. We've had to pay out $1,897 to Trembling and Trembling clients in the last 12 months."

"But what's that got to do with my wife's insurance policy? She didn't get any of the money."

"Ah, but since you are with Trembling and Trembling you are now considered a bad risk. Their record is your record."

"THAT'S NONSENSE. I hardly know Trembling and Trembling," I protested. "I wouldn't recognize them if I saw them on the street. This is guilt-by-association."

Featherstone smiled. "You came to us through Trembling and Trembling and you will leave with Trembling and Trembling. This company will not put up with people who make insurance claims against it."

"But that's what you're here for," I said. "To pay people off when something happens."

"THAT'S A FOUL lie," said Featherstone, losing his smile. "We're here to build buildings and real-estate developments, and finance ships and airplanes and ball parks. If we keep paying out claims, where would we get the money to construct this 56-story building with its beautiful shopping plaza and underground computer center?

"Do you realize," said Featherstone, "that every dollar we pay out in a claim is a dollar we have to take away from our advertising budget which tells the public what wonderful insurance people we are?"

"I appreciate all that," I said, "but surely you have to pay some claims in order to stay in the insurance business."

"THAT'S WHAT Trembling and Trembling thought," Featherstone said, as he tore up my wife's folder.

I thanked Featherstone for his kindness and understanding. He got up to shake my hand. "If you're staying in town for dinner we have a great restaurant on the roof garden which is bringing us 15 per cent profit a year."

Jail, Probation Given In Holdup In Mill Valley

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday sent Paul Robert Reynolds, 21, of no known address, to jail for nine months.

He also placed Reynolds, who had earlier pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from a holdup in a Mill Valley residence, on probation for two years. He ordered Reynolds, also, to get and keep a job when he leaves jail.

Reynolds and two other men were charged with forcing their way into the home of Kenneth M. Stevens, 21, on July 11 and robbing Stevens and two guests of $1,235.

One man, Roy Morgan Jr., 22, of Marin City, is awaiting trial and a third has not been found by authorities.

Makeup Of Pacheco School Is Reported As Improved

Last year's periodic racial imbalance at Pacheco School in the Novato Unified School District, apparently has been solved, a district official said today.

Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley said addition of a kindergarten class at the school and extension of the walking area for pupils have brought more civilian population into the classrooms.

Last year, the school was almost entirely filled by Air Force youngsters from Raphael Village, many of them members of minority races. Enrollment fluctuated widely as families were transferred to and from Hamilton Air Force Base, Modley explained. Addition of more pupils from civilian families this year levelled out the changes and made the school's racial balance more like that of other Novato district schools, he said.

At the time Pacheco School's racial imbalance was reported last December, the law was that no school's minority population should be more than 15 per cent above the district-wide average. Although military transfers altered the Pacheco School balance by as much as 6 per cent a month, minority enrollment at Pacheco often was 25 per cent above the district average, Mobley recalled.

The 15 per cent rule has been scrapped, Mobley said.

The actual percentage makeup of all Novato district schools will not be known until about Oct. 9, Mobley said, when tallies will be completed from a census to be taken Oct. 2.

House Democrats Condemn Hecklers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A large group of House Democrats has condemned hecklers who attempt to disrupt speeches by President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

A total of 137 Democrats, including liberals and conservatives, said Wednesday "as members of Congress, we have spoken out vigorously in the past to defend the expression of unpopular views. We speak out with equal force today against attempts to disrupt presentations by the president and vice president."

Today is Thursday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 1970 with 98 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

A thought for the day: Eisenhower said, "In the final choice, a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chain."

2,500 Customers Hit By Blackout

A blackout that lasted nearly an hour affected 2,500 customers in San Rafael Tuesday night, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. reported yesterday.

Leonard Robertson, district electrical supervisor, said a tree leaned on a high voltage line on Fairway Drive near Summit Avenue in the Golf Tract at 8:19 p.m. Power was restored at 9:06 p.m., he said.

The effects were felt between the Third Street-Lincoln Avenue intersection eastward as far as Peacock Gap, Robertson said, with traffic lights, street lights, stores and homes blacked out.

LED DUMMY'S TEN

Declarer, a simple, barefoot Hollywood producer, won the first trick with the ace of spades and led lummy's ten of hearts. This was a ghastly play, but it's unreasonable to talk about 30 days just because a man makes a horrible play.

West refused the first round of trumps and then refused the second. And now our hero led a third round of trumps. He thought the law compelled him to draw trumps at the first opportunity. A good lawyer would have told him that Magna Carta ended all this in 1215.

TWO HANDKERCHIEFS

The rest of our tale is a two-handkerchief Hollywood tearjerker. West took the third trump and led his other spade, forcing South to ruff. South drew the last trump and led a diamond to dummy's king.

West took the second diamond with the ace and led the queen of clubs. Declarer couldn't get to his hand, and West therefore got two club tricks as well as his two red aces. South was lucky to get as many as nine tricks.

After winning the first trick with the ace of spades, declarer should lead a low trump to the king and should continue with the queen of hearts. When West refuses both tricks, South should switch to diamonds. West takes the second diamond and returns a spade, forcing South to ruff.

Now South begins to lead good diamonds. If West ruffs, dummy can overruff with the ten. If West discards, dummy discards. And if West ruffs with the ace, South can easily draw the last trump and take the rest.

ANSWER: Pass.

National Guard Has 25 Openings

A San Rafael National Guard unit has announced it has 25 openings for new recruits.

Second Lt. Richard A. Johnston Jr., commanding officer of Co. D, 579th Engineer Battalion, said the openings were made possibly by an increase in authorized unit strength.

Recruits, who are exempted from the draft, undergo eight weeks of basic training and must later attend one-weekend-a-month drills and 15 days' annual active duty training. Total service is six years.

Faberge Competition Cuts Company Profits

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 136 shares of Faberge for which I paid $35 per share. I would appreciate your opinion as to whether I should sell or hold the stock. I can afford the loss. L.M.

A. Competitive pressures and rising marketing costs have been partly responsible for Faberge's relatively unimpressive earnings performance in recent years. This in turn has adversely affected the issue's stock market appraisal. While sales for the first half of 1970 managed to show a slight gain (1.1 per cent) year-to-year, net income was off 24 per cent. Heavy advertising and promotional costs plus tight credit conditions are expected to continue to cut into margins. And although increased volume and various product price hikes will aid results as the year progresses, company faces strong competition in major product areas. Selling at approximately 9 x 1970s earnings estimates, shares have little appeal at this juncture. Switch to better acting Avon in the same group.

Q. I would like to know your opinion on whether to hold Iowa Beef Processors for recovery or to sell. C.C.

A. An innovator in the meat packing industry, Iowa Beef grew rapidly through the 60's. However, a protracted 227-day strike severely restricted fiscal 1969 earnings. Settlement of this strike was not achieved until early in April of the current fiscal year, which will end October 31. Therefore, first half results continued to be affected and earnings reached only 4 cents a share down from $1.01 in 1968. Nevertheless full year income is expected to surpass the depressed $1.53 a share reported in 1969. Profit margins will be adversely affected by increased labor costs and probable higher feed corn prices as a result of crop losses this summer. However, Iowa is placing increasing emphasis on the more profitable area of precut and prepackaged meats as well as institutional markets. While share recovery reflecting earnings improvement is probable, a return to the excessive price earnings multiples of the late 1960s is highly unlikely.

Market On Upswing For Second Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — Optimism about the economy and more favorable reports from the Middle East kept prices on the uptrack for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange today. Trading was extremely active.

With about an hour remaining, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was ahead about 4½ points at 759.17. More than 1,000 issues pointed higher, while only 26 declined.

A four-hour turnover of 15,660,000 shares was up from 12,740,000 shares traded during a comparable period yesterday.

The United States and Britain began evacuating their nationals from the war-torn city of Amman amid sporadic fighting. But the situation there was said to be quieter now than at any time since the civil war began a week ago.

Analysts said Wall Street generally was buoyed by the removal of the threat of immediate U.S. intervention in Jordan. This threat had weighed on the market early in the week.

A Walt Disney spokesman said the only thing he could attribute to the stock's advance was a recent U.S. Court of Appeals decision overturning a preliminary injunction which had delayed for more than a year Disney's proposed development of a recreational facility in Sequoia National Forest.

Among the day's most active issues were Plessey Co., Telex Corp., Penn Central, University Computing, Pittston Co., Kentucky Fried Chicken and American Telephone.

SEC Proposes Stricter Reports On Withdrawals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has proposed a tougher reporting rule for broker-dealer firms that withdraw membership from national stock exchanges.

The proposal would require such a firm to file with the SEC, within 48 hours of terminating its exchange membership, a verified report of its trial balance and computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital.

The rule also would require exchanges to notify the SEC whenever a broker-dealer ceases to be a member.

The SEC said the rule is intended to obtain current financial data on broker-dealers as of the time that they become subject to SEC net capital requirements.

In New York, Deutschmann & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange, said it ceased doing business as a broker-dealer as of today.

Deutschmann, a non-clearing firm that carries no public accounts, said its decision was forced by the continuing profit squeeze in the brokerage industry.

Turnover Up On Buoyant Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turnover soared to more than 20-million shares on the New York Stock Exchange today as the market gave a buoyant response to reports of a cooling of the civil war in Jordan and a more friendly economic news climate.

Shortly before the final bell, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was up 4.93 at 759.31. More than 1,000 issues pointed higher, while only 304 declined.

Closing prices included: Am T&T 45 up ¼; Bethlehem St. 22 1-4 up 1-2; Ford 50 3-8 up 5-8 Gen Motors 72 1-2 up 1-4; IBM 288 1-2 up 7 1-2; Texaco 31 1-4 up 5-8 and US Steel 32 3-8 up 1 1-2.

The United States and Britain began evacuating their nationals from the war-torn city of Amman amid sporadic fighting. But the situation there was said to be quieter now than at any time since the civil war began a week ago.

Analysts said Wall Street generally was buoyed by the removal of the threat of immediate U. S. intervention in Jordan. This threat had weighed on the market early in the week.

Among the stocks scoring the biggest gains were IBM, Memorex, Walt Disney, and Burroughs, all up several points.

Tokyo Newspaper Tells Of Secret Textile Talks

TOKYO (UPI) — A Tokyo financial newspaper has stated that Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., held secret talks in Tokyo with Japanese textile industry leaders.

The Nihon Keizai newspaper said Thurmond, a champion of American textile interests, expalined the American viewpoint to a group of highly placed Japanese textile men.

He reportedly was told by Shinzo Oya, president of Japan's Teijin Co., that "if there has been real damage to the American industry, the Japanese side would have to consider this."

Oya was said to have proposed discussions between industry leaders of the two countries.

As the result of a campaign promise to Thurmond by President Nixon, the United States has been trying to get Japan to voluntarily limit its shipments of woolen and synthetic textiles to the United States.

Negotiations between the two governments broke down last June.

Now a legislative measure to impose import restrictions on both textiles and shoes is before the U.S. House of Representatives.

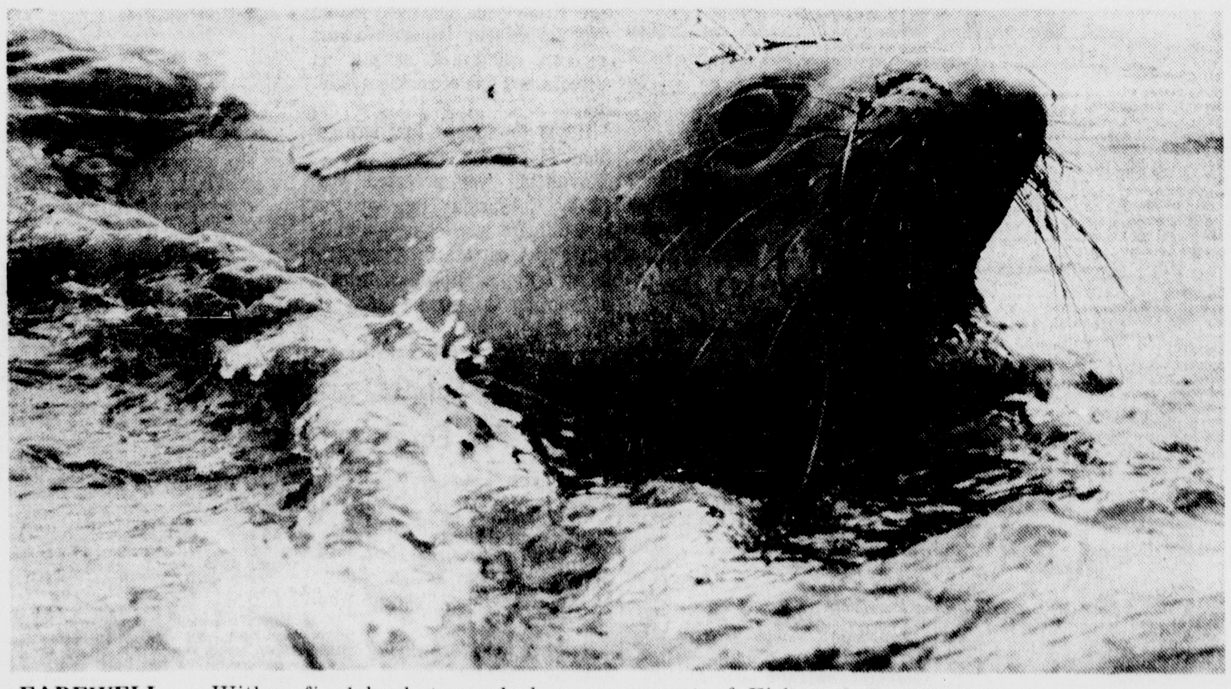
NO BITE — The animal barks on the sand after climbing from the truck. When the trailer was opened, Christmas Seal maneuvered all of her 400 pounds to the ground by herself.

POOPED — Friends give a helpful tug when Christmas Seal decides she is just too tired to go much farther. Paul Maxwell (left), director of the Boyd Museum, is assisted by Russell Turver and William Dresser of the Peninsula Humane Society.



FAREWELL — With a final bark toward shore, Christmas seal heads out in the chilly waters to join hundreds of other seals at the state Department of Fish and Game preserve. Her life was saved by men she never befriended.

TOWARD SURF — A borrowed San Mateo humane society truck drives over sand dunes toward the shore towing Christmas Seal in a horse trailer. The truck got bogged down in the sand before it made it to the shore.

Christmas Seal Is Well And Free

By C.P. McCARTHY

Christmas Seal is alive, well and free off the California coast, after having spent eight months in Marin recuperating from a bout with pneumonia.

When she didn't return to the water, the Roger Ahlenius family, in whose backyard she sat decided she was ill and called the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael.

She was taken to the museum and painstakingly nursed back to health. She had to be trained to eat dead fish as she was used to the live variety she caught herself. Along with the fish, she was given oil and massive doses of vitamins and antiobiotics.

Gay Maxwell, wife of museum director Paul Maxwell, said that in Christmas Seal's eight-month stay in Marin, she showed no affection for humans — a fact which thrilled museum officials because if she had grown fond of and dependent on man, she would never have been able to be returned to the ocean and survive on her own.

Last week, officials decided recuperation was complete and Christmas Seal was returned, with no little effort, to the sea.

The museum had to enlist the aid of the Peninsula Humane Society in San Mateo and borrow its four-wheel-drive truck and horse trailer to transport the hefty beast.

The truck got stuck in the sand as officials drove across a private ranch and down to the shore off Ano Nuevo Island near the San Mateo-Santa Cruz county line.

The island is maintained as a seal preserve by the State Department of Fish and Game to protect once nearly extinct breeds.

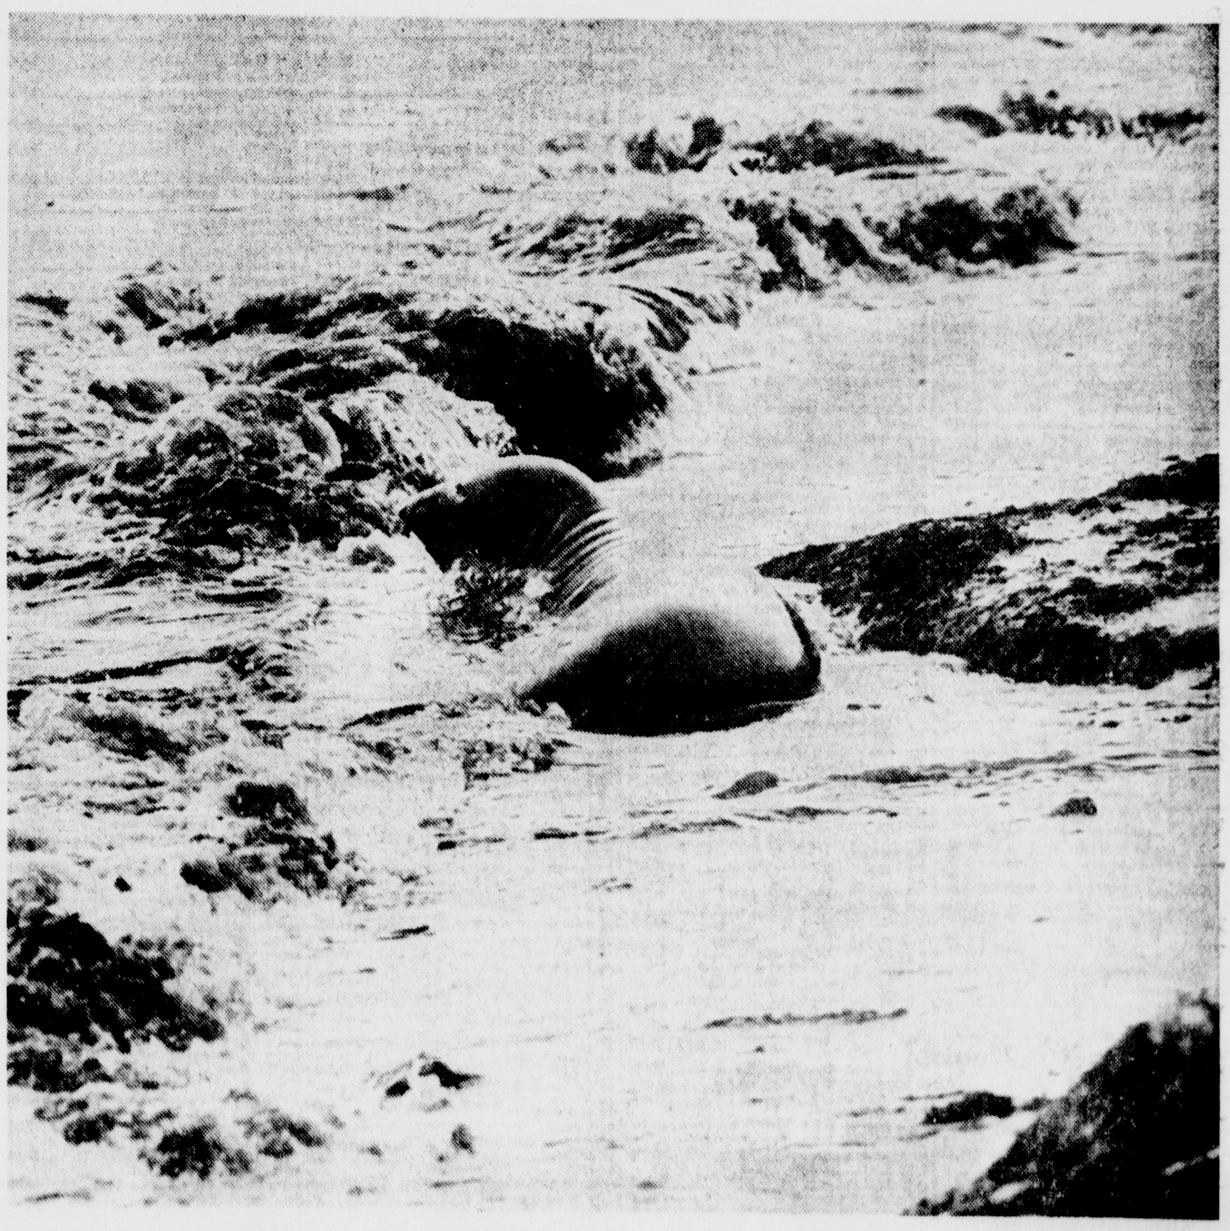
Fortunately, when the truck bogged down, it wasn't too far from the beach, so the horse trailer was opened up and Christmas Seal climbed out and headed for the shcre.

She got tired before she made it, though, and had to be given a few helpful tugs to get her to the water.

Lloyd Smalley, curator of the museum, equipped with scuba gear and a rubber raft, went into the water with her for a while to make sure she was all right.

She was. With a farewell bark, she dived under the water and disappeared to a life of freedom among the hundreds of other seals in the choppy surf.

ALMOST THERE — The seal barks with excitement as she nears the shore. Lloyd Smalley (right), curator of the Boyd Museum, donned scuba gear and used a rubber raft to follow Christmas Seal into the water.



FIRST TASTE — Christmas Seal gets her first taste of her native ocean water as she enters the surf off Nuevo Island near the San Mateo-Santa Cruz county line.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

$12 Million In County Salaries

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils, and school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives pleading for large pay increases cited the rising cost-of-living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin are being published by the Independent-Journal as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

Publication continues today with several departments' share of Marin County's $12,383,592 payroll. Other departments will be listed in subsequent issues of the Independent-Journal.

TV REVIEW

Network Police Shows Proliferate

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—ABC-TV's "Dan August," a new police series, turned up Wednesday night, dealing with a detective lieutenant who wears elegant turtleneck shirts and sharp trousers that probably cost half of a cop's weekly salary. The rest of the hour premiere was just as believable.

What is even more unbelievable, however, is the way the three networks have programmed the late Wednesday night time slot that includes "Dan August." For this one-hour period now includes three network police series, all competing against each other: CBS-TV's "Hawaii Five-O," NBC-TV's "Four-In-One: McCloud" and now "Dan August."

As the new television year starts, "Hawaii Five-O" is the frontrunner, having scored strongly in the ratings last season. And "Dan August" is, at least on the basis of quality, hardly likely to cause anyone to compare it with the better cops and robbers entries that come to mind, such as "The Untouchables." Wednesday's premiere contained not a single original thought, not a single memorable device. It is straight out of the sausage factory.

Burt Reynolds portrays "Dan August," resembling Marlon Brando slightly in looks, and positively in no other way. In the opener, he investigates the murder of an auto racer who was a very unpopular character. After going through an assortment of stereotyped suspects, he finds the killer, and I can't imagine anyone giving a hoot—except maybe for admirers of Reynolds' trousers, which are almost as tight as those worn by Tom Jones. They are both in dire need of a tasteful tailor, and Reynolds could use a script writer as well. Earlier Wednesday night,

New Shopping Center Gets Initial Approval

The Larkspur Planning Commission has approved preliminary plans for a $2 million shopping center proposed by SDC Inc. at Doherty Drive and Magnolia Avenue.

Commissioner Robert H. Lee, according to secretary Babara Bruton, cast the only "no" vote at Tuesday's meeting because he disagreed with the architectural design of the buildings.

SDC, a corporation from Corona Del Mar, San Diego County, has been seeking approval for about a year of its plans to construct a 23,000-square-foot Alpha Beta supermarket, supported by 15,500 square feet of satellite service shops and a gasoline service station.

Mrs. Bruton said the other commissioners (Leonard S. Rubin absent) questioned traffic flow and parking facilities and directed the company to consider commission reservations before presenting final plans.

The company indicated it wanted to start construction within three months.

Last November, the commission, on a 2-2 vote, denied a use permit to the firm because they said the city's general plan called for high density residential development of the site.

The commission's denial was overruled in February by the city council which granted the permit. A controversial service station on the property also was approved after earlier being denied by the council.

Tuesday, however, the commission was told that the service station is not scheduled for construction until the Magnolia Avenue Bypass is constructed.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also: Approved a land fill application from Tiscornia Estate's for 2000 cubic yards of soil to be dumped in its marshland property opposite the Safeway store on Magnolia Avenue. Fill will come from the water tank area on Little King hill.

Strike Closes Food Dealers

OAKLAND (UPI)—A Teamsters Union strike has closed three major frozen food distributors in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The Teamsters Local 588 walkout affected 200 drivers and warehousemen at Selected Union Foods, Inc., Levy & Zentner Co. and Allied-Lengfield Co.

Employers had offered a new contract which at the start of the third year would have given warehousemen $198.50 a week and drivers $231.80 a week.

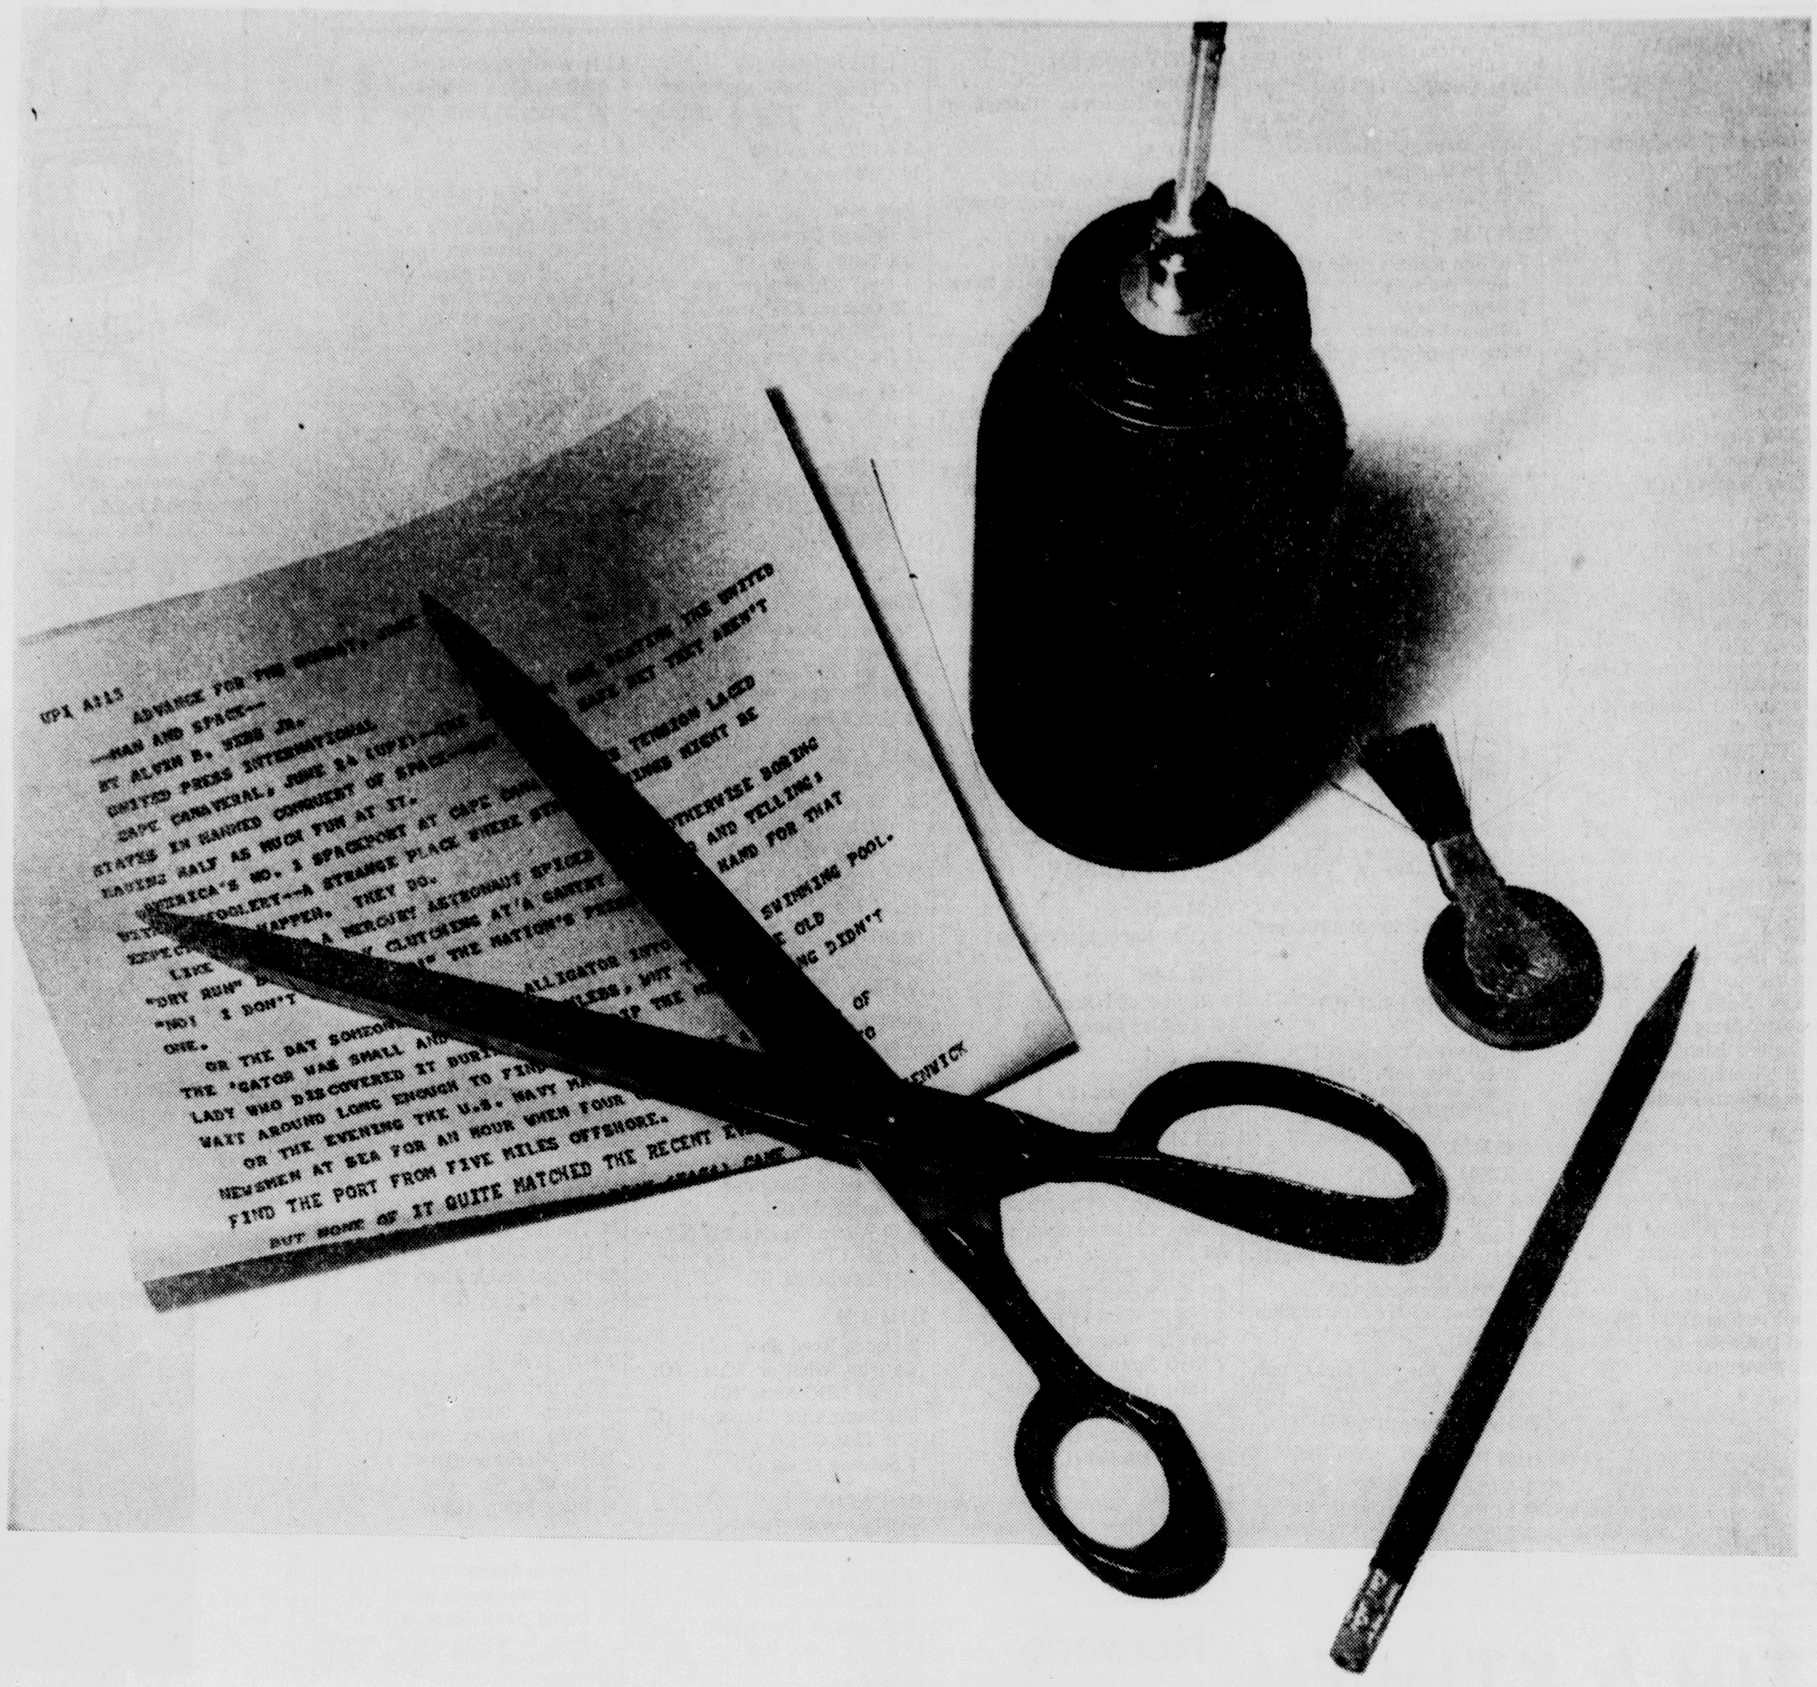
In a week, the three firms usually supply about 5 million pounds of frozen food products to groceries.

Hearing Set In Felony Assault

A preliminary hearing has been set in Marin Municipal Court for next Monday for one of two men charged with attempted murder and felony assault stemming from a fracas on a West arin Ranch last Wednesday.

Charged is James Harold Balch Jr., 24, of Little Rock, Ark. A codefendant, Edward Daniel Aguirre, 20, of San Bernardino is still hospitalized with wounds received in the battle.

Sheriff's deputies said that Roger Eugene Grondorf, 26, who lives at the Barboni Ranch near Marshall was seriously wounded when a third man tried to run Aguirre off the ranch. Balch allegedly drove Aguirre to the ranch and had three guns with him when arrested in his truck while leaving Marshall.



By tomorrow the world will have changed . . .

That's why we have 6,000 reporters . . . to report the change

Between today and tomorrow news which is unexpected and unforeseen will change YOU . . . your attitudes, your values, perhaps even your personal life. For all of us live on a turning world, on the very threshold - second by second - of the future.

We at the I-J can't know what the news will be but we DO know it will happen . . . and on a thousand fronts.

Which explains why we use the enormous "nervous system" of United Press International and the eyes and ears of its 6,000 reporters to keep us - and keep you - in sensitive touch with every country in the world.

Strange thing is that this vast network of words and wire is almost instantly connected to our newsroom in San Rafael. And even UPI's electronic magic which sends us photographs by tiny impulses over the wire.

The world will change but news of these "new" events will as inevitably reach us in time to reach you in every evening's I-J.

The point then, is that the strange and complex world of "what hasn't yet happened" will be reported to you when it does. The UPI and the I-J have their nerves ready . . . and plenty of paper for tomorrow.

Wild Topper To Giant-Dodger Series Finale

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It was more like a three-ring circus than a baseball game but it was a fitting topper to a season between those two old rivals, the Dodgers and the Giants.

It was the final game of the season between Los Angeles and San Francisco Wednesday night and the Giants won it in 10 innings, 14-10, coming back from an eight-run deficit. On the season they tied with nine wins each and ended up tied for second place in the National League West to date.

The Giants thought they had it won in the seventh when they got eight hits including a three-run homer by Jim Hart and a grand slammer by Dick Dietz. After Dietz cleared the bags with his 21st of the year, making it 9-8 for the Giants, his mates swarmed out of the dugout and nearly mobbed him.

Los Angeles was not through. In the bottom of the eighth, Maury Wills carried across a tying run after he beat out an infield bouncer, stole second, took third on an infield out, and scored when Willie Davis beat out a hit to short.

The Giants broke the tie in the top of the ninth after Frank Johnson singled to center with one out. A pair of walks, one of them intentional, loaded the bases, and then pinchhitter Alan Gallagher hit a high bouncer to Wills at Short and Johnson scored.

The game went into extra innings when the Dodgers got a run in the bottom of the ninth on a single by Bill Sudakis, a sacrifice, a wild pitch by Rich Robertson who was the eventual winner, and a single by pinchhitter Len Gabrielson.

Robertson went two innings, giving up one run on two hits and got his eighth win against nine losses.

The loser was Ray Lamb who had won six without a defeat.

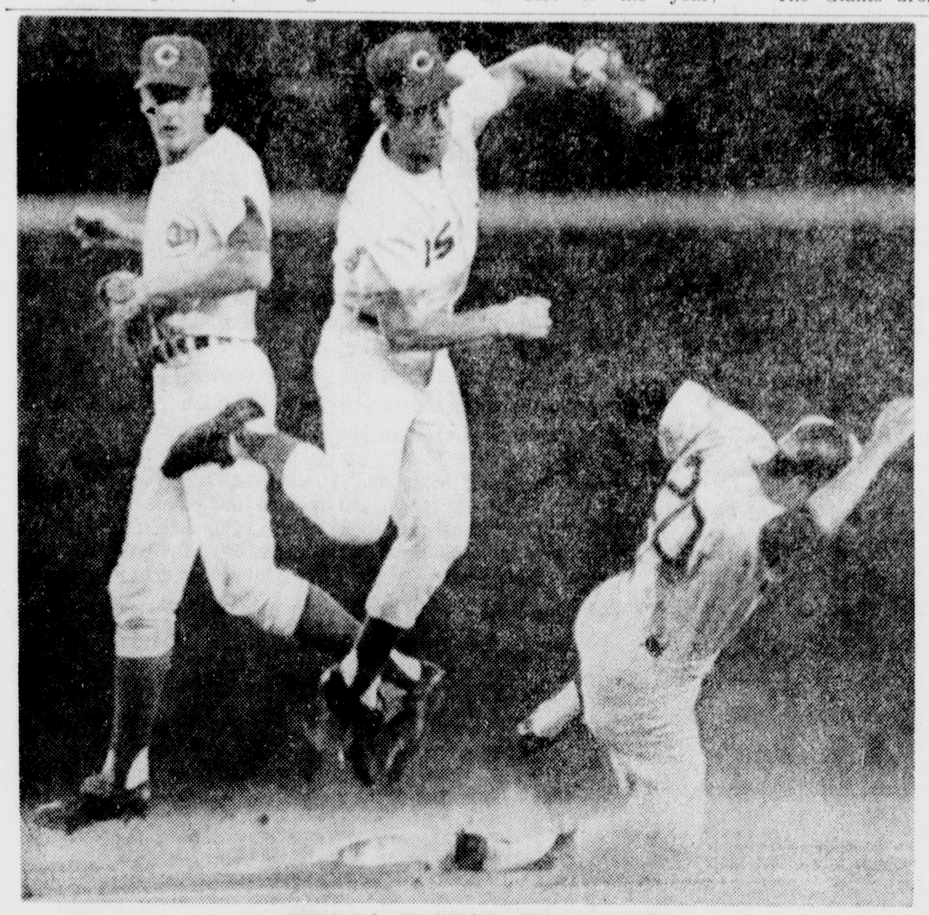
"It was a fantastic game," said Giant manager Charlie Fox. "I guess the breaks evened out."

The Giants headed for home where they open a three-game series Friday night against the San Diego Padres. Frank Reberger, 7-6, is scheduled to start against Pat Dobson, 12-15.

The Giants then finish the season with four games at Houston.

The 14-10 loss to the Giants was the last game at home for the Dodgers.

"I have never seen a game like that," said manager Walt Alston, who was rehired for '71, his 18th season with the club. "I really mean it. We got all the breaks in the first half and they got all the breaks in the second half."



REDS' TWIN KILLING

Cincinnati shortstop Frank Duffy fired the ball to first base for a double play after forcing Houston's Cesar Geronimo at second in the seventh inning last night in Cincinnati. Red second baseman Woody Woodward, who began the play, looked on. The Reds, champs of the National League West, won, 6-2. (UPI Telephoto)

Tackle At Marin, Runner For Cincy

In answer to many questions, yes, that Doug Dressler who played running back for the Cincinnati Bengals in their 31-21 upset of the Oakland Raiders in last Sunday's televised game is the same Doug Dressler who starred at College of Marin in the 1966-67 seasons.

Confusion arose because Dressler was an offensive tackle at Marin and never toted the ball like he's doing now as a professional. After he left Marin, Big Doug attended Chico State College where he was switched to a tight end, later becoming a running back.

Marin Coach Dick Read said he used Dressler, who played high school ball in Reno, as a lineman "because we had a surplus of good backs in 1966 and '67, our championship season, like Tim Harr, Dean Lazzarini, Donnie Smith and Dick Otis."

While here, Dressler also was heavyweight wrestling champion of the Golden Valley Conference and also guarded lives at the Upper Lucas Valley Recreation District pool.

Dressler and Martin Baccaglio, a defensive end from Novato who also starred at COM, saw limited action for the Bengals in their big upset over the Pride and Poise Boys.

And A Little Tennis, Too

Tennis may be incidental to the 18-year-old Marin lass for she is staying at the swank Encino home of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Guerin, wealthy tennis buffs who live next door to Efrem Zimbalist and are close friends of Charlton Heston. She has met both of those stars and other Hollywood types and has access to the Guerins' stable of sports cars. She may never come home.

Sharon and Mr. Guerin play tennis quite often and she is known to his daughter as ". . . the girl who cleans daddy's clock."

FOUR MARINITES were among the former players who were honored at Kezar Stadium Sunday during 49er Alumni Day.

They and the years they played for the Niners were Ed Balatti of Kentfield, 1946-47; Bruno Banducci, Marin Catholic assistant coach, 1946-54; Al Endriss, Redwood High assistant coach, 1952; and Bob Toneff of San Anselmo, 1952, 54-59.

Collaborated For Long TD

In 1946, Balatti and Kenny Casanega, now a Napa educator, co-authored one of the longest touchdown plays in Niner history on a pass interception. Casanega ran 68 yards, then lateralled it to Balatti who completed the 90-yard thriller.

Balatti, by the way, will have a son (Johnny) playing at Redwood High starting next year.

SPEAKING OF chips off the old block. Tam High Coach Mike Davlin's son (also Mike) is linebacking and place kicking for the Claremont-Mudd (Romona) college team that dumped St. Mary's 27-12 last Saturday.

GOOD NEWS for members of the S.F. Giants Boosters Club: President Allan B. Murray of San Rafael has announced that American Airlines stewardess Maureen Cassady again will reign as Miss Boston for the 1971 season. She's enough to cheer up any Giant fan.

Cleveland Weapon: 'Big Play'

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)—Specialty teams of the San Francisco 49ers drilled intensively Wednesday to halt the "big play," a trademark of the Cleveland Browns.

"Cleveland makes the big play when they have to," said Prospector coach Dick Nolan. "That's one reason why they are always in contention."

Maybe Nolan was thinking about Homer Jones returning the second half kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown that helped the Browns beat the New York Jets 31-21 Monday night.

Nolan also said offensive tackle Cas Banaszek and rookie cornerback Bruce Taylor are recovering from leg injuries and their availability against the Browns might be limited.

Cleveland is favored over the 49ers by two points.

Raiders: Look Out For Lance

OAKLAND Q(UPI)—Lance Alworth of the San Diego Chargers didn't catch a pass last weekend against the Baltimore Colts and that bodes ill for the Oakland Raiders.

That marked the first time in 96 games that the premier wide receiver of the Chargers has been blanked. So he will be more than eager to make up for it against the Raiders.

One thing in Alworth's favor when the teams meet Sunday at San Diego is the fact that Oakland cornerback George Atkinson might be sidelined with a leg injury. Atkinson is invaluable as a defender against the pass and was outstanding last season when the Raiders emerged with tight 24-12 and 21-16 victories over San Diego.

Also limping with leg injuries for the Raiders are running back Marv Hubbard and linebacker Duane Benson.

TARS HOST EUREKA TEAM

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The new College of Marin football facility, complete with electric scoreboard and 2,000 bleacher seats, will get its baptism Saturday afternoon when the Tars host Eureka's College of the Redwoods in a preseason game at 1 p.m.

Coming off their season-opening 19-14 loss last week to San Jose City College, the Tars will have their hands full against the Corsairs, who beat them last year, 32-21 at Eureka.

Marin could have beaten San Jose. "We had chances to score, and we made mistakes at the wrong time," Tar coach Dick Read said yesterday.

Real reproted only one injury of any consequence. Guard Chris Chapman is suffering from a twisted knee and must be listed as a doubtful starter.

When the press facilities are installed at the new Kentfield stadium next week, the only thing to be added (besides lights), will be a name. The board of trustees has taken that weighty matter under consideration and will act soon to alleviate the crisis.

MARIN'S CROSS country team took part in a beach run at San Mateo last Saturday, and placed third out of four teams. College of San Mateo, which hosted the meet, won with 23 points, Fresno had 45, Marin 71 and Skyline 115.

The Tars' Don Makela, one of the finest runners in the state, won the meet, setting a course record in the process. The second Marin runner to finish and 14th overall was freshman Steve Silvey, late of San Marin High School.

Tar runners encountered many obstacles on the beach, not the least of which was a capricious Pacific Ocean that washed away one of Seamus O'Reilly's shoes. He and Keith Krieger, who came in 17th and 22nd, began the race wearing shoes, but decided early in the running to discard them. But O'Reilly left his too close to the water line, and when the tide came in, his shoes went out.

Marin hosts Laney College of Oakland and San Joaquin Delta College tomorrow at 3 p.m. in a meet that Tar coach Tony Bailey feels his team should win.

THE TAR water polo team begins its season with games Tuesday and Wednesday at home against Diablo Valley and College of San Mateo. Coach Bob Justice has five returning lettermen, including all-around star Greg Myers and last year's high scorer, John Malvino.

WOMEN'S LIB

Gal Net Stars Vie In Houston

HOUSTON (UPI)—Any women's tennis tournament in which Billy Jean King is not seeded is going to be a little strange to begin with.

But in the case of the Virginia Slims International Tennis Tournament, Miss King's unseeded status is probably the only not unusual thing about it.

A LONG WAY

The Virginia Slims (named after the "You've come a long way, baby" cigarette) tournament began on the West Coast as the Pacific Southwest Open. But the women in the tournament decided they should liberate themselves from the affair because of the difference between the women's purse and the men's. The men's winner in the Pacific tournament will receive $12,500; the top woman gets $1,500.

So the top women tennis players left the tournament and went searching for a place to play. Houston provided the movement with a tournament and a $5,000 purse.

But the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association said it would not sanction the event because it conflicted with the association's already-sanctioned Pacific tournament. The USLTA said it would reconsider if the prize money was dropped.

So rather than jeopardize the tournament, the sponsors of Virginia Slims (Phillip Morris Tobacco Co.) decided to drop the purse and pay only the expenses of the women players.

NOT HAPPY

"We weren't happy this way," Mrs. King said Wednesday. "We thought we'd like to play above board rather than get expenses under the table. We're all pros so why should we become amateurs for a week. Why should we go backward?

"We're trying to make this game honest," she said. "I've received as much as $4,500-$5,000 under the table for playing in one tournament, even if I lost in the first round. Why can't we just get paid like the other pros?"

Then they found a way in which they could. Most of the top men's tennis players belong to Lamar Hunt's tennis organization and travel under his supervision, not the USLTA's.

So the women decided to form a similar organization and Gladys Heldman, the editor and publisher of World Tennis magazine was there to help.

Eight Teams To Play In Pro Cage Playoffs

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Basketball Association has decided only two teams in each of its four divisions will take part in league playoffs.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy said some NBA owners voted during a meeting Wednesday in favor of having three teams participate in the playoffs, but the majority felt such a system would eliminate too few teams from the semi-finals.

Specific arrangements for the playoffs will be made at the All-Star game in San Diego in January, Kennedy said.

The owners also authorized the commissioner to fine any NBA club $10,000 for illegal player relations—a move designed to eliminate "hidden players" who do not appear on the active list.

Kennedy said a settlement between the NBA owners and the Players Association is expected within three weeks.

Selma's Remarks Costly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dick Selma, the Philadelphia Phillies relief specialist, has pitched himself out of some tight situations in ball games but he still has not been able to talk himself out of hot water with four umpires.

Selma was fined $500 Wednesday by National League President Chub Feeney and apologized for remarks he made the night before about the umpiring crew when three of his teammates were ejected from the Phillies-New York Mets game.

CHARGES 'FIX'

Selma said the umpires were so wrong the game seemed a "fix."

He issued a statement Wednesday in which he said, "I know I was wrong in making accusations about the integrity of the umpires.

"I strongly question and still do, the judgment of the umpires in the game," Selma said. "In a fit of anger, I made charges for which I had no basis. I will apologize for this."

Augie Donatelli, senior member and captain of the four-member umpire crew that included Stan Landes, Dick Stello and Satch Davison, was not satisifed with the fine and the apology.

NOT ENOUGH

Donatelli revealed that the crew would have refused to take the field Wednesday night if Selma had not been "dealt with" and that they still feel he should be suspended.

Donatelli told Selma when the pitcher came to the umpires' dressing room and apologized that, "we don't think the punishment is nearly enough. We recommended that you be suspended and we shall work for your suspension after this race is over.

Selma replied, "You fellows know I never give you trouble out there and that wasn't the real me saying those things. I was just hot and I'm genuinely sorry."

HISTORY IN MAKING

Campy's Homer Is The Crusher

OAKLAND (UPI)—History, of sorts, was in the making at the Oakland Coliseum until Bert Campaneris came to the plate for the last time in the game.

He hit a line drive off 22-year-old lefthander Tom Hall of the Minnesota Twins with two out in the seventh inning and it carried over the left field wall for a home run. That's usually nothing to get ecstatic about except for the fact it was the first hit off Hall after 6 2-3 innings.

HIS 22ND

Had the Minnesota pitcher prevented the A's from collecting a hit, it would have been the second no-hitter in three nights at the Coliseum. A total of 5,066 unhappy fans sat on the edge of their seats and chewed their nails until Campaneris delivered his 22nd homer of the season.

Alas, further good fortune also dodged Hall. He walked Don Mincher and Sal Bando in the eighth before Dave Duncan poled a long shot over the centerfield wall to close the A's scoring and give the Twins a 7-4 victory.

LOST 13 OF 18

Thus, Oakland lost 13 of the 18 contests with the Twins this season. The A's remained in second place in the American League West, 9 1-2 games behind the pennant winning Twins but three games ahead of the third-place California Angels who were rained out of their game at Milwaukee.

The A's open a three-game series against the Angels at Anaheim Friday night with John Odom (8-7) on the hill. Vida Blue, who threw a no-hitter at the Twins Monday night, goes against the Angels Saturday and Chuck Dobson pitches on Sunday.

BATTLING

"We're still battling the Angels for second place and that means $1,000 more per man," said McNamara. "Just remember, a sweep by the Angels over us would vault them into second place by a few (percentage) points."

McNamara said 35-year-old outfielder Felipe Alou appears to be tiring and in a slump but he will remain in the lineup "because he's the best we got out there."

The A's are off today and close the season in a three-game series with the Milwaukee Brewers beginning next Tuesday at the Coluseum.

T. Jeremiah Beam. Part of the Beam family art for 175 years.

Son of the famous Col. Jim Beam, T. Jeremiah is the fifth generation of the only Kentucky family that's made the same Bourbon since 1795. As a matter of fact, 1970 marks the 175th anniversary of the year that Jacob Beam, founder of the Beam clan, sold his first barrel of Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey.

That's a mighty long time for one family to make one product, according to one formula.

So the next time you sip Jim Beam, savor its quality and its light taste. That's what we mean when we say it's a 175-year-old family art.

Mayo Rumored On Way Out

By U. P. International

DETROIT — Mayo Smith is apparently on his way out as manager of the Detroit Tigers. General Manager Jim Campbell said Wednesday, "I'll have nothing to say about next season until this season is over," but reports were being circulated that Billy Martin will replace Smith as manager the day after the season ends.

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Cardinal slugger Richie Allen was sent home for the remainder of the season Wednesday but the Cardinals said Allen's leg injury has practically healed and full recovery is anticipated.

Golf

EDINBURGH, Scotland — U.S. Masters champion Billy Casper shot a six-under par 66 Wednesday to lead a quartet of Britons by one stroke after the first round of the $24,000 Wills Open golf tournament.

Trailing Casper at 67 were U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin, his Ryder Cup teammates Peter Townsend and Brian Huggett, and Scot Andrew Brooks, who was in last year's Walker Cup team.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Lee Trevino, the fourth leading money-winner on the PGA tour, goes into the $60,000 Green Island Open Thursday with a new putter — and he says "it's a putter's course."

The new tournament drew 144 players — to be cut to 64 after 36 holes — but few of the big names.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — Bruce McCormick, who won medalist honors by a stroke, shoots for a berth in the quarterfinals of the U.S. Senior Amateur Golf championship today when he meets Steve Stimac.

McCormick, San Gabriel, Calif., helped open this year's over-50 tournament at the California Golf Club Wednesday with a 2 and 1 victory over Arthur Gee of Hammond, Ind.

Stimac, one of Northern California's leading amateurs of any age, got by his first hurdle by beating Frank Toronto of Fair Oaks, Calif., 4 and 3.

Basketball

OAKLAND — Six-foot-11 Bob Presley, former star basketbll player for the University of California, begins a six-month jail sentence today for grand theft.

Superior Court Judge Harold B. Hove sentenced the 240-pound athlete Wednesday, giving him credit for 21 days spent in jail after his arrest last November. He was involved in a traveler's check swindle.

Judge Hove also placed Presley on three years probation and ordered him to make restitution to the banks involved. He had pleaded guilty to one count of grand theft.

NEW YORK — Tony Jackson, a former star basketball palyer at St. John's University in New York, Wednesday filed a $2.5 million lawsuit against the National Basketball Association, charging the league and its teams with violation of anti-trust laws.

Jackson, who was drafted by the New York Knickerbockers in 1961, was barred from playing in the NBA after being implicated in a scandal that year. Jackson was charged with not reporting a bribe offer, which he rejected.

Mrs. Heldman signed the girls entered in the Virginia Slims tournament to one-week contracts and agreed to pay them each $1.

REINSTATE PURSE

With that, the sponsors reinstated the purse.

"We've been getting a raw deal and that's putting it mildly," Mrs. King said. "We eight girls decided we're not happy with the way things are going. We thought we'd like to play above board."

Mrs. King, a three-time Wimbledon champion, was joined in the anti-USLTA movement by Rosemary Casals, who teamed with Mrs. King to win the Wimbledon doubles crown this year; Nancy Richey, the top ranked woman tennis player in the United States; fourth ranked Peaches Bartkowicz; ninth ranked Valerie Jean Ziegenfuss; Kristy Pigeon and Australians Judy Tegart Dalton and Kerry Melville.

"These are about eight of the top 10 in the world," Mrs. King said. "I don't know how Margaret Court feels about it."

WINNERS

In the tournament's first round Wednesday, Miss Casals defeated Miss Ziegenfuss 6-1, 7-5; and Miss Melville defeated Miss Pigeon 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. King was not supposed to play and was in Houston for a tennis clinic and an exhibition. Her knee was operated on in July and she said she didn't think it was ready for tournament tennis. But fifth ranked Patti Hogan decided she did not want to take part in the tournament and lose the chance of a USLTA sponsored European tour. So Mrs. King volunteered to take Miss Hogan's unseeded place to complete the bracket.

"I've been a little rebel for a long time," Mrs. King said. "We've come a long way, baby, but we've still got a long way to go."

Redwood Has Tough Task Tomorrow

If experience is a good criteria for rating high school football games, Redwood is in for trouble against Encinal of Alameda tomorrow afternoon when the teams meet in Larkspur at 3:30 p.m. in a non-league encounter.

But San Rafael and Drake, who rolled to gigantic victories in season-openers last week, should have a minimum of trouble in disposing of their opponents tomorrow. The Bulldogs, winners by 40 - 0 over Washington of San Francisco Friday night, take on undernourished Montgomery at Santa Rosa, at 4 p.m. while the Pirates, who dumped ePtaluma, 39-0, play at Vallejo High at 8.

Redwood suffered a 7- 0 defeat in its season debut last week against Sacred Heart of San Francisco that could be chalked off to inexperience. Twenty-four players, many in their first varsity season, saw action for the Marin County Athletic League team.

Encinal, on the other hand, relied on their abundant experience - returning lettermen - to knock off another MCAL team, San Marin, by a score of 12 - 0.

Redwood cocah Phil Roark saw that game, and later he testified that the Jets showed great depth in wearing down the Mustangs. "They're fair size and they've got a couple of real fast backs," he said.

The Giants threw the ball more than they would have liked against the Irish, and although quarterback Bob Brown did a yoeman job, hitting on 9 of 20, Roark said against Encinal his team will be trying "to perfect our running game a little more."

The Giants' ground attack will be made more effective by the return to the lineup of fullback Andy Anixter, who sat out the Sacred Heart affair with a bad knee.

There is also bad news for the Giants, however. Starting guards Steve Green and Gary Shunk are both down with Bronchitus, and are listed as doubtful for the game.

San Rafael, much to the misfortune of Montgomery, will take what coach Bob Muster calls as healthy a club as he's ever had to Santa Rosa for a game with the Vikings that was originally scheduled to be played under the lights.

Muster said yesterday he was impressed with the way the North Bay team held up in losing 20 - 0 to Novato last Satruday. "We think they're a very physical ball club, that they're going to be tough," he said.

Nevertheless, the Bulldogs are favored to win big, by at least two touchdowns.

In games Saturday involving Marin and Sonoma county teams, Tamalpais hosts Skyline of Oakland and San Marin is at Novato against Rancho oCtate of Rohnert Park at 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic hosts Piner of Santa Rosa at 2; and that evening at 8, Novato is at Petaluma, and Terra Linda hosts Hogan of Vallejo at San Rafael High School's field.

PIRATES, CUBS LOSE

Mets Jump Back Into Contention

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New York Mets are looking to pick up additional ground today in the National League East title chase. And, why not? The defending world champions have the day off.

The Mets, who seemed to have blown all chance at successfully defending their crown when they lost three of four games last weekend to first place Pittsburgh, fought their way back into contention Wednesday night with a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia while Pittsburgh and Chicago both helped the New Yorkers' cause by losing. The Pirates dropped a 3-2 decision to Montreal while the Cubs suffered a double setback, bowing in both ends of a twi-night doubleheader to St. Louis by identical 2-1 scores.

TO SECOND

The Mets' triumph moved them into second place, two games behind Pittsburgh and a half game ahead of Chicago. While the Mets have today off, the Pirates again play Montreal and the Cubs face St. Louis. Despite being two games out, New York is actually in the best position to win or lose the "I don't want it, you can have it" race by themselves as all their remaining games are with Pittsburgh (3) and Chicago (4).

"It seems a thrill-a-minute," said Mets manager Gil Hodges after his team's latest triumph. "It was a great break. We came back and got it."

Hodges was referring to Donn Clendenon's clutch two-run homer in the eighth off Dick Selma which enabled the Mets to overcome a 4-3 deficit. It was a bad day all around for Selma as earlier he had been socked with a $500 fine by league president Chub Feeney for his criticism of the umpires in Tuesday night's game.

Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh claimed he was "concerned, but not worried" after his club lost for the second time in three games to Montreal. "You've got to be concerned, but these guys (the Expos) are pitching pretty good. You have to give their pitchers credit. We've got good enough pitching the last two days to win, but we just didn't get enough runs."

Montreal has held Pittsburgh to five runs in three games and Carl Morton did his part Wednesday night by gaining his 17th win at the expense of the Pirates. Morton needed relief help in the ninth when Pittsburgh had a run in and runners on second and third with only one out. However, reliever Mike Marshall then got pinch-hitters Jose Pagan and Gene Clines on fly balls to end the game.

The Cubs, too, got good pitching in both ends of their doubleheader against St. Louis but it was Chicago's hitters who caused manager Leo Durocher to mutter, "We had our chances. We can't complain."

It was Chicago's misfortune to run into Cardinal ace Bob Gibson who tossed a two-hitter in the opener to best Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins and record his 23rd victory, a personal career high. Rookie Jerry Reuss silenced the Cub bats in the nightcap, allowing seven hits, including three doubles by Billy Williams.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Hunting seasons on deer, bear, ruffed grouse and sierra grouse, mountain quail and tree squirrels all open Saturday for you late fall hunters. The deer season naturally always creates the most interest for the most hunters. This year the "two-tag-system" required for one inland buck has created some problems and some confusion' but for those of you who still have your A and B tags, your season starts Saturday morning at one half hour before sunrise.

For those of you who have used your "A" tag on a coastal season buck, most of Humboldt and all of Del Norte county are yet open to you! Predictions for these two counties sounds good. Good early season bets are the areas around Kneeland, Bridgeville and Alderpoint. Better than normal antler development reported in these counties, and three and four pointers should make up much of the kill. In Humboldt and Del Norte counties, the season will run until Oct. 25 and forked horns are legal.

IN MODOC and Lassen and parts of Siskiyou and Shasta, the season runs from Sept. 26 through Oct. 25 with a one buck limit, three points or better. In Lassen County, hunter success is predicted to be up. Hot spots are Roop, Pegleg, Crater, Campbell and Fox Mountains and the Cottonwood and Warner Mountain ranges. In Modoc predictions are also for a better season with bucks scattered but in prime condition. Shasta and Siskiyou are both reported as good bets. The other parts of Shasta and Siskiyou opening Sept. 26 will have forked horns or better as legal game.

Trinity, Tehema, Glenn and parts of Plumas, Sierra Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Mono and Inyo are also counties with forked horns or better as legal game with openings Sept. 26 thru Oct. 25. The other parts of these counties generally on the west slope of the Sierra, will also open the same date but will close Nov. 8, for a longer season with forked horns or better all legal. A copy of the Hunting Abstract is almost a must for you to unravel the mystery of some of the areas open to hunting.

BEAR HUNTING with an annual average kill of approximately 600 bears has a major change this year. The limit is one bear per hunter per season which lasts from Sept. 26 thru Jan. 3.

The ruffed grouse and sierra grouse season opens Sept. 26 thru Oct. 11 with a limit of 2 birds per season in the following counties: Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Del Norte, Fresno, Humboldt, Inyo, Lassen, Madera, Mariposa, Mendocino, Modoc, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Tehema, Trinity, Tulare, Tuolomne and Yuba. Legal weapons: Shotguns 10 gauge or smaller, bow & arrow and falcons

A SPECIAL MOUNTAIN quail season will open from Sept. 26 thru Oct. 30 in many counties listed in the hunting abstract. The bird limit will be six per day. Weapons: Shotguns, 10 guage or less, bow and arrow and falcons.

Season for tree squirrels will also open Sept. 26 through Jan. 31, in most counties (listed in the Hunting Abstract). Bag and possession limit: four per day, four in possession. Rifles and pistols are legal for squirrels and rabbits in addition to shotguns, bow and arrow and falcons.

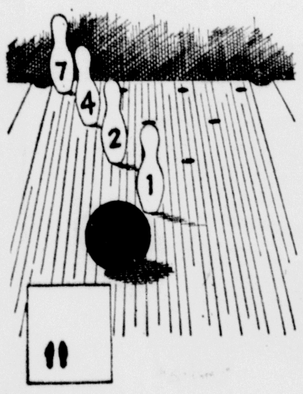
And with the duck and goose seasons just around the corner, it looks like now is the time for you and me to go on vacation.

Next to this column you see a wildlife drawing by Keith Soward of Oakland that probably has applied to you in the not to long past. Keith is a friend from Webber Lake.

TOM MACK one of Duck's Unlimited's hardest workers sent me a ticket to their annual "Drakes Only" dinner next Tuesday at the San Geronimo Golf and Country Club. The event starts at 6:30 p.m. I will be away possibly, so I suggested to I-J sports editor Jim Gilmartin, that he go in my place. I also asked him if he was a Duck's Unlimited member. He said, "he wasn't sure, but that last year he had joined Geodocks Unlimited and was that the same outfit?" I tell you!

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Periodically you can convert this 1-2-4-7 "fence" by hitting the headpin on the right side. But don't make this a habit. The odds of turning this set-up into a spare are much greater if you allow the ball to hook past the headpin on the left. Often the ball itself will touch all four of the pins.

MARIN GOLF

Lazzarini Repeat Winner

Don Lazzarini won his fourth Meadow Club golf championship in five years Sunday. He defeated Dr. Robert Knudson on the second hole of a sudden death playoff after both had posted the same score — 303 — in regulation play.

Knudson carded a 72 for the final 18 holes, at the Fairfax course, six strokes better than Lazzarini, Dr. Mark Gilberg nearly made the playoff also, but missed a birdie putt on the 18th hole that give him a tourney total of 304.

Fourth place went to Joe Campbell, who fired a final round 73 for a 36-hole total of 306.

In other club championships in progress in Marin county, four players advanced to the third match-play round at Indian Valley, and Mill Valley narrowed its field to eight.

Former champion George Scherba of Indian Valley and defending champ Jim Brown of Mill Valley both won their matches.

Mrs. William May took her 12th women's title in 13 years at Novato's Indian Valley course Sunday, winning by 10 strokes over second place finisher Mrs. Roger Williams .

Marin golfers recorded two holes-in-one recently, one at Peacock Gap and the other at Lake Tahoe. At the San Rafael course, 51-year-old Charlie Oogh of San Rafael aced the 140-yard 10th hole using an eight iron. William Haley of Novato scored on the 272-yard 7th hole at the Tahoe Paradise Golf Course in Tahoe Valley. He used a No. 2 wood.

SHARON WINS TWICE

Parade Of Tennis Upsets

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Young Jimmy Conors, who with his two-fisted backhand started a parade of upsets in the Pacific Southwest Open tennis championships, takes on Clark Graebner in a third round match today.

Conors, 18, stunned an overflow grandstand court crowd in the first round when he knocked off former Wimbledon champion Roy Emerson and went on to prove it was no fluke as he flattened Ray Moore of Australia in the second round.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael won twice yesterday, downing Carol Graebner in quarterfinal singles, 6-3, 7-5, and winning in doubles with partner Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., 6-1, 6-1.

In action Wednesday, young Tom Gorman of Seattle defeated Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 7-5, 0-6, 6-4, as seeded players broke about even during second round play.

"Okker is the highest ranked player I've ever beaten," Gorman said. "I broke his serve only twice and he broke my serve three times."

Gorman's victory over Okker was one of three upsets in the round. Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., seeded No. 6, was beaten decisively by Thomaz Koch of Brazil, 6-3, 6-2. Dennis Ralston, Bakersfield, Calif., ninth seeded, was toppled by Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 7-6, 6-3.

Seeded players advancing to the third round included fifth seeded Pancho Gonzales, who outlasted Richard Crealy of Australia 7-6, 3-6, 7-6; Andres Gimeno of Spain, No. 8, who turned back Jaime Fillol of Chile, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, and Stan Smith, Pasadena, Calif., who defeated Charles Pasarell, Puerto Rico, 6-4 and 6-2.

20 YEARS' SERVICE

McCarthy Views Accomplishments

Sen. JOHN F. McCARTHY
Ending long career

Marin's veteran state senator, John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, pulled the political surprise of the local 1970 season when he announced last winter that he was ending his 20-year career in the Legislature.

Few men close a political career at the age of 46, but McCarthy had the advantage of having been the youngest man ever elected to the California Senate.

His election at the age of 26 was "the biggest thrill" of his career, McCarthy told the Independent-Journal in an interview in his San Rafael office. He won by 81 votes in a four-way race with men far better known in the community.

The election made him a junior peer of senators whose age averaged almost 70. "I had to learn fast," McCarthy said of his first session in Sacramento.

During the interview, McCarthy flipped slowly through a scrapbook of his newspaper clippings. The mammoth volume must have weighed almost 50 pounds, and was only one of the four he has filled.

He recalled a belt full of accomplishments, especially his "two great battles" to build the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and to create the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. Marin originally was in the district, but dropped out after engineers said the Golden Gate Bridge could not support trains.

McCarthy carried the bill to build the bridge in his first year, and got it passed by only one vote in the Assembly after a fight that lasted almost until the last day of the session. And when he discovered that the bridge was going to have only three lanes on a single two-way deck, he won passage of a $5 million loan from school funds to build a second deck.

McCarthy also pushed through a measure cutting from two-thirds to 60 per cent the margin of voter approval needed to create the district was approved by 61 per cent of the voters.

Other accomplishments McCarthy cited as high points of his Senate years were getting the one-way toll on the Golden Gate Bridge cut from 40 to 25 cents, getting the second Waldo Tunnel built, and eliminating the sales tax on prescription drugs.

He also headed a two-year study by a businessmen's committee of accounting procedures in the Department of Public Works. Its cost controls saved the state millions of dollars a year, and became the model for reform in other departments, he said.

The major disappointments, McCarthy acknowledged, were unsuccessful trys to create a transportation agency to run all Bay Area bridges, ports and airports. His proposed Golden Gate Authority died by one vote in the Senate.

McCarthy also recalled his unsuccessful campaign for a bridge linking Tiburon and San Francisco. "It should have been built, and we would have had rapid transit by now. It would have fitted right into the overall system."

One certain disappointment was his race for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor in 1962. He lost to former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, but ran a strong race.

That McCarthy long was a power in the state was proven by his 10 years both as his party's leader in the upper house and as a member of the Senate Rules Committee. "That's a long time to last in that position," McCarthy said of his tenure on the powerful committee.

His future plans, he said, still are uncertain. First, he will continue as a senator until January. His monthly retirement pay will be about $1,100 plus cost-of-living increases. The amount has not yet been computed, his staff said. McCarthy said he had offers for jobs from both the Reagan and Nixon administrations, but probably would go into private business. Most likely, he indicated, he will get into governmental relations" for a development company.

He stressed that this would not be lobbying, a position he said he also has been offered, but was a public relations position for a company that would involve smoothing the way with local government officials for the company's projects.

"I don't want to do that much work," he added. "I want to play some golf, too."

McCarthy, looking about an office crowded with mementos, said his first problem upon retiring will be finding enough room for all the things he has collected in 20 years.

Will he return to politics? "Not right now, but that doesn't mean I won't someday."
